Defends Three Party Navy Agreement.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 6. — Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, a member of the American delegation to the London naval conference, delivered a radio speech to America this evening, in which he said:

"We have good reason to hope that a five power agreement may be signed before we leave here."

Whether a five power treaty is possible, he said, will be determined by events this week, following the return of the French foreign minister, Aristide Briand, Tuesday. In any event, the ambassador added, there will be a three power navy limitation treaty signed by America, Great Britain, and Japan, with a provision for the inclusion of France and Italy also "when their difficulties have been solved."

Defends 3 Power Treaty.

Mr. Gibson devoted most of his address to a defense of the three power treaty. He said notable reductions in armament would result from an agreement of the three leading naval powers to scrap certain battleships, but he did not repeat Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson's claim that the treaty would result in reducing the American navy to the extent of 200,000 tons.

With Great Britain scrapping five battleships, America three, and Japan one, the treaty by one stroke of the pen, Mr. Gibson, pointed out, will sink the equivalent of the battleship fleet which the third naval power, Japan, will possess thereafter. By postponing the replacement of the 26 capital ships which were to be laid down under the Washington treaty before 1936, the three powers will save between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000.

"How much of that will be spent after 1936," said Mr. Gibson, "depends on the next conference. None of it will be spent during the life of this treaty made by this conference."

Limitation, No Reduction.

As to cruisers, destroyers and submarines, Mr. Gibson contented himself with claiming there would be no reduction, but a limitaton.

"The great achievement of this conference," he said, "is that it has arrived at a basis for limiting all kinds of vessels in the three largest fleets. And the cruiser, destroyer and submarine tonnage, under this limitation, will be far below the lowest limit discussed at Geneva in 1927. To those of us, who have followed the efforts for limitation since the Washington conference, the results attained here, so far, are beyond reasonable expectation."

Mr. Gibson was the chief American delegate at the Geneva conference, which failed because of the Anglo-American deadlock on cruiser limitation. Mr. Gibson recently remarked that he could have made an agreement at Geneva had he had such instructions as the Stimson delegation has.

Orders Then and Today.

Under the Coolidge instructions, it is recalled, he was obliged to refuse to agree to the British cruiser plan, which sought to hold America down to half the number of eight-inch gun cruisers required by our peculiar defense requirements, while allowing us an unlimited number of small cruisers, for which we would have little use.

Under President Hoover's instructions, the American delegation made this concession. As President Hoover repudiated the Coolidge stand of 1927, Prime Minister MacDonald repudiated the demand of the Tory ministry at Geneva for 70 cruisers and agreed on a limitation of 50. On the basis of these concessions, America and Great Britain have agreed on a navy limitation program at this conference.

Silent on Parity Claim.

Conspicuous for its absence from Mr. Gibson's address was the fact that a claim of parity between American and British navies is provided by the three-power agreement. Mr. Gibson has always maintained a discreet silence in regard to Mr. Stimson's claim that a parity has been established by the Anglo-American settlement.

The reason is that the ambassador contended at Geneva that a concession such as the Hoover delegation has made here would perpetuate the inferiority of the American navy to that of the British.

CUTTEN HUNTS DOWN BANDITS; EIGHTH SEIZED

Relentlessly for eight years, Arthur Cutten, noted for his wealth and for his daring operations in the grain pits, has hunted down the nine members of a band of robbers who invaded his Downers Grove mansion, robbed him and locked him in a basement vault to die.

One by one Mr. Cutten has seen the robbers captured, prosecuted and sent to prison. Simon Rosenberg, the alleged leader of the band, was arrested early yesterday in Cleveland, O. He is the eighth man to be seized. There remains at large now only Rosenberg's brother, Kasper, and Mr. Cutten says he will spend another eight years and more thousands of dollars to bring that last one to justice.

The robbers, when they invaded the Cutten home on March 27, 1922, took $20,000 worth of jewelry, $500 in cash and 25 cases of whisky from Mr. and Mrs. Cutten and his brother, Harry. But it wasn't the pecuniary loss that set the broker on his relentless hunt.

"The money and jewelry were nothing," Mr. Cutten said yesterday. "What made me determined to get them if it took a lifetime was the fact that they tied up Mrs. Cutten, tied up my brother, and tied up the servants, and then locked me in the basement vault to be smothered to death.

"That was an unnecessary and fiendish piece of cruelty. I said then that I'd spend every dollar at my command to put them where they belong—behind bars."

A Relentless Search.

The story of Mr. Cutten's search for the robbers might be compared to Dumas' story of the Count of Monte Cristo, according to State's Attorney Chauncey Reed of Du Page county. Just as the count hunted down his enemies one by one, so, said the prosecutor, Mr. Cutten has hunted down the bandits who left him in the vault to die.

"No. 8!" said Mr. Cutten yesterday as he read the message from Lieut. Frank Johnson of the detective bureau, who had arrested Rosenberg in Cleveland at 4 a. m. "When I get No. 9—this one's brother—I'll be through with the job."

Dispatches from Cleveland during the day informed Mr. Cutten that Rosenberg had applied for a writ of habeas corpus. The broker at once announced that he will be in Cleveland when the hearing on that writ is called at 10 o'clock this morning.

Acts for Extradition.

"I'll be there and I'll have my witnesses with me," he said. "Now that we've got him, he's going to the penitentiary. Policemen already have been sent to Springfield to attend to the extradition matter."

Private detectives employed by Mr. Cutten have followed Rosenberg from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic, from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada. Working as an insurance and bond broker, Rosenberg has moved from city to city.

Always he has known he was hunted and fled when he detected the presence of the operatives. He has used many aliases.

Story of the Robbery.

The robbery of Mr. Cutten's home grew out of a plot of Joseph Vormittag, formerly of 2632 Bissell street, once a butler in the mansion. Vormittag thought the robbery might easily be executed, he confessed, and told Paul Graborski of 1124 Lill avenue and Otto Tempera of 2121 North St. Louis avenue of the plan.

Joseph Cornelissen, a saloon keeper, of 1230 School street, and his friend, Gustave Kawell, were taken into the scheme. John Kiminne and John Cuda and the two Rosenbergs, according to the confession, completed the gang.

Kidnaping Attempt Fails.

This party in two automobiles drove several times to Downers Grove to reconnoiter the Cutten estate. At first they planned to kidnap Mr. Cutten and hold him for ransom, and once, according to Vormittag's confession, they attempted to go through with the kidnaping.

In their machines they trailed Cutten's car as his chauffeur drove toward Chicago. But the broker's car was a fast one, and the plotters were defeated. They then decided on the robbery.

When the robbers left the Cutten mansion two servants managed to wriggle from their bonds and freed Mr. Cutten from the vault, in which he would have died but for his rescuers.

Smiling Baby Abandoned in Stevens Hotel

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Room No. 755-A of the Stevens hotel was the scene of a strange little drama yesterday afternoon, the principal actor in which was an abandoned baby boy.

When Sergt. John Lannin and Policeman Harold Fogarty of the Second district, notified by hotel authorities, entered the room to take the baby away, they found two or three dozen hotel guests and employés hovering over the small bundle. The women cooed, the men made funny faces. They eyed the policemen with hostility.

"Can't we keep this baby?" half a dozen women cried at once. "O, let me, I want him so badly."

Baby Takes to Cops.

The policemen looked stern. But as Sergt. Lannin was explaining the formalities of law and their duty as policemen, Policeman Fogarty smiled in triumph.

"Y'see," he announced to the women present, "he's stretchin' out his arms to me! I guess he don't mind going with us."

"Well, guess we'll take him in the patrol wagon over to St. Vincent's orphanage," Sergt. Lannin remarked to Policeman Fogarty.

Women Hear Child's Cries.

Several of the women guests of the hotel had heard a baby's persistent cries early in the morning and reported it to hotel authorities. The house detective was sent to the room. The door was locked, but he entered with a pass key, accompanied by half a dozen women guests.

Apparently the baby had been placed on two pillows laid on the floor, and rolled underneath the bed.

The previous night a well dressed woman, about 40 years old, and one about 25 years old, carrying the baby, had registered at the hotel as "Mrs. M. Taylor, daughter, and her child, of Detroit."

The Baby Is Fed.

When the women had not returned at 10 o'clock in the morning the hotel chef, advised by a score of women guests, had warmed some milk. The baby was fed.

Back at South State street headquarters, Sergt. Lannin and Policeman Fogarty entered the following description of the baby in the books:

"Eleven months old, 29 inches in height, 18 pounds and 4 ounces in weight, fair complexion, four upper and four lower teeth, woolen shirt and slip and stockings, white dress, jacket and cap, and black shoes."

BOMB DAMAGES HOME OF FORMER LAWYER FOR CITY

A dynamite bomb early this morning wrecked the front vestibule and damaged the first floor apartment of a two apartment building at 3258 Douglas boulevard, causing a loss estimated by the police at $1,500. The building is occupied by the family of Attorney David Alexander, former assistant corporation counsel, and his four brothers-in-law, Maurice, Ruby, Charles, and Benold Stern, who conduct a scrap iron business at 4850 South California avenue.

Alexander, his wife, and their three sons, who live on the second floor, and three of the Stern brothers, who occupy the first floor apartment, were shaken from their beds by the blast. Miss Leila Alexander, the attorney's daughter, was just taking leave of her evening's escort, Herbert Sherman, when the explosion occurred, but both she and Sherman told the police they did not hear any one enter or leave the building.

Benold Stern, the fourth brother, said that he arrived home shortly before the blast and that two young men in an automobile speeded away from the curb as he approached. Both the Stern brothers and Alexander told the police they could think of no motive for the bombing. Alexander said he was assistant corporation counsel in the first Thompson administration and had been a special assistant corporation counsel until recently.

MOTORIST SPEEDS INTO A CROWD; 1 DEAD, 14 HURT

New York, April 7 [Monday].—[Special.]—One man was killed and 14 persons were seriously injured at 1:15 a. m. today when a hit and run motorist driving at more than 50 miles an hour south on Hylan boulevard, Staten island, crashed through them. Two of the injured are expected to die and at least six of the remainder are considered dangerously hurt.

About twenty minutes before the hit and run driver came speeding down the highway there had been a minor automobile accident. The noise of the collision had drawn residents of the district out of their homes and they were at the intersection inquiring about this accident when the mad driver came tearing toward them.

None of the injured saw how many persons were in the hit and run car. Without sound of horn it headed straight for the group of men and women at the intersection, making no attempt to reduce its speed, and before they could get out of its way it tore right through them, scattering them right and left.

17 ARE KILLED, 7 ARE HURT BY BLAST ON TRAIN

TOKIO, April 7.—(AP)—The railway ministry today announced that seventeen persons had been killed and seven seriously injured in an explosion aboard a train near Oita, Kyushu prefecture. The explosion was officially attributed to dynamite, which was believed somehow to have become mixed in the coal used by the engine.

Four times in the last two weeks a youthful bandit walked up to the cashier's cage in the elevated station at Grand avenue and Franklin street, and holding a gun on Oscar Harz, 55 years old, 4613 Dover street, the cashier, robbed him of a few dollars. On his fourth visit, last Tuesday, he brandished his gun a trifle more threateningly than usual and warned Harz that he would kill him if he notified the police again.

But Harz, for the fourth time, notified the police, and they, taking the bandit's threat seriously, detailed a policeman to guard the station each night.

Robber Appears Fifth Time.

Last night Henry J. Dompke, a patrolman from the East Chicago avenue station, took up his post in an emergency cage directly across from Harz's and waited.

At midnight the young bandit made his fifth appearance. He walked up to Harz, thrust his gun through the cashier's window, and said:

"I'm here again. Come across."

Dompke, watching through a peephole in the card board enclosing the window of the emergency cage, saw Harz shove the money across the counter and saw him nod, the signal that the same bandit had returned. Dompke stepped out of the cage and as he did the bandit whirled, his gun in his hand, and struck at the policeman.

Policeman Fires One Shot.

The policeman fired one shot, hitting the youth in the abdomen, and leaped upon him as he fell to the floor, wresting the gun from his grasp. The bandit was taken to the Bridewell hospital in a critical condition. He at first gave his name as John O'Connor, 21 years old, 3432 Polk street, but later admitted he was John Howard of the Polk street address.

LITTLE GIRL HIT BY STRAY BULLET; IS NEAR DEATH

Bullets fired by Police Sergeant Michael Morley and his detective bureau squad last night at two brawling Negroes in a billiard parlor at 1309 South State street are believed to have carried two blocks, inflicting a perhaps fatal wound upon a 7 year old child.

Mrs. Bertha Condes, 3231 Federal street, and her daughter, Caroline, were awaiting a street car at 20th and State streets when the squadmen fired on the Negroes two blocks north. Suddenly the child screamed and fell forward on her face.

The mother hailed a taxi and took the girl to St. Luke's hospital. An examination by Dr. T. F. Fortner indicated a bullet had pierced the upper part of the child's cranium, passing through the brain.

SENATE RIVALS BATTLE THROUGH SABBATH CALM

Deneen Charges Foe with Campaign of 'Shiftiness.'

Mrs. M'Cormick Rips Rival's Record as 'Silent Senator.'

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Senator Charles S. Deneen last night charged Ruth Hanna McCormick with "a shifty campaign." He dwelt upon "alliances with Crowe-Galpin-Snow and the city hall" and spoke of "players with new masks" whose voices "reveal their identity." The senator's onslaught was made at three meetings as the placid Sunday afternoon echoed the strife of the contending camps. As tomorrow's finish approached, the battling took on the appearance of a knock down and drag out fight.

Mr. Deneen declared a "systematic whispering campaign" has been in the background of the "shifting world court issues." He asserted that Mrs. McCormick has adopted "the old slogans" of "Crowe-Galpin-Snow-city hall," while they "are using her money to promote" their local campaigns. The senator declared the C.-G.-S. leaders are repeating "in a dull and languid way" the slogans of two years ago.

Discusses Opponent's Record.

Taking up the Congressional Record, Senator Deneen said Mrs. McCormick got "only one speech" into the Record and that was an address "delivered in Chicago."

He declared Mrs. McCormick's position "against the world court, with or without reservations," places her "against the world-wide movement for world peace." He said Mrs. McCormick is "out of harmony" with the messages of "six Republican Presidents and the national platforms since 1912."

Dwelling upon the waterway, Senator Deneen said the action he "initiated at Washington" for work on the upper Illinois river received favorable committee action a few days ago, and "hope of the waterway will soon be fulfilled."

Speaks at Three Meetings.

Three meetings were addressed by the senator, one of them a colored audience, which filled the Wendell Phillips High school auditorium. Today scorching speeches are heralded for the noonday rally at the Grand Opera house, at which Prof. Charles E. Merriam is to preside. Tonight the senator is to speak over the air, the station and hour to be announced today noon.

Senator Deneen in his speeches said:

"In Mrs. McCormick's speeches, and in her alliances throughout her campaign she has shifted from one position to a contrary one. She announced first that she was a candidate at the primaries as an independent Republican, but it soon became apparent that she had alliances with the Crowe-Galpin-Snow leaders in Chicago and with the city hall machine.

"She endeavored to conceal this until the marked ballots appeared. Since then she has attempted to justify her alliances. It was apparent from the beginning of her campaign that she was framing her speeches and alleged issues to give the Crowe-Galpin-Snow forces and the city hall

Ruth Hanna McCormick took "Senator Deneen's record of silence" in the United States senate as her theme last night as the Republican senatorship battle raged towards the primary election tomorrow with redoubled fury.

Mrs. McCormick declared that "in five years Mr. Deneen had made only two speeches of major importance" in the chamber. She asserted that Mr. Deneen "did not utter a word" in the senate on farm relief, Illinois waterway, immigration, veterans' relief, and the Kellogg peace treaties.

On the tariff Mrs. McCormick said Senator Deneen made one address and that was on "higher protection for aluminum." On the Jones 5 and 10 law she remarked the senator voted for it "but uttered no word" when it was under debate.

Deneen's "Two Speeches."

The senator's "two speeches in five years," Mrs. McCormick asserted, were on an interstate commerce matter and on the seating of Frank L. Smith as senator. She said Mr. Deneen failed to indicate whether he felt Smith entitled to his seat, "an evasion" which brought him "condemnation from friends and foes" of Smith.

Mrs. McCormick said that while Senator Deneen claims to be "father of the Illinois waterway," she is informed that William Lorimer and Henry T. Rainey were "its original leaders."

The air address was the climax to three afternoon meetings, chief of which was one of colored voters who filled the 8th Regiment armory, 7,000 strong. This rally reached its peak when Mrs. McCormick announced that she is for Oscar De Priest, the first Negro congressman in a quarter century.

She Explains Her Stand.

"I am for Oscar De Priest," she said, "because he is one Cook county congressman who is actively supporting me."

One declaration from Mrs. McCormick was that "propaganda of misrepresentation" is being conducted against her among church folk by literature depicting her as against world peace because she is opposing "the league of nations' world court."

Today at noon a final Chicago blast is to be delivered at the Apollo theater. Thence the candidate will take to the air. At 10:45 this morning she will speak over W-G-N and 7:30 tonight she will address the voters of the state over KYW and WJJD over a direct hookup from her farm home on Rock river, near Byron.

Last night W. R. James, president of the West parks and Cook county manager for Mrs. McCormick, put out the results of a straw poll made by the Voters' Progress club, yielding Deneen, 1,527; McCormick, 3,408.

Mrs. McCormick's Addresses.

Mrs. McCormick in her addresses during the day and last night said that since 1926 Senator Deneen has been senior senator from Illinois and had "the task of representing Illinois on the floor of the senate."

"I want to summarize the facts which surround one vital criticism that is to be made of Senator Deneen's carrer in Washington," said Mrs. McCormick. "In five years in that debating body, up to the time he became an active candidate for renomination to the senate, Senator Deneen has discussed only two subjects of statewide or national interest. He has made only two speeches of major importance in five years.

"One of those addresses was on a proposed amendment to the interstate commerce act, and was comparatively brief. A much longer address, which was continued over several days, was on the question as to whether Frank L. Smith should be given a seat in the senate. Mr. Deneen, being the only Illinois senator, led the argument for Mr. Smith's demand that he be admitted to the senate.

The Frank L. Smith Speech.

"It was Senator Deneen's choice on that occasion to limit his argument solely to the question of the law, the constitution, and the precedents relating to the situation, but in all that prolonged address he failed to express, directly or by inference, whether he believed Frank L. Smith was morally entitled to a place in the senate. That evasion brought down upon his head the condemnation of both the friends and the foes of Mr. Smith.

"Let us go further into the record. We have told what he did do on the floor; it is even more important to consider the facts as to what he did not do. Illinois is the fourth state in agriculture, with more than twenty million acres devoted to farming. In 1928 Illinois had a candidate for the presidential nomination on a farm platform. Herbert Hoover won the nomination, and while he did not subscribe to all the details of the farm relief plan advocated by the Illinois delegation at the national convention he promptly sponsored a farm plan which was briefly presented in the platform.

The Farm Relief Program.

"The farm relief measure was quickly passed in the house and transmitted to the senate in the extra session called for that purpose in April, 1929. The plan met with opposition in the senate. Some Republican members joined with Democrats to inject features which would result in a veto by President Hoover.

"In all that senate debate, Mr. Deneen, representing a state whose chief industry is agriculture, never uttered a syllable. He neither defended the policy of the President, who was leader of the party, nor did he offer any proposals of his own. Are the farmers of Illinois satisfied with that record?

Senator and the Waterway.

"Senator Deneen in campaigns has never failed to claim credit for initiating the legislation and appropriation for an Illinois waterway. I do not think Senator Deneen was the father of the waterway movement in Illinois. I am informed by dependable authorities that William Lorimer, a Republican, and Henry T. Rainey were the original leaders.

"But never once in five years has Senator Deneen addressed the country and the senate on the waterway, the completion of which presents a legislative problem in Washington. Not one word from Mr. Deneen on this greatest project.

"Senator Deneen has been proclaiming the new attitude towards world peace brought about by the signing of the Kellogg treaties, known as 'the outlawry of war.' I was the only candidate two years ago to appeal to the people of Illinois to support the Kellogg plan. Only one vote was cast against it in the senate. But Senator Deneen did not utter a word in the long debate on the treaties in the senate.

On the World Court.

"Let me go further into this negative record. Senator Deneen has been devoting most of his speeches to the world court. He voted for the court in 1926 and has been trying to defend that act in this campaign. The senator, so voluble on this subject, never uttered a word about it on the floor of the senate when the subject was the center of a storm of debate. Not one word about the so-called world court from the representative of 7,500,000 people.

"He never arose and added his voice to the demand for adequate national defense when the 15 cruiser bill was debated. His voice was never raised in debate over the immigration laws.

"The Jones law is being widely discussed. Senator Deneen voted for it but he uttered no word in support of it on the senate floor.

Tariff Record Under Fire.

"What about the tariff record? Through all the long months Senator Deneen remained silent until at last, having decided that he would seek nomination, he briefly discussed a few items. He voted against a low tariff on sugar, apparently indifferent that Illinois is a consumer, not a producer, of sugar.

"He spoke briefly about two or three agricultural items, but one of his chief efforts was a little address for a higher tariff on aluminum. Has the senator's voice been of any material use to the farmers?

"There has been frequent discussion in the senate of measures in behalf of ex-service men in the last five years. What has Senator Deneen been doing? The record shows not one word uttered by a senator of a state which sent more than a quarter million boys to war.

"I might add there is no bill of more than nominal importance in the congressional files which bears the name 'Deneen.'"

Minneapolis, Minn., April 6.—(AP)—Believed by police to have been the victim of gangsters' bullets, Sam "Doc" Miller of Minneapolis was found shot to death here early today. His body was slumped over the wheel of his automobile, which was parked on a street in the north side residential section.

LOESCH CALLS SWANSON OFFICE CAMPAIGN TOOL

Former Prosecutor Takes Rap at Deneen.

Senator Deneen and his campaign manager, Roy O. West, have been using the state's attorney's office under John A. Swanson's régime to bring about the renomination and reelection of Deneen as United States senator, in the opinion of Frank J. Loesch, former special prosecutor.

"I will not permit Swanson to draw me into any personal quarrel with him," Mr. Loesch said upon his return from Washington yesterday. "But I cannot allow to stand unchallenged the statements he has been making purely for the purpose of relieving Senator Deneen from the onus that attaches itself to the senator's very open use of Swanson's office to further his chances of again becoming United States senator from Illinois.

Raps Swanson and Deneen.

"Let us ask ourselves why Swanson is setting forth weak and puny alibis for his failure to prosecute the sanitary district cases. The answer is that both Swanson and Senator Deneen know that those cases are well known to the public, that the public has not forgotten them. They hope somehow by making a lot of talk to fool the public into believing that there is something faulty about the indictments, or that there is some reason besides the true reason why those cases have not been brought to trial.

"What is the history of the cases? Well, Swanson drafted John Elliott Byrne, from the United States district attorney's office, to help Attorney Thomas Slusser draw up air tight indictments.

"Byrne and Slusser said they had cases in which no jury could fail to convict the defendants. Yet since Byrne and Slusser have been forced out of the picture the claim is set forth that the indictments are faulty.

His View on Resignations.

"I note that Swanson, on behalf of Deneen's candidacy for the nomination, says Mr. Byrne and Mr. Slusser resigned. My understanding is that they offered to stay and fight the canal cases, but that Swanson accepted their resignations when, it is my firm conviction, he was told to accept them by West and Deneen.

"The truth is Mr. Byrne resigned because he couldn't get the coöperation of Swanson. Mr. Slusser left for the same reason. When they were out John E. Northup was put in charge, and he has been in charge of the cases to this day.

"My opinion has been and is now that Byrne and Slusser were right in their view of the testimony which showed great criminal frauds in the conduct of the sanitary district business. The cases should long ago have been brought to trial.

"When Swanson went into the state's attorney's office the public understood that he went in as no mans' man. He turned out to be Deneen's man and my opinion is that his office has been used to promote Deneen's candidacy irrespective of whether it was for the public benefit or not."

NEWTON JENKINS SAYS HE'LL WIN SENATE BATTLE

Newton Jenkins, also a candidate for the Republican senatorial nomination for which Ruth Hanna McCormick and Senator Deneen are contending, issued a statement last night. It said:

"I will be nominated on Tuesday. The other two candidates, Mr. Deneen and Mrs. McCormick, have defeated themselves. They have ignored all of the economic issues. They have declined to even mention the important domestic issues, such as prohibition.

"Their records in Washington and their alliances at home have not helped them. To hide all of these things they have been fighting a sham battle over the league of nations. And finally the mud slinging that has been going on between them has disgusted the people."

Sees Situations Alike.

"The situation in Chicago is no different from that in the state. In every section of the state large sums of money are being expended in behalf of her candidacy and in every section in the state it has been observed that those who usually favor the cause that has the largest funds are active in her support. In my judgment there has not been in Illinois a campaign so expensive as the one which she is conducting.

"Behind the shifting alleged world court issues is a systematic and comprehensive whispering campaign and propaganda of misrepresentation and insinuation. This is a new kind of campaign in Illinois, but I think since the curtain has been withdrawn in Chicago within the last two weeks the people have had an opportunity to understand the play and to recognize the players. The players wear new masks but their voices and sentiments reveal their identity."

Discusses Rival's Record.

Senator Deneen took up the record of his opponent.

"A record of roll calls," he said, "shows Mrs. McCormick was present 10 days in a 34 day special session when the house was active, and only two days up to March 1 of the 72 days of the regular session. The record shows she did not raise her voice during the debate on the farm bill. The only speech by her on agricultural relief in the Congressional Record was one made in Chicago and was inserted April 26, 1929, by Congressman Kahn."

In discussing the Illinois waterway Senator Deneen said:

"About two years ago the Illinois delegation made a united effort to have the federal government construct a waterway from Utica to the Mississippi river, 228 miles away. Adequate appropriations were made therefor by the congress and it is expected the work will be completed this year. As I was the only senator from Illinois at that time, I had the honor and privilege to lead the fight for it before the senate commerce committee and in the senate.

Points to Waterway Work.

"A few months ago I was elected a member of the commerce committee of the senate. On my initiative the commerce committee through its chairman requested a report from the army corps of engineers and the secretary of war on the surveys which the federal government had made upon the upper reaches of the Illinois, the Des Plaines and the Chicago rivers from Utica northeast 102 miles to Lake Michigan.

"The report was made to congress about a week ago and on Friday the rivers and harbors committee of the house of representatives voted unanimously to recommend the project to the house. It is expected that the project will be adopted promptly by the congress.

"We may look forward to the completion of the nine foot waterway from Lake Michigan to the gulf of Mexico during the administration of President Hoover.

"Twenty-five years ago, when I was governor of the state, I appointed a commission which made a study of the deep waterway for our state and upon its report the state amended its constitution to appropriate and authorize twenty millions of dollars for its development by our state. I instituted on behalf of the state and in my name litigation in the state and federal courts which resulted in the preservation for the state of the water power which would be created in the waterway.

"The federal government is solving big problems in a big and enduring way. We produce and create our products one thousand miles or more from the seas and the reduction of freight rates by water transportation is of the highest importance to Illinois and the states of the Mississippi valley and the middle west."

...LAUGHTER CASE ...RGED AS ISSUE ...N NEGRO WARDS

...rding Replies to Bacon in Treasurer Fight.

Warning to Voters

The Chicago election board yesterday called attention to three points of law over which voters are likely to trip. In condensed form they are:

Those who voted in the April 8, 1930, primary cannot change to another political party in tomorrow's primary.

If the voter votes for more candidates for state representative than the ballot shows are to be nominated in his district his vote for candidates for this office will not be counted.

Voting on the little ballot propositions ends at 4 p. m., although voting on the main or candidates' ballot will continue to 5 p. m.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Two political massmeetings were held on the south side yesterday, in which Negro voters were urged to protest with their ballots in the Republican primary the attitude of the state's attorney's office regarding the murder of the Rev. William Slaughter, a colored precinct worker in the 42d ward. The minister was shot to death in an alley near a 42d ward polling place on election day.

The case was brought to the forefront today, not only in the massmeetings but also by distribution of circulars throughout the entire colored district. The moving power behind the drive was said to be Attorney Rufus G. Dawson, who, as special assistant to the state's attorney, helped prosecute the Connelly case. This was the murder of a Negro candidate against Morris Eller for the ward committeeship of the 20th ward two years ago.

Dawson is a candidate for ward committeeman in the 4th ward, but he and those associated with him carried their fight far beyond the limits of their territory. The circulars that were distributed carried a picture of a photograph of Mrs. Slaughter, the widow, and her four children and included a statement that she expects to become a mother. The inducements on the leaflet were those of Snow and Brundage candidates opposed to the Deneen entries.

Harding Replies to Bacon.

Another development of the day in the Republican county campaign was an attack on Walter E. Bacon, Deneen candidate for county treasurer, by County Treasurer Harding. Since the beginning of the campaign Mr. Bacon has fired shot after shot at Howard Y. Savage, now indorsed on the Snow-Deneen hall ticket for the treasurership, and there has been no response. Savage has repeatedly declined to reply, insisting that he was standing for office on his own merits. But a challenge from Bacon for Harding to open his books brought a response from the present treasurer.

Here is the statement issued by Harding:

"The Lundin candidate for county treasurer, Walter E. Bacon, waiting until the day before election and before there is no time to answer, asks whether I will agree now to a public audit of my books and accounts.

"Why, certainly I will, and I always have.

"Any one can look in my books. They have always been open to the public.

Says Audit Is Now Going On.

"Mr. Bacon shows a pitiful ignorance of the office to which he aspires, as the Association of Commerce, through Rufus Dawes and Haskins & Sells, accountants, are now and have been auditing my books. The auditor for the county board is permitted free access and audits them monthly.

"I wonder if Bacon is so crooked that he thinks every one is crooked and so unfair that he will stoop to anything to fool the public?

"Yes, and my books will not be taken away but left, as all public records should be."

County Treasurer Harding's predecessors, so far as is known, always have taken their books with them as personal property at the expiration of their terms of office.

Bacon Slams City Hall.

In the meantime Bacon continued in his press material to attack the city hall angles of his opposition.

"If as a result of the primary," his statement said, "we have to carry the obnoxious burden of the Chicago city hall, with its malodorous issues of Thompsonism and Ettelsonism, victory will be that much harder to achieve. The Republican voters have it in their hands to remedy the situation and cleanse the name of Chicago of the stigma of graft and corruption, of its reputation for crime and lawlessness, and of its shame of misgovernment and empty treasuries."

Marked Ballots Appear.

Marked facsimile ballots appeared in several wards yesterday. One was sent to the voters by special delivery. This was sent out by William R. Garrison, city purchasing agent, lieutenant for Homer K. Galpin in the Twenty-seventh ward and candidate for Galpin's place there as ward committeeman.

In its original print the ballot was marked with a cross before the name of Ruth Hanna McCormick for United States senator. But on yesterday's facsimile her name had been crossed out and a rubber stamp had been used, with an indicating hand and cross to instruct the Galpin organization supporter to vote for United States Senator Deneen as a candidate for a second term. The same ballot carried the favorable mark for William R. Swissler, Crowe candidate for the board of review.

THE TRIBUNE'S RECOMMENDATIONS FOR VOTERS IN THE REPUBLICAN PRIMARY

Below is a facsimile of the Republican ballot that will be used in Chicago tomorrow. The Tribune's recommendations to Republicans throughout the state on state-wide offices appear in the first column, those for the consideration of Chicago and Cook county voters only, in the remaining columns. JOHN D. JR. BUYS WYOMING TRACT TO BE U. S. PARK

Salt Lake City, Utah, April 6.—(U.P.)—Possibility that a new nation-al park may be added to the string of outdoor playgrounds in the Rocky mountains was seen in an announcement today that John D. Rockefeller Jr. and others have purchased some 35,000 acres of private lands in the Jackson Hole country of Wyoming with the idea of turning the section over to the government for a national park.

Included in the land purchased by the Snake River Land company, the organization which has been working on the plan for several years, is some of the wildest country in the United States. Jackson Hole has long been noted for its picturesque, rugged beauty, and has been classed as the last spot where wild life flourished as it did before white men invaded the west.

Harold P. Fabian, vice president of the land company, declared that it is planned to remove all possible traces of later civilization from the region, then turn the land over to the government for the formation of a national park. It would adjoin the Grand Teton National park, south of Yellowstone, formally dedicated last summer.

Fabian said Mr. Rockefeller Jr. was actively interested in the movement to preserve some of the old west in its natural beauty, and that purchase of the land was being made by him through the Snake River company.

WARNS U. S. MAY FACE CIVIL WAR OVER DRY LAW

Wadsworth Insists It's Repeal People Want.

Albany, N. Y., April 6.—[Special.]—A declaration that civil war might come in this country if the prohibition amendment was not repealed was voiced here tonight by former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr. in addressing a massmeeting staged at a theater by the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment.

Referring to a recent incident in Boston where a crowd tore down and trampled on posters of the coast guard, Wadsworth said:

"If that continues we shall be arraigned man against man, and the people against the government. That incident, to my mind, is the first indication of revolt, and I dread to think of what may happen if we go on for a few years more as we have for the last ten years."

Modification Not Enough.

"You cannot modify the Volstead act to any substantial degree while the 18th amendment is in force," he said.

Prohibition had brought about a general disrespect and disregard for all law, the former senator said. He denied the government was not trying to enforce the dry law.

"Our government is desperately trying to enforce prohibition, so desperately, in fact, that 1,365 men, women, and children have been killed," he declared. "The 18th amendment means that every person in the country shall be a total abstainer by the force of law.

No Reliance on Home.

"No longer do we place reliance upon the home, education, the church, and other moral influences to make us good, but in the club of a policeman. We have never known anything like this in all the history of the country. Surely it is the business of every thoughtful man and woman to try to get to the bottom of this terrible mess.

"Enforcement of prohibition is utterly impossible because it has not reached the conscience of the the average man.

"This is a question of good government; a great deal more than it is the question of a glass of beer," he continued. "This is a question of the integrity of the federal union of states. How long can we go on in this way? How long will the people give any respect to their federal government?"

VOTE TOMORROW
6 A. M. TO 5 P. M.

25,000 VOLUNTEERS TO GUARD AGAINST FRAUD AT PRIMARY

Dozens of Chicago polling places where trouble might develop during the primary election tomorrow will receive the especial attention of 25,000 or more volunteer watchers, C. B. Hopkins, secretary of the Voters Non-Partisan association, announced yesterday. Following a conference during the morning with County Judge Jarecki, Mr. Hopkins spent the rest of the day in his office receiving reports from his investigators and signing up workers.

Mr. Hopkins said a fleet of ten or more squad cars from the detective bureau has been ordered by Commissioner Russell to stand outside the city hall in readiness to answer calls. In addition to detectives, each car will carry a representative of the election commissioners' office and a representative of the Voters Non-Partisan association.

FINAL POLL OF CANDIDATES ON DRY ISSUE

237 Send No Answers to Questions.

Final results of THE TRIBUNE'S poll of all the candidates for the Illinois legislature running in tomorrow's primary are announced today. Letters were sent by registered mail to all the candidates, asking them to take a stand for or against the repeal of the Illinois prohibition law, or for or against the Illinois prohibition law, or for or against a referendum of the voters on the question.

So that the voters in the primary who desire it may have information on the prohibition views of the candidates who seek seats in the assembly THE TRIBUNE presents a complete list of all the candidates, the senatorial districts in which they are running, their party affiliations, and the stands taken by them in the poll.

220 Candidates for Repeal.

Of the total of 578 candidates, 332 replied to THE TRIBUNE questionnaire. Of these, 220 favor the repeal of the state prohibition act, either by direct legislative action or by referendum, and 85 are in favor of having the question decided by referendum. Twenty-six candidates oppose the repeal and one opposes a referendum.

The list published this morning discloses the names of 237 candidates from whom no replies have been received, and also of the nine who stated reasons for refusing to participate in the poll.

	House.	Senate.	Tri.
For both direct repeal and referendum	141	53	194
For direct repeal	19	7	26
For referendum	60	25	85
Totals	220	85	305
Opposed to repeal and referendum	14	4	18
Opposed to repeal	8	0	8
Opposed to referendum	1	0	1
Totals	23	4	27

Of the 237 candidates from whom no replies have been received 67 are running in Cook county districts and 170 are candidates in downstate counties. Only two of the nine candidates who announced their refusal to vote are from Cook county.

Splitting the results of the poll to show the vote in Cook county and in downstate counties gives the following division:

	Cook.	Down-state.
For both repeal and referendum	169	25
For direct repeal	20	6
For referendum	63	22
Totals	252	53
Opposed to repeal and referendum	5	13
Opposed to repeal	3	5
Opposed to referendum	0	1
Totals	8	19

Following is the complete list of candidates for the legislature, showing their replies, or lack of replies, to THE TRIBUNE'S questionaire:

Police Seize Followers; He Remains Free.

DANDI, India, April 6.—(AP)—Wholesale arrests of the adherents of Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader and Hindu philosopher, who followed his example in violating the salt laws, was started by police today, although Gandhi himself remained free. At an early hour today Gandhi began his civil disobedience campaign here on the Gulf of Cambay by dipping water from the sea for manufacture of salt.

Strikers on the Great Indian Peninsula railway joined in the campaign, causing workers who remained on the job. Police fired on rioters at Kurla station, injuring seven. The strikers, carrying red flags, tried passive resistance at Thana, standing on the railroad tracks in an effort to halt the trains. Pathans acting as police beat them off. Four non-strikers were hurt. Nineteen strikers, including two leaders, have been arrested thus far. Six have been tried and sentenced to three weeks rigorous imprisonment.

Gandhi's Son Seized.

At Viramgam, in Bombay presidency, Manilal Kothari, one of Gandhi's lieutenants, and 55 volunteers in the anti-salt law campaign were arrested with quantities of salt manufactured illegally. The salt was confiscated. Kothari was sentenced to pay a fine of 500 rupees [about $182.50] or serve six months in jail.

Ramdas Gandhi, the leader's son, was arrested with four volunteers at Bhimrad village, and taken to Surat to face a charge of gathering salt. The magistrate offered to release them on their own recognizances, but they refused, and the trial was set for Tuesday.

Police also confiscated a large quantity of salt collected in Jalalpur and Bardoli subdivisions by vounteers. Beyond these cases, there was no indication of an immediate repression campaign against the salt law violators.

Violates Law Formally.

Gandhi initiated the civil disobedience campaign at 6 a. m. by wading into the sea at the end of his 200 mile march and collecting water in earthen vessels to be heated for the manufacture of salt.

To the accompaniment of his supporters' cries, "Long live Mahatma Gandhi!" and leaning on the shoulder of the daughter of Abbas Tyabji, retired Badora judge, he walked into the water.

He dipped up a jug of water from the long gray line of breakers rolling in from the Arabian sea and carried it to the shore. Within the space of a few minutes he had formally violated the law, which makes salt manufacture a government monopoly.

Urges Nation-Wide "War."

In a statement to the press immediately afterward Gandhi said the war against the salt tax should be accompanied by a proper campaign of propaganda for the boycotting of foreign cloth and prohibition of liquor. He also indicated he was preparing a message to the women of India, who he said could make a larger contribution than men toward independence.

"Now that a technical or ceremonial breach of the salt law has been committed, such a course is open to any one, who will risk prosecution," said Gandhi. "He may manufacture salt wherever he wishes and wherever convenient.

"My advice is that workers should everywhere manufacture salt and, where they know how, prepare and clean salt and use it and instruct the villagers to do likewise. At the same time the villager should be told that he runs the risk of prosecution.

"In other words, the villagers should be fully instructed regarding the salt law and the manner of breaking the regulations connected with it, so as to have the salt tax repealed. It should be made clear to the villagers that the breach is open and that such conduct is no way stealthy.

"They may help themselves to salt, manufactured through nature in creeks and pits near the seashore, and use it themselves or for their cattle and sell it to those who will buy, it being well understood that all such people are breaking the salt law and risking prosecution or being subjected to harassment by the so called salt officers. This war against the salt tax should be continued during national week, or up to April 13."

No policemen appeared on the scene while Gandhi was breaking the salt law.

Three Evanston Youths Seized as Sign Thieves

Three youths were arrested by the Evanston police early yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct when five signs were found in the automobile in which they were riding. The boys confessed taking the signs from posts and billboards to decorate their rooms, according to the police. The three youths, who will be arraigned before Justice James Corcoran today, are Clyde D. Foster Jr., 1925 Orrington avenue; John Walworth, 419 Lee street, and James Kittleman, 1205 Judson avenue. All are 17 years old.

UKRAINIAN REDS BATTLE FOES AT W. SIDE CHURCH

Riot Begins When Woman Swings Club.

Communistic and anti-communistic factions among the Ukrainian population of the west side came to blows yesterday morning during the 11 o'clock service at St. Nicholas Ukrainian Catholic church. Two of the parishioners, Joseph Sayek of 2532 Walton place and Paul Jednyak of 4148 North Kamerling avenue, were knocked down, kicked and cuffed by the communists, and several other persons were bruised and scratched. No arrests were made.

Radical Leaders Rap Foes.

Communists from the vicinity of Chicago avenue and Oakley boulevard held a meeting at 11 o'clock in the morning at the People's auditorium, 2457 West Chicago avenue, where their leaders incited them against the congregation of St. Nicholas church, which is opposed to communism. A meeting of the parishioners was scheduled for 1 o'clock in the afternoon at the Chopin school, Rice street and Campbell avenue, to denounce these tendencies, and the communists appeared determined to break it up.

Several of the radicals hurried up to the church at Oakley boulevard and Rice street, creating a stir as they attempted to circulate their pamphlets among those at the service. They were ushered outside, where they jeered at members of the congregation as they came out of the church, and finally sailed in with feet and fists and clubs. It was said the fighting began when a woman radical seized a club and started swinging at the church members. Police who were on guard at the church were brushed aside by the rioters. Other policemen were called, but the disorder was over before any of the detail from the West North avenue station had reached the scene.

Police Guard Procession.

In the afternoon the procession of 2,000 Ukrainians opposed to communism gathered at the church and marched to the Chopin school, but a police escort had been provided and there was no disturbance by the communists. In the crowd of marchers were the Rev. Philip Tarnowsky, pastor of the church; the Rev. John Kosan, Ukrainian Red Cross workers, and members of the 132d regiment of the Illinois National Guard.

Resolutions condemning the soviet régime in Russia were passed at the meeting in the school.

EVANSTON MOVIE VOTE CANVASSED; RESULT A SECRET

After counting ballots for six hours yesterday, the canvassing board of the Evanston city council adjourned last night without completing its official canvass of the vote cast last Tuesday on the question of Sunday moving pictures in the suburb. One unofficial count showed that the Sunday movies had been defeated by a margin of 50 votes, while proponents of the measure were claiming a victory by 56 votes.

Ald. Clinton Merrick, chairman of the canvassing board, refused to disclose the result of the canvass, declaring that the board still had "a few details to attend to." The board counted the ballots behind locked doors at the city hall and all of the members pledged themselves not to reveal the result, Ald. Merrick said.

FOLLOWS TRAIL OF BLOOD AND SEIZES ROBBER

A trail of blood led Sergt. John Bush of the Grand Crossing police district last night to the capture of Jonas Dangler, 17 years old, in his home at 8137 Exchange avenue, a few doors from a bakery at 8145 Exchange avenue, from which Dangler had been routed by the proprietor, John Sterner.

Entering the bakery through a shattered window on which he cut his wrist, Dangler went to Sterner's living quarters upstairs, held him up with a pistol, and was commanding him to descend and open the safe when Sterner broke away. Sterner slammed the stairway door and held it fast, despite the youth's threat to shoot through the panel.

Dangler left by another stairway. Sergt. Bush picked up the blood trail on the sidewalk and by flashlight traced the fugitive to his home. Dangler, who was bandaging his wrist when the sergeant strode in, confessed the robbery attempt.

Beaten in Restaurant After 5 Cent Quarrel

Leon Barrett, 40 years old, 850 Madison street, was in the county hospital last night suffering from a fracture of the left arm, a possible fracture of the skull, and body injuries as a result of a quarrel over five cents. According to the Desplaines street police, Barrett complained that he had been overcharged in the restaurant of Charles Demos, 624 Madison street, and in the quarrel that followed he was beaten by Demos and two waiters, George Campbell and Percy Cuyler. Demos and the waiters were arrested.

INJECT NEW LIFE INTO OPPOSITION TO WORLD COURT

Senate Foes See Illinois Primary Affect Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—New life has been injected into the opposition to the world court. Instead of a perfunctory protest against acceptance of the modified reservation as embodied in the Root formula, a determined fight to block favorable action now is a certainty.

The new attitude is the result of the awakened interest in the world court as demonstrated by Ruth Hanna McCormick's campaign in Illinois and in the reception accorded the series of nation-wide radio speeches by former Senators George Wharton Pepper and James A. Reed, Mrs. McCormick, and others under the auspices of the D. A. R.

It now seems evident that the outcome of the Illinois primary on Tuesday will have a marked effect on the entire world court controversy and particularly on the program to be followed by President Hoover in seeking action by the senate.

Indicate Strong Sentiment.

Nomination of Mrs. McCormick can scarcely fail to give the world court movement a serious setback. Polling of a heavy vote for her likewise will be accepted as an indication of strong sentiment against the court. Renomination of Senator Charles S. Deneen by an overwhelming majority, on the other hand, might give President Hoover such confidence that the country is for the court as to cause him to submit the question to the senate before the close of the present session.

The President never has stated definitely when he would submit to the senate the modification to the original senate reservations which foreign nations have insisted upon. The impression has prevailed that he would not attempt to obtain action before next winter.

"I shall direct that our signature be affixed to the protocol of adherence," said the President in his annual message to congress in December, "and shall submit it for the approval of the senate with a special message at some time when it is convenient to deal with it."

Delays Stirring Up Issue.

It obviously has been undesirable from the President's standpoint to stir up an issue affecting international relations while attempting to obtain an agreement relative to naval armament reduction at the London conference. That he would not submit the world court matter to the senate during the continuance of the London conference was decided by the President early in the winter.

Inasmuch as the armament reduction controversy still is hanging fire, and as congress desires to adjourn early in June, it presumably is the President's theory that it will be preferable to delay the court matter until the next session.

If the Illinois primary outcome is such as to prove the existence of a strong feeling against the modified world court reservation, the President, without much doubt, will desire not to provoke a discussion of the issue unnecessarily in other states during primary campaigns scheduled during the next few months.

Factor in Other States.

Whether the President wishes or not, the interest aroused in the world court issue in Illinois may make it a factor in other states. If this is the case, it is entirely possible that the senate group which is opposed to American participation in the world court may increase its strength to formidable proportions.

Assurance as a result of the November elections that there will be additional anti-world court senators in the new congress which will take office after March 4, 1931, will tend to encourage a filibuster to prevent final action at the short session next winter. With the calendars congested with general legislation, as invariably is the case in a short session, it will not be very difficult to keep the question from coming to a vote if a handful of senators are determined to do so.

Beat Seventeen Who Voted for Court.

As opponents of the world court study the situation they are not so pessimistic as to prospects of preventing approval of the modified reservations as they were at first. While the 76 to 17 vote for the world court resolution with reservations on Jan. 27, 1926, showed considerably more than the required two-thirds for the proposition, an examination of the roll call shows that 28 of those who voted in the affirmative no longer are in the senate, leaving only 48, or an even half of the full senate membership, on record for the world court. It is not certain that all of the 48 will vote for the modified reservation, as some of them were willing in 1926 to vote for the resolution only after the original reservations had been accepted.

While the world court issue may not have been responsible, opponents of the court view with considerable satisfaction the fact that of the 28 who no longer are in the senate, 17 were defeated for renomination or reelection.

Of the 17 who voted against the world court only four have dropped out of the senate.

PREDICT CHICAGO POPULATION WILL PASS 3,250,000

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Chicago's population as nearly as can be estimated prior to completion of the actual count, will be revealed by the 1930 census as slightly more that 3,250,000. The decennial census taking was started April 2 and will be finished in the cities about April 15.

If the Chicago population greatly surpasses or falls below the three and a quarter million mark it will furnish a surprise to the tabulators who are busy with their pencils these days making deductions from the most recent estimates of the census bureau experts.

The population of Chicago according to the 1920 census was 2,701,705. Taking into account the available data on births, deaths, immigration, and emigration, the census bureau in its last official estimate as of July 1, 1928, set the figure at 3,157,400. Extending this estimate on a percentage basis to April 1, 1930, the census date, the calculation produces an estimated population of 3,251,217 within the city limits. This does not include the fast growing metropolitan suburban area.

An army of close to 120,000 enumerators, carrying colored schedule sheets, tomorrow will swing into their first full week of census canvassing, visiting every home in the United States.

The population of the country in 1920 was 105,738,354. For 1930 it is expected to be between 122 million and 123 million. Scientific studies of population trends over a long period have caused the census bureau to estimate that one birth occurs every thirteen seconds, and one death every 33 seconds.

Gains One Every 10 Minutes.

Such a detailed analysis of the estimated Chicago figures indicates that Chicago gains one resident each 10 minutes or approximately 53,610 annually.

Illinois, the third largest state in the Union, had a population of 6,485,280 on Jan. 1, 1920, and on Jan. 1, 1930, according to a special estimate made by the census bureau in connection with a reapportionment bill it had increased to 7,555,000. The July 1, 1928 estimated population of Michigan was 4,591,000; Indiana, 3,176,000; Wisconsin, 2,953,000; and Iowa, 2,428,000.

Without question Chicago will remain the second largest city in the United States, being surpassed only by New York. It will be interesting to see, however, if Chicago does not replace Berlin as the world's third largest city. The claim has been made that it now surpasses the German capital when the metropolitan areas are considered.

Chicago Second City in 1900.

New York, Chicago and Philadelphia have held the rank of first, second, and third largest cities respectively in America since 1900. There have been marked changes beneath them, however. Detroit between 1910 and 1920 climbed from thirteenth to fourth place, while Los Angeles moved up from thirty-sixth to tenth. Cleveland went up two notches from seventh to fifth, while St. Louis, Boston and Baltimore fell behind.

Chicago's sensational climbing period came earlier. In 1860 Chicago was the eighth ranking city, trailing behind Philadelphia, St. Louis, Boston, Baltimore, Cincinnati and New Orleans. In the next ten years it outstripped Cincinnati and New Orleans, and by 1880 had put all but Philadelphia and New York behind. In the census of 1890 it climbed over Philadelphia to second place, which it has held since.

Another novel disclosure made by each census is the list of fastest growing smaller communities. Between 1910 and 1920 the honor went to Hamtramck, Mich., with an increase of 1,266 per cent; Gary, Ind., ranked sixth with a growth of 229 per cent; Cicero, Ill., eighth with 209 per cent, and Oak Park, Ill., twenty-third with 105 per cent.

Negro migration into the north also is being watched by students of sociology and race problems. In 1920 Illinois had 182,274 colored inhabitants, and an estimated 212,740 in 1923, of which 136,396 were in Chicago. It is possible that the mythical population center of the United States may be moved over into Illinois from Indiana by the current census.

This not unselfish observation reveals the simple truth which, since 1886, has guided Almer Coe & Company:

—in making eyeglasses to the most exacting requirements of optical science

—in originating lens advancements, in their own laboratories, and adopting those developed elsewhere

—in devoting unstinted time and study to the art of fitting eyeglasses to individuals —in creating better-looking, more becoming styles for men and women —in adjusting eyeglasses made by themselves or others—without charge

—in giving to every individual patron attentive, painstaking service—whether he purchase or not.

BOY ON SKATES KILLED BY AUTO OF PROSECUTOR

Twelve year old Teddy Michalski, 1118 North Hamilton avenue, was selling papers to motorists at Logan boulevard and California avenue yesterday when his roller skates carried him into the path of a car driven by William C. Oehlsen, 1047 Wolfram street, an assistant city prosecutor assigned to State street court. Oehlsen quickly cramped his wheels and the car bumper missed the boy, but the rear wheels rolled over his body.

Teddy was taken to the Belmont hospital, and died there of internal injuries within a few minutes. Shakespeare avenue police held Oehlsen for the inquest, to be held at the hospital this morning.

The boy's death and three others yesterday raised the 1930 Cook county motor toll to 231.

Woman Dies of Injuries.

An 83 year old woman, Mrs. Angeline Pence, died in the home of her son, Dr. Clyde D. Pence, 35 North Mason avenue, of the injuries and shock incurred in a triple collision on Saturday at Lombard avenue and 16th street, Berwyn, while riding with her son. Struck by a small sedan being driven by Andrew Halko, 17 years old, 2109 South Oak Park avenue, Berwyn, the physician's car was bumped into the path of a truck.

Police were informed that Halko had been exceeding the speed limit and used belligerent language after the crash. He was permitted to leave the scene of the accident, however, when it appeared that no one was seriously hurt. He was being sought last night to be instructed to appear at the inquest into Mrs. Pence's death.

Auto Injuries Fatal.

The third fatality was William Davenport, 47 year old Negro of 612 Bowen avenue. Crossing Michigan avenue at 47th street, he was struck by the car of another Negro, Frank Fancher, 5424 Indiana avenue. Fancher took his victim to the Provident hospital where he died.

A man's hat and a woman's handkerchief were the only clews at hand last night as the police pressed a search for three occupants of a stolen car, who fled on foot after the machine struck and overturned a fire truck at 13th street and Washburne avenue early yesterday. Four firemen were injured, one perhaps fatally.

John Connick, a member of squad 2, suffered a skull fracture and was described as in critical condition last night at the West Side hospital. His 19 year old wife, Jeanette, who gave birth to a son last Friday, is ill in St. Anne's hospital. Her physician withheld from her the news of her husband's injury and of the death of her child, which occurred a few hours after its birth.

Train-Auto Victim Dies.

William Betsinger, 60 lears old, 12001 Yale avenue, who was injured in a collision between an automobile in which he was riding and a Chicago, South Shore, and South Bend interurban train on Saturday, died early this morning. Nicholas Appel, 105 W. 117th street, was killed at the time. Two others, injured in the crash, Don Coin, 12018 South State street, and Joseph Poedgony, 11013 Wentworth avenue, remain in a serious condition.

Three Hurt as Train Hits Auto.

The manager and three employés of the Wilson theater, 2412 Madison street, escaped with slight injuries early this morning when the automobile in which they were riding crashed through lowered gates and was demolished by a Chicago bound passenger train on the Soo line crossing at Harlem avenue and Harrison street in Oak Park

The injured, who received treatment at the Oak Park hospital, are Harry Harmon, 35 years old, the theater manager; Miss Vera Wilson, 22, of 1657 South California avenue, the cashier; Miss Marie Halpin, 19, of 2258 Fifth avenue, an usher, and Howard Quering, 32, of 217 North Kenneth avenue, also a theater employé.

FROM REZAIEH, PERSIA

Letter received by Miss Edna Burgess, Bement, Piatt county, Illinois.

Rezaieh is an ancient Persian city recently named by and in honor of his excellency, Riza Shah Pehlevi, formerly prime minister of the country. Its old name was Urumiah and was the center of the Zoroastrians, it being the reputed birthplace of Zoroaster, one of the great teachers of the east and the founder of the ancient religion of the Perso-Iranian people.

The sender of the letter is an American woman engaged in hospital work in connection with the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions. Rezaieh lies 12 miles west of Lake Urumiah and 64 miles southwest of Tabriz. It is noted as a center of missionary activity and is the seat of Fiske seminary for girls and of Urumiah college. Traces of the Zoroastrians, consisting of mounds or hills of ashes from their devotional fires are still to be found in the nearby villages.

KENTUCKIANSHOT TO DEATH IN 16 YEAR OLD FEUD

Owingsville, Ky., April 6.—(AP)—One man was killed and another probably fatally wounded as a 16 year old feud flared up anew at Olympia, near here, today.

Curt Crouch, a farmer, was shot to death and Jim Pergrem probably wounded fatally in the exchange of bullets. Marshall Pergrem, brother of Jim, was unhurt.

The shooting occurred at the railroad station, where a number of persons were waiting for a train. The train pulled in during the height of the gun fire and windows were shot out of several coaches, although no one was injured.

500,000 BATTLE TRAFFIC JAMS IN CHICAGO AREA

BY HAL FOUST.

Half a million pleasure seekers, beckoned to the country by the spring weather, rode over the highways in the metropolitan area yesterday. They were in automobiles capable of 50 or 60 miles an hour with safety and comfort. But they were on pavements that held the cars to 10 or 25 miles an hour much of the time.

There were long blockades at the intersections of important highways. Radiators were boiling—and some drivers' tempers were hot—as cars crept in low or second gear for a half mile or more to cross Roosevelt and Mannheim roads, which crossing is a typical congestion point that cannot be eliminated without a grade separation.

Most Are Chicagoans.

For the most part, these motorists were Chicagoans. During the working days of the week they had been paying a gasoline tax to the state without using the state's pavements. Sunday, when came their only opportunity to enjoy the roads they help build, found the highways inadequate for pleasure driving.

On narrow highways radiating from Chicago the congestion extended more than fifty miles from the city. Traffic experts say that the state will find, after completing its $19,000,000 program for widening these radials for thirty miles in the next two years, that the task of relieving metropolitan traffic will be far from finished. Motorists will drive farther from the city and crowd the more distant roads when they have the pavement facilities.

Many Motorists Delayed.

Many Chicago families ventured on trips yesterday that proved to be longer in time than they had planned. At 10 o'clock last night cars were following each other into the city with front bumpers close to the rear bumpers of machines ahead, carrying hungry men, women, and children who had hoped to be home to have their evening meal at the usual time.

The congestion in the city was about as bad as in the nearby country. On the boulevards automobile passengers were never far from the exhaust pipe of the car ahead. The Lincoln and the south park boards, it is pointed out by traffic authorities, could give a little relief if they would patch the broken places in their outer drives pending permanent paving.

WALKS IN HER SLEEP; KILLED.

ALD. GOVIER AND PEDESTRIAN IN ROW AT CROSSING

Sheldon W. Govier, alderman of the Ninth ward, gave vent to his wrath last night upon a pedestrian who, annoyed by Govier's blocking of the cross walk at Marquette road and Stony Island avenue, flicked a match at the aldermanic vehicle.

In his last traffic dispute several years ago, Govier received a discolored eye from Lewis Azarow, to whom he had refused to yield parking space in front of the Bismarck hotel. In last night's affair, a South Park policeman, Frank Williams, stopped hostilities.

The alderman and his wife were driving east in Marquette road. As the signal light turned red at Stony Island avenue, Govier stopped his car, according to the police, so as to compel pedestrians to dodge around in front or behind it to cross the street. The young man who provoked the alderman's rage, accompanied by a young woman, crossed in front and expressed his resentment by flicking the match, and the quarrel followed.

JUDGE PARKER ALSO OPPOSED ON RACE ISSUE

Negroes Claim He Backed Discrimination.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Disfranchisement of Negroes in southern states, particularly in North Carolina, again has attracted attention as a result of the fight being made on confirmation by the senate of the nomination of Federal Judge John J. Jarker of that state for justice of the Supreme court of the United States.

According to Walter White, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, who appeared yesterday before a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee, Judge Parker, as the Republican nominee for governor of North Carolina in 1920, expressed opposition to Negro participation in politics and approved the provision of the state constitution which tends to restrict the voting of Negroes.

Tests to Bar Negroes.

The constitutional provision is that which was written into the basic law of North Carolina nearly 30 years ago as a result of the successful "white supremacy" campaign led by Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.], who is now facing a fight for renomination because of his bolt of the Democratic national ticket in 1928.

Included in the provision of the state constitution are both a literacy test and a "grandfather" or descendant's clause. The literacy test which is still in effect is similar to provisions in constitutions of other southern states which have met with the approval of the Supreme court as not in violation of the 14th and 15th amendments.

The "grandfather" clause, which lapsed in 1908, is similar to a provision of the Oklahoma constitution which was held to be unconstitutional by the Supreme court. No case affecting the North Carolina constitution has ever reached the Supreme court.

Literacy Test Upheld.

The effect of the "grandfather" clause was to permit the whites to vote during the period from 1902 to 1908, regardless of whether they could read and write, provided a father or grandfather was entitled to vote in 1867. Inasmuch as no Negroes had the right to vote in 1867 it meant disfranchisement of illiterate Negroes between those dates as well as since that time.

The Supreme court in a case involving the Mississippi constitution held that a provision making ability to read any section of the constitution and understand it, applying equally to whites and Negroes, was not in conflict with the federal constitution.

In a decision by the Supreme court in 1914 in an Oklahoma case it was held that a literacy test was valid and not contrary to the fifteenth amendment when applied to all and was no discrimination on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude, but that a "grandfather" clause was invalid because its clear purpose and practical effect was to discriminate against the Negroes.

Disfranchises Half Million.

The court also at the same term held invalid a "grandfather" clause contained in the statutes of Maryland fixing the qualification of voters for the city of Annapolis. The court in 1926 held to be invalid a part of the Texas primary law which specifically prohibited participaton of Negroes in a Democratic primary.

Because of the literacy test in the North Carolina constitution, only about 10,000 Negroes have qualified to vote. It is estimated that there are about 500,000 other Negroes of voting age in the state. The electorate includes about 700,000 whites. If the penalty provision of the fourteenth amendment were enforced it would mean a reduction of the North Carolina representation in congress by about one-half.

ABYSSINIA'S KING WINS WAR; CALLS SELF EMPEROR

Ras Taffari Assumes Full Power.

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

ADDIS ABEBA, Abyssinia, April 6.—Ras Taffari Makonnen, who was crowned negus, or king, in 1928, has declared himself emperor following the crushing defeat of the revolting tribes last Monday and the death on the following day of the Empress Zauditu [Judith], co-ruler, whose fourth husband, Ras Gugsa Wali, was killed at the head of the rebels.

Ras Taffari's proclamation has been received quietly here, although no date has been set for his coronation. The body of the empress has been placed in a mausoleum without funeral ceremony. A single bomb turned the tide of a fierce battle between the two armies, each numbering about 50,000 men, according to information received here. It was dropped by André Maillet, French pilot of one of Ras Taffari's airplanes, and killed Ras Gugsa Wali. The leaderless rebels promptly dispersed.

Use Ancient Weapons.

Swarming streets attested to the great excitement created by the first news of the battle, fought 300 miles north of here. Ras Taffari left the palace with great display and proceeded to the airdrome, where he bestowed upon Pilot Maillet the highest Ethiopion honor.

The revolt of Ras Gugsa Wali was an attempt to regain for the empress the throne which Ras Taffari seized in 1916, when he deposed and imprisoned the emperor, Lij Yasu, heir of Menelik II.

No quarter was given by either side in the battle, fought by tribesmen with ancient weapons and led by feudal chieftains. The contrast was striking, when, over this ancient setting, appeared the most modern weapon of warfare — an airplane — which struck terror to the rebels.

Taffari Is Supreme.

In the capital, shops were closed some days ago and the legations guarded, while the picturesque soldiers of the king's guard patrolled the streets. After the empress died in a palace surrounded by the king's guards, the shops were reopened.

The revolt was a protest against the introduction here by Ras Taffari of modern methods and was fostered by Coptic priests. The end of the revolt means that Ras Taffari is supreme and that his measures, including the construction of the Tsana dam by the J. G. White company, will go forward.

SOUTH SIDE BOMB BLAST IS LAID TO BOOTLEG RIVALRY

A bomb wrecked the front entrance of Patrick Gallagher's coffee shop and soft drink parlor at 5536 South Halsted street early yesterday. The place was closed when the explosion occurred, and nobody was hurt, but an estimated damage of $1,000 was done the one story frame building. The police found a quantity of beer and whisky in the place, and attributed the bomb to rivalry among bootleggers.

27TH MAN SLAIN IN NEW YORK'S 1930 GANG WARS

Drug and Rum Mobs Fight While Police Reminisce.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—A dapper little man in a brown suit sat humped over a steering wheel like a racing driver last night. He was John Imperale, gangster, but he was not going anywhere in his automobile for he had a bullet hole in his head.

Imperale belonged to the narcotic mob and his death this morning in a Brooklyn hospital bed was relatively unimportant. The reason he has a paragraph at the top of this story is because John Imperale was gangland's twenty-seventh victim in the metropolitan area since Jan. 1.

It's Done Quietly in Most Cases.

Most of gangland's readjustment work in the five boroughs has been done quietly. There has been a neat spacing of "jobs" and only on one occasion has it been found necessary to eliminate two overly ambitious racketeers on the same night. There has been two or three brief flareups in the newspapers but the police department always has acted promptly to provide more interesting data for the crime writers—stories about the gangs having been broken up years ago in this city.

In the meanwhile the alcohol ring, the beer runners and the narcotic mobs have been settling their own unemployment and territorial problems by a process of inconspicuous elimination.

How They Die in New York.

The manner of passing of these 27 gangsters as revealed by police reports provides an interesting sidelight on the New York technique. Footnotes on the deaths of several of the leaders follow:

Jim Tinerello, high in the "alky" world, died behind a pine barricade in a lumber yard and was buried in a bronze coffin.

William "Baron" Simpson, old time rough and tumble fighter, stepped out of an East river alleway into a pound of lead.

Guiseppe "Clutching Hand" Pirraine, who aspired to alcohol kingdoms beyond the Brooklyn bridge, stepped from his doorway to fill his lungs with spring air and got them filled with bullets.

Frankie Dunn, the beer baron, stood too long on the sidewalk admiring his new purchased ten story office building and a machine gun in a passing automobile mowed him down.

Killed in bed, 2.
Killed in lumber yard, 1.
Killed in doorway while leaving homes, 4.
Killed in "conference," 3.

Nine of the local gangland's executions took place during the last six weeks in the quiet borough of Brooklyn. The racketeering privileges on the docks still is an unsettled problem and the narcotic murder yesterday indicates that there still are some wrinkles in the trade to be ironed out across the river.

Three Informers Dead.

In the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx the alcohol and beer trade appears stable, but gang warfare has accounted for the deaths of three "informers" or state witnesses in less than twelve weeks, and two "mob" killings have been traced to gambling rackets. At least four of the Manhattan gang murders had an indirect connection with the speakeasy trade.

The common or private homicide rate has been climbing almost as rapidly as the gang killings, and many of them if not actually linked with gangland are on the edge. During January and February there were thirty homicides in New York City.

LET LABORATORY FIND CRIME CURE, SCIENTIST SAYS

Suggests Plant to Solve Juvenile Problem.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Science is eager to test out its alchemy on Chicago's crime. Psychiatry and psychology can squeeze gold from the dross of the "back o' the yards" area, the district that for thirty years or more has consistently fostered criminals and produced annually a new crop of gangsters and hoodlums, the Chicago Forum audience at the Adelphi theater was informed yesterday by Dr. Clifford R. Shaw.

As sociologist for the Institute for Juvenile Research, Dr. Shaw was called in by the forum to contribute his viewpoint to a symposium on what should be done for Chicago. Yesterday's program, which closed the season for the forum, also included the analyses and suggestions of Andrew A. Bruce, professor at the Northwestern university law school, formerly chief justice of the Supreme court of North Dakota, and of A. Eustace Haydon, professor of comparative religion at the University of Chicago.

Gets Facts on Crime.

Dr. Shaw's intensive studies of juvenile delinquency in Chicago have given him a mass of material concerning conditions that breed crime, much of which is included in his book, "Delinquency Areas" published a few months ago by the University of Chicago press.

His suggested social experiment for dealing with the crime situation in Chicago was the most illuminating solution for removing the fundamentals of delinquency, leading to adult crime, that was presented by any of the six scientists participating in yesterday's program or that of the previous Sunday.

"It may be surprising to you," he began, "to learn that in some districts in Chicago delinquency is traditional. It is expected of the boy in good standing with his fellows. Delinquency is largely a matter of mob behavior. I can show you on the map hanging here, showing the city of Chicago, how these black dots, representing the home addresses of delinquent boys, center thickly in certain districts and thin out to nothing as we proceed from the loop into residential areas.

Delinquency Rate Is High.

"This area, where the black dots are so thick, represents the area known as 'back o' the yards'—an area that is especially fitted for such an experiment as I want to detail for you. It is physically isolated—by the stockyards, the railroads, and so forth. It has a consistent history of breeding crime—we have the rate of high delinquency there running clear back to 1900. In this area there are 1,600 boys between ten and seventeen, of whom 450 to 500 are delinquent year by year. It has produced some of Chicago's most notorious gangsters and criminals.

"I suggest that in this area we set up an administrative center for our psychiatrists and psychologists, with a sufficient staff of properly trained men. Not an elaborate plant, but just some place where we can hold conference and interviews with the boys, and enough workers to assure the proper amount of individualized attention to the cases. The effects would depend largely upon concentration of effort, sustained contacts with the boys over a period of time, and treatment adapted to each individual personality.

His Plan for Crime Cure.

"We would make intensive case studies of the unadjusted boys. We would get in touch with the boys' clubs, Boy Scouts, and such agencies, whose help would be invaluable in setting up centers of interest for the lads. We would establish an employment bureau to secure work for as many as possible. We would seek the coöperation of the merchants, the politicians, and perhaps even the gangsters of the district.

"I am firmly convinced that in the period of one year, with such an experiment, and dealing with the child, where delinquency starts, we would be able to show a definite drop in the rate of criminality in this area, and that it would drop year by year if the efforts were continued until 'back o' the yards' became an area really respectable."

ACT TO ELIMINATE RACKETEERS IN PHOTO BUSINESS

Steps to eliminate racketeers from the ranks of photographers in Chicago were announced yesterday by the Cook County Professional Photographers' association. Membership in the organization will be open to all professional photographers but new members will be admitted only after their business methods have been approved by the membership committee and their petitions voted on by the organization as a whole.

E. N. Beecher was elected president of the association, other officers being C. P. Hanson, vice president; W. J. Herring, secretary; S. D. Von der Heide, treasurer, and Leo Steffens, Irving P. Sinay, J. Neff, and J. W. Risteau, chairmen of standing committees.

Definite plans for action against "third degree sales methods," "high pressure artists," and free sittings through newspaper, radio, and mail advertising were proposed, and the association voted to affiliate with the Better Business bureau as a means of procuring quick action in regaining public confidence.

FOES OF NANKING MENACE HANKOW, CHINA'S CHICAGO

Second Rebel Army Moves to Seize Railroad.

PEIPING, China, April 6.—(AP)—The politico-military situation apparently was rapidly approaching a climax today, with extensive war preparations being made by both the Nanking government and Yen Tsi-shan, governor of Shansi province.

Lists of militarists expected to support or oppose the Nanking government are appearing daily in the vernacular press.

Rebels Outnumber Nanking.

Feng Yu-Hsiang, formerly minister of war for the Nanking government and well known as "the Christian general," having assumed the position of commander-in-chief in the Shansi field, observers calculate the combined forces of the northerners at two or three times the man power controlled by Nanking.

The Nanking government, however, has an army with more modern equipment and many troops well trained during long instruction by former German officers. The exact force that each side will be able to muster and how they will be distributed continued indefinite today.

The force under Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang is slowly advancing toward Hankow, the "Chicago of China," while Shantung province is expected to be the goal of Gen. Yen Hsi-shan's forces. Another anti-Nanking force is advancing along the railway toward Suchow, in Kiangsu province where Nanking massed the bulk of its forces.

Chiang Raises Funds.

Except for Shantung, north China today has been taken over, wholly by Gens. Feng and Yen, while President Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking armies, has returned to the capital after attending financial conferences in Shanghai. Japanese sources announced that President Chiang had raised nearly ten million Chinese dollars, about $3,500,000, in Shanghai to finance his campaign.

FIRE IN WACKER DRIVE BUILDING.

A fire attributed to crossed electric wires inflicted slight damage in the carpenter shop of the Pure Oil building, on the 24th floor at 35 East Wacker drive yesterday and was extinguished by an automatic sprinkler.

Candidate's Stolen Auto Found Before He Knows It

While Richey V. Graham, candidate for the Democratic nomination for state senator and son-in-law of Anton J. Cermak, was dining with his wife and children in the Midwest Athletic club last night his automobile was stolen from in front of the club. He called the Fillmore street police station by telephone and was advised to come there in person. Graham went to the station in a taxicab and found his car awaiting him there. John Ruane, 18 years old, 2706 West End avenue, had been arrested while driving in the car five minutes before.

PARIS SEES NEW BRITISH WAR AID OFFER AS 'VAGUE'

French Cabinet to Study Formula Today.

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 6.—Foreign Minister Aristide Briand today submitted to Premier Andre Tardieu the latest formula agreed on with the British as a security pact for France in exchange for a reduction in the French naval tonnage. The text will be laid before the French cabinet tomorrow.

The draft is the 22nd revised formula prepared during the last three weeks and deals with military sanctions—land, air, and sea forces—that Great Britain is ready to undertake after the council of the league of nations determines who is the aggressor in any future war.

Clarifies Article 16.

It clarifies Article 16 of the league convenant and is based on Annex F of the Locarno treaty, which itself interpreted to Germany what measures members of the league would be committed to do, in case hostilities were threatened.

The price of Great Britain, for according this guarantee to France, is a reduction of the Paris government's naval program from 713,000 tons in 1936 to 550,000 tons, with maximum of 52,700 tons of submarines, instead of the 120,000 tons envisaged, and the 96,000 tons in commission in the French navy at the present time.

This limits France to three super submarines in the 3,000 ton class for cruising operations to its distant colonies.

It is learned that Premier Tardieu is disappointed at the ambiguity of the newest formula, which, it is stated, still lacks precise pledges regarding Great Britain's responsibilities and activities in case of another war, but defines more closely the London attitude toward commitments, than annex F did at Locarno.

"Better than Nothing."

Premier Tardieu and M. Briand expect that Prerident Doumergue and the cabinet will endorse the text as better than nothing, but doubt exists whether the government will risk parliament's attack by surrendering more than 150,000 tons of sea power and halving the submarine strength in return for what is called a vague pledge.

It is realized here there is also a possibility that Prime Minister MacDonald may be forced to withdraw or modify even the abstract promises embodied in the formula, if the majority of the British cabinet veto the scheme tomorrow, or the campaign in the house of commons against taking on additional obligations bursts out as threatened.

GRANDI WILL LEAVE NAVAL PARLEY FOR ITALY NEXT FRIDAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 6.—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi will leave London next Friday for Rome. The conduct of Italian affairs at the naval conference will be placed in the hands of minor delegates. He will probably be accompanied by the minister of marine, Admiral Siriani. This does not mean that the Italian delegation is bolting the conference. Both ministers have been absent for three months and their presence is required in Rome for budget discussions, which it is hoped will be wound up before Easter.

Discussions continue here in political circles and by the press over the eventuality of Italy repudiating its responsibilities as a guarantor of the Locarno pact, in view of the naval parley developments between France and England, with a consequent cooling of relations with Italy in England.

"Prime Minister MacDonald might as well give up his mystic hopes of Italy renouncing its claim to parity," says Mussolini's paper, Populo Italia. "If the conference falls and if a four power pact is signed Italy will not be without friends internationally."

TWO BOASTFUL YOUTHS QUIZZED ON TWO KILLINGS

Entrapped by their own idle boasting, Edward Englehardt, 20 years old, 1372 East 55th street, and Walter Marine, 21 years old, 1200 East 55th street, were returned last night from Ottawa, Ill., to the detective bureau by Lieut. John Norton and his squad to face interrogation concerning the unsolved murders of two young women.

Hiking downstate in search of employment Saturday night, the two youths hitched a ride at midnight from Sam Sullivan, 28 years old, a Negro of Streator, to whom they boasted of their exploits as robbers and to whom they darkly hinted knowledge of the strangulation last Tuesday of Mrs. Charlotte Mildred Helsing in her apartment at 5830 West Lake street, as well as the bathtub murder in May, 1927, of Mrs. Carl Wood.

The Negro dropped his passengers in Ottawa, drove on to Streator, and there gave the police information which resulted in the arrest of the boys by Police Chief Maurice Hart of Ottawa. Although Lieut. Norton became convinced, upon questioning the prisoners, that their knowledge of the murders was gleaned from newspapers and that their boasts were calculated merely to awe the Negro, he decided to return them here for a special show-up of witnesses in the Helsing case.

And So We've Stayed Young-Minded—and Sponsored Youthful Fashions WE Know—and YOU Know—It's Smart to Be Young—This Easter!

For STREET—we sponsor the PEPLUM—because it takes away the staidness of the tailored suit and gives the jacket a soft little flare that's most becoming! This one (above, left) is Pirate blue wool crepe—and has a blouse. It's in the Ensemble Shop! Sizes 14-18—$49.50.

For Casual DAYTIME Wear—we think there's nothing so easy to wear as the BOLERO—just because it makes one line—where the hipline and the waistline were two lines before! And we like the very brief bolero of this pin-dotted silk crepe frock (center, left) because it's a separate jacket. Sizes 14-18—$39.50.

Fourth Floor

For SPECTATOR SPORTS—the PEPLUM does different things! For instance, in the silk crepe sports suit (center, right) it appears to have flared out unexpectedly from the narrow belt—and has a swagger air. And don't you love the crepe blouse with its one-sided jabot (it has short sleeves, too!). Sizes 14-20—$29.50.

Third Floor.

For ACTIVE SPORTS—the same 1930 flared effect of the peplum—and the becoming smoothness of line that the bolero gives to frocks is accomplished in the tailoring of the new imported melton riding-habit. It's as different from the "stiff-tailored" riding habit as anything could be! Sizes 14-42—$39.50.

How would YOU like to have 35,000 daughters to DRESS?

You wouldn't have the TIME??"*

You couldn't AFFORD it??"

How would you EVER PLEASE them??

You have a perfect right to your frustrated answer—

BUT . . . . . we DO it . . . and we LIKE the job!

It does take time, and it does take scheming, not to mention the plotting and planning! For you're right when you say that these modern daughters are quite some persons to keep up with.

But it's all in getting their stride; their point of view; in knowing their likes and dislikes. We've had to do all this in a big way (remember, we said we'd dressed 35,000, and we mean this Spring!). In fact, we, in common with the rest of the world, threw our middle-aged attitudes to the winds long ago. And we're doing very nicely in our brisk, modern trot.

Our fourth floor is buzzing with youngsters and oldsters these days because young-minded Chicagoans have found this a happy hunting ground for just the costumes they've hoped for. And another fact, dear to their hearts and purses, they can make a little allowance go a long way in

THE WATERWAY APPROVED

The house committee on rivers and harbors has given unanimous approval to the appropriation of $7,500,000 from the federal treasury for the completion of the Illinois waterway. Dispatches from Washington indicate that the appropriation is likely to encounter no considerable opposition now, either in the house or the senate.

The campaign for federal aid has been successful thus far largely as a result of the unremitting efforts of Congressman William E. Hull of Peoria. His accomplishment reflects great credit upon him, particularly as he is at the moment a candidate for reelection. He has chosen to remain in Washington to represent his constituency in a critical matter at a time when most men in his position would find it advisable to return home to canvass for votes.

The favorable action in committee followed the recommendation of the secretary of war, P. J. Hurley. The secretary's recommendation carried with it the support of President Hoover. It was based upon an exhaustive inquiry into the engineering and commercial problems by a board of government engineers and Maj. Gen. Lyttle Brown, chief of the army engineering corps. It was further reinforced by an opinion from Attorney General Mitchell, who passed favorably on the legal issues involved.

The Illinois waterway is the link which will connect the great lakes at Chicago with the Mississippi river. The greater part of the route, from Utica (Starved Rock) to the Mississippi river at Grafton, is provided by the Illinois river, which needs only to be dredged in certain places to provide the nine foot channel desired. For this dredging the federal government has already made appropriations. Between Utica and Lockport a series of locks and dams is in process of construction. For this purpose a bond issue of $20,000,000 was voted by the people of Illinois in the belief that the sum would prove sufficient. It has not, and constitutional difficulties stand in the way of obtaining further appropriations from the state treasury. Above Lockport the waterway was completed in 1900 when water was turned into the drainage canal.

The favorable attitude of the administration at Washington marks a departure from the spirit of opposition and resistance to Illinois' plans which has been manifest for a generation. Perhaps because Chicago did not ask federal aid in building the drainage canal and Illinois did not petition for aid in planning the locks and dams below Lockport, the army engineers, who were left out of the picture, were hostile or, at best, indifferent to the project. They have now been won over to it, which augurs well for the future.

Much satisfaction can be found also in the thought that the early completion of the waterway will serve as a business stimulator for the entire country. The construction of the locks and dams will give employment to hundreds of men and thousands of others will find jobs in building docks and wharves, bridges, roads, railroad sidings and new industrial plants which may be expected to rise along the route. The prospect of federal aid for the waterway should encourage business men particularly in the central states, who are at last offered some prospect of regaining the lost markets on the west coast. Western markets which formerly were supplied from factories in this region were seized by manufacturers along the Atlantic seaboard because of an advantage in freight rates after the Panama canal was opened. This advantage is now to be reduced somewhat by giving the central states a cheap route to the gulf ports. At the same time the interior is to have readier access than before to the raw materials of Latin America and its consuming markets.

The Illinois waterway may prove to be the salvation of the farmers of the central states. America's granary lies farther from the sea than any other great agricultural region in the world. Our farmers have always been obliged to spend an unduly large portion of their income to move their crops to the seaboard for export. That expense is now to be reduced and every penny saved will go to the farmers. Here is the most substantial and certain form of farm relief which is likely to be obtained.

Congress has yet to authorize the appropriation recommended, but the first, and most difficult, hurdle has been taken. If the members of the Illinois delegation continue to press for action they will win out. Their colleagues in congress should be forced to see that no project for internal improvement offers the nation as large a return at a cost so small.

THE LEGISLATURE.

A good many voters who are convinced that prohibitionist legislation in the state, as well as in the nation, is wrong in principle or demoralizing in results, or both, are likely to overlook the opportunity to make their convictions felt in the next legislature. In voting at the primaries tomorrow some will forget to vote for a state senator and state representatives. Some will vote on factional or personal preference. They may not vote for the candidate who will express their will on this issue, and they may thus help to perpetuate at Springfield and in Illinois the influence of organized dry fanaticism, which put our extreme dry statute on the books.

THE TRIBUNE, believing this the outstanding state issue, has undertaken to ascertain for the benefit of voters the stand of every candidate for state senator and for state representative. The full results of this inquiry are published in today's TRIBUNE and every voter, by referring to it, will know how every candidate stands, except those who failed to reply. Among the latter a few doubtless felt their position is so well known that the question did not call for the courtesy of a reply. But in most cases the only reasonable inference is that the candidate has no convictions or does not wish the voters to know what they are. That should eliminate them from consideration by conscientious citizens.

Those candidates who have had the courage and honesty to place themselves on the dry law issue offer the voters of Illinois the only opportunity of responsible and responsive representation and their willingness to have their policy known is a step forward toward freedom from the organized terrorism and coercion which have brought about lawmaking contrary to good judgment and the real spirit of the people of Illinois. The revolt against intolerance is growing and voters should make their protest effective at the polls. The Illinois legislature should more fully represent conviction, not coercion, and it will if voters will send men to Springfield who are willing to have their opinions known.

THE COURT OF THE LEAGUE OR THE LEAGUE COURT.

Former Secretary Kellogg says the common objections that what he calls the world court is a league court, an arm of the league of nations, and a means of entangling us in foreign alliances and disputes are mere shibboleths of political argument. If they are shibboleths in America, they are assumptions abroad, where statesmen and publicists have made no secret of their belief that adherence to the court means our "return to Europe." The court is created by the league, elected by the league, supported by the league, is the "legal adviser" of the league. Its title is the permanent court "of the league," and it will take more evidence than Mr. Kellogg can produce to convince the average man and woman that in spite of all this it is not the league court.

It is precisely because the court is the league's court that all the influences which have favored the reversal of our national policy and our entrance into the European political system are unanimously in favor of our adherence to the so-called world court. Perhaps these enthusiasts do not know what they are talking about. Perhaps the foreign statesmen and publicists do not know what the court is. We think they do. To every American who is jealous to preserve the political independence of the United States their arguments for our entrance into the court are arguments to keep out. This no more means isolation than a refusal to join the British commonwealth of nations or any other political alliance.

Editorial of the Day

THE RECORD.

[New York Times.]

Fortified with carefully prepared charts and tables, Senator Tydings sums up the results of ten years of prohibition. He recites in detail that a cumulative series of facts which has made so strong an impression even on persons originally well inclined to the new system or determined to support it, either in hope that its promised benefits would be realized or, more resignedly, because it is the law. The conclusions which the senator reaches are those of millions of independent observers using their own eyes and reading the daily news. They have seen the widespread corruption of prohibition agents and their genius for homicide; increased and increasing arrests for drunkenness; the federal courts and prisons swamped; more deaths from alcoholism; an ever growing number of seizures of stills and liquor, though the enforcers scarcely pretend to find more than a tenth of the offenders; saloons supplanted by speakeasies; corn sugar baffling the pursuers after their long war with denatured alcohol; the extraordinary demand for grapes.

They know that home brewing is so popular that some states impose a tax on malt extract; or, if certain legislatures have beaten bills for that purpose, it was because dry members were not prepared for such an obvious inference and admission. Even village papers have to record accidents caused by drunken drivers. The social and moral demoralization bred, especially among the young, by prohibition, who that has eyes has not seen? Every day adds to the mass of evidence. With what roseate large millennial promises and prophecies the scheme was ushered in! The country has had time to judge it by its fruits. Public reaction against and disgust with it are expressed clearly, strongly and widely. What is the best its friends have to say for it, the Borahs, Brookharts, Norrises? They lay the blame on the prohibition agency or on some particular official. Get the right men and you will get the right kind of enforcement.

As if the trouble were not in the law but in the men who execute it! What mortal can enforce a law against not only human nature but against Nature herself, mother of fermentation?

SCURVY STILL BOBS UP.

SCURVY has been killed off several times. Nevertheless it continues to bob up. When the juice of limes and lemons came into general use we thought," "That ends scurvy." Few people know that about the only truly compulsory regulations of eating in the history of society were the orders which compelled the use of fruit juices to prevent scurvy. Under the influence, direct and indirect, of that compulsion or prohibition, whatever you choose to call it, old-fashioned scurvy just about disappeared from the more enlightened parts of the world. But some scurvy was left to develop here and there. Then came Hess' valuable little book on scurvy. Again we said, "That makes a day. Tomorrow we will forget scurvy and take up the work of another day."

Then came Hojer, Hanke, Howe, and Eddy telling us that, while there was no longer any of the old kind of scurvy, decaying teeth, bad gums, and pyorrhea were really manifestations of scurvy. Whereupon, for the old-time research workers in scurvy, it was "back to the mines."

If all these disorders are the effects of mild, masked scurvy, diets must be recast. If twice as much fruit juice is required to prevent these tooth manifestations of scurvy as is needed to prevent the joint symptoms and other classical symptoms of the disorder, we must write new specifications for our menus.

It has been proved that eating of oranges and lemons will prevent scurvy. If twice the usually required dose is necessary to prevent decay of teeth and to prevent and cure pyorrhea and bleeding gums, a pretty severe demand will be written down against the supply of oranges and lemons. While but few people have suspicions of scurvy, decay of teeth and pyorrhea between them are nearly universal. We must find some other foods to help out.

Dr. W. H. Eddy has been at work on a part of that problem. He finds bananas and string beans to be highly effective. That helps considerably. The experiment station record reports that Dr. Tso, a Chinaman, finds cabbage puree, turnip juice, and cabbage soup valuable. The vegetables he used were of the Chinese variety, and the methods of cooking may not be the same as ours.

It is known that cooking affects the vitamins which prevent scurvy to an exceptional degree. Cooking with soda rapidly and effectively destroys this vitamin. Prolonged cooking is very harmful to it. Cabbage cooked a few minutes contains the principle which protects against scurvy. Cabbage cooked but a few minutes retains much of it. Raw cabbage is still richer in it. Tomato juice is a valuable source of supply. The juice of canned tomatoes is rich in it.

Lime juice should be restudied, making use of these newer methods.

ILLS FROM WRIST WATCH.

M. I. S. writes: The other day I noticed that one of your correspondents was being troubled by an inflammation on the wrist, due to wearing a watch. I find that if a square of adhesive tape is put on back of the watch it does not irritate the wrist.

E. T. A. writes: Can eczema that has been caused by wearing a dyed neckpiece or by dyeing hair be cured?

REPLY.

Yes. As a rule such eruptions get well spontaneously when the cause is removed.

THERE IS SOME DANGER.

Mrs. L. B. writes: Is there any danger that a fibroid tumor will develop into cancer?

THE CENSUS QUESTIONS.

Chicago, April 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there any legal justification for the questions as listed in the paper to be asked by census takers? 2. If so, under what statute are they authorized. 3. How did the senators and representatives of this state vote when the bill was before congress? 4. Since no questions of the kind were asked during any previous census report, I am anxious to know how this was put over. C. V. B.

1. Yes there is. 2. General census legislation. 3. There was practically no contest on the matter. 4. The matter is controlled by regulations. The answers are kept private, so that we see no reason for excitement over the matter.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

ANYHOW, IT WAS GREAT WHILE IT LASTED!

Yessir, after tomorrow our mail box will look like a last year's bird's nest. No more big, fat, important looking letters. The candidates will stop writing to us and all we'll get out of the mail box will be circulars about used cars and we-can-cure-you medicines. The candidates will not only stop writing to us—doggone, they'll even stop speaking to us, and the old inferiority complex will come marching back again with its hair in a braid.

But it's been great to know that for a few minutes anyhow we were valued as a true friend, a peerless citizen, a man whose support was equivalent to election.

Yes, we all got to feeling pretty important the way the candidates wrote to us. We began to wonder why we hadn't been elected President some time ago. But tomorrow it will be all over. Then instead of letters from statesmen that swelled us all up and made us think that our importance to society, the world and civilization in general had at last been discovered, from now on we'll just get cold, unfeeling communications from persons in trade asking us to come across with that seven bucks and thirty-five cents for groceries that's been owing nine months and the installment on the radio and the piano and the Persian cat.

Sic transit gloria—This way out—As far as we go!

COMMENT.

Surely some meaning hides behind all this:
The working, sleeping, playing of our days;
The fears, the hopes, the sorrows, or the kiss
Of lips that curve to frame again: "Always."
Are there dénouements secreted within
Sunlight through stained glass windows or the hush
Of hills and lakes or in the ceaseless din
Of cities in this never-ending crush
Of hours? Vague deities give no reply
Despite the fact that I have prayed—and mocked.
I've lived and I suppose that I shall die
With both my ears perpetually cocked.

Surely some meaning hides behind all this.
Perhaps I'll find it in another kiss.

AND, AFTER ALL, we're just nominating one senator from a single state. From the dust that's been raised and the din of battle we can't get over the idea that here in Illinois we are choosing tomorrow the entire senate and house of representatives, the President of the United States for the next twenty years, and all the judges of the Supreme court. To say nothing of permanently deciding the fate of the 18th amendment, the naval parley, farm relief, and the name of the new planet.

Tha Duke an' the B. and C. Are Thinkin' of Lilac Heights.

Dick: Well! She's nutz again. Whadda ya think tha B. and C. has got in her noodle now? Nothin else but that we shood quit flat huntin an buy a house in tha subburbs. Tha only way I cood do this act wood be to buy one from a blind guy without any arms an then shove used razor blades in his pockets in liew of dough. Seems a real estater calls her up an says he's got exactly what we want out in Lilac Heights. After tha Mama explains tha location I'll be damned if it aint a new name for Roundhouse Creek. Ennyway, when tha B. and C. complains to tha agent that it might cost too much to run tha place he fills her up with a lot of bologny as to how we could save by raising all our own vegetables, keep chickens, an plant fruit trees. If he'd known what a dumb Dora he was talkin to he cood of included raisin Chow dogs, keepin bees an breedin goats. You'd be surprised to know how much me or she don't know about bein farmers. When I asks her how she'd plant tomatoes she tells me ya poke a hole in tha dirt an throw in a cupple dos. seeds. Maybe she's right at that but she got soreazell when I tole her that maybe if she threw assorted seeds in that maybe combination salads wood come up. Tha only savings I can see is to maybe plant some Juniper berry trees as the druggists are chargin like hell fer tha stuff these days. During tha storm lass week it took me 7 hrs to get ta work an we only live 3 miles from tha loop. I gotta picture of me comin in from Lilac Heights in 2 weeks' time an then having tha boss tell me to call it my next summer's vacation. Tha agent also advises that tha gutters are all in. This is a redeeming feature on account her relations have been known to sleep in 'em occasionally. Also, there's a Community House where women can sew while there each findin out how much tha other ones husband is making. It's also explained that after a few years we wood have a nice equity. This being a new word to her she inquires as to what it was an as long as we aint gonna be commuters I tell her it's a actors association an whadda ya think, now she's decided that as soon as we get out there she's goin in for amateur theatricals. After me askin tha Mama what about taxes I get informed that we woodn' hafta worry as she understood they was thrown in with tha house, an if ya ask me, I'm here to say that tha day there thrown in will be tha day that we're thrown out. If your ever out Lilac Heights way look us up. DUKE BAKRAK.

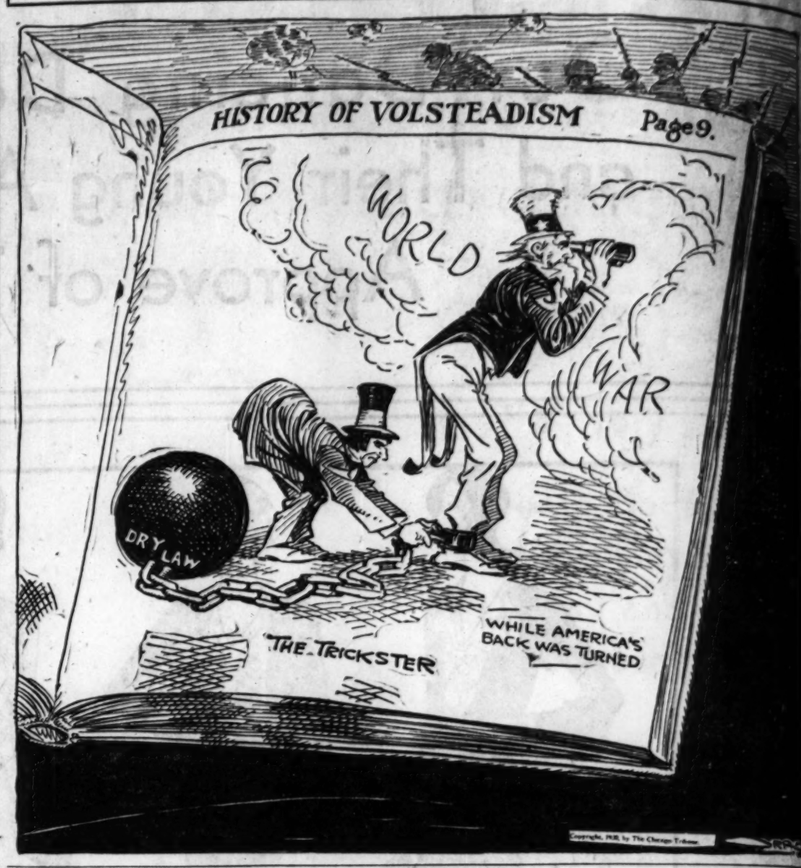
PROHIBITION



FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1865.

BURKESVILLE, Va.—April 5, 10 p. m.—Gen. Sheridan has headed off the enemy. Lieut. Gen. Grant received the following dispatch from Sheridan while on his way to this point: "I sent Gen. Davis' brigade this morning around on my left flank. He captured at Farmer's Cross Roads five pieces of artillery, about ten hundred wagons, and eight or nine battle flags and a number of prisoners. The 2d army corps is now coming up. I wish you were here yourself. I feel confident of capturing the rebel army of Northern Virginia if we exert ourselves. I see no escape for Lee. I will put all my cavalry out on our left flank except McKenzie, who is now on the right." After reading the dispatch Gen. Grant proceeded at once to Sheridan's headquarters at Jetersville. He requested that Gen. Sheridan's message be forwarded to Secretary Stanton and that the secretary be informed that the 6th corps without doubt reached Sheridan's position within an hour or two after the dispatch was written.

NEW YORK.—A gentleman from Richmond states that the best informed there believe Jeff Davis has fled to Georgia and will attempt a reestablishment of his government at Augusta.

NEW ORLEANS.—The combined attack of the Union army and navy on Mobile has commenced. On March 30 and 31 fleet and troops attacked Fort Bradley, the main defense of the city. No results of the fighting are known, except that the monitor Milwaukee was sunk by a torpedo.

CHICAGO.—In a few days we shall issue an evening edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. It is mainly intended for sections of the country at considerable distance from Chicago, such as the states of Iowa and Minnesota, the Lake Superior region, southern Illinois, northern Missouri, Kansas, and Nebraska.

APRIL 7, 1900.

CHICAGO.—From now until the close of the bicycle riding season THE TRIBUNE will print on Saturdays and Sundays "Good Roads Bulletins," giving the latest and most reliable information on condition of the highways. The macadamized roads of Lake county, Ind., are in excellent condition for this time of year. The Fort Sheridan road is fairly good, except about Highland Park. The Wheeling course is fair as far as Libertyville. Washington boulevard to Austin is fairly good. Downers Grove run is hardly in condition for riding.

LONDON.—Another "unfortunate occurrence" is reported from South Africa. Lord Roberts announced the surrender of another batch of 500 troops at Reddersburg.

CHICAGO.—Strike of employés in the electric power houses of the Chicago City Railway company at the rush hour last night halted all street car traffic on that company's lines for three hours.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 7, 1920.

CHICAGO.—The city hall won decisively in the aldermanic elections covering ten wards. It accomplished the defeat of five sitting aldermen who had the backing of the Municipal Voters' league and who had incurred the Thompson hostility.

CHICAGO.—Joseph Manne, 5 feet tall and weighing 120 pounds, a "song booster" of good repute, knocked down with his fist and killed Travers Walsh, 5900 Magnolia avenue, when Walsh and two companions accosted and insulted Mrs. Manne, who was walking with her husband in the loop. Manne gave himself up, and Capt. Morgan A. Collins told him to come back for the inquest.

BERLIN.—Though the occupation of Frankfort, Darmstadt, and Hanau was predicted by the French press it came as a surprise here. The bitterness was very great among the people as well as in government circles when the news arrived.

PARIS.—Gen. Dougette, commanding the occupying forces in German cities, announced that the troops will be withdrawn as soon as the reichswehr evacuates the neutral zone of fifty kilometers on the right bank of the Rhine as laid down in the peace treaty.

BUILDINGS IN THE PARKS.

Chicago, April 1.—At last Chicago is waking up to the fact that the generous politicians on the south park board are giving away the lake front and park land to private institutions and individuals. Perhaps the public sentiment is more in favor of donating a section of the park to a baby sanitarium than to an armory, but neither has a legitimate place in a municipal park.

The new outer drive, too, has suffered from the patronage of the south park board. Constructed at much expense to the taxpayers, the newly made shore land was intended as a playground and an outlet for the overcongested city. The Chicago Plan pictures miles of unobstructed lake shore, with trees, shrubs, and flowers, to make our lake front the most beautiful spot in the world.

But what has actually happened? The stadium was the first nuisance located on the newly made land. The Shedd aquarium, cutting off the lake view in one of its prettiest points, was a close second. The Max Adler planetarium got another section of the lake front. Now the Art institute and the Yacht club want a block or two for their purposes. And so, piece by piece, the lake land is given away by the kind gentlemen of the south park board.

R. A. JORDAN.

LEGISLATIVE VOTERS' LEAGUE.

Chicago, April 3.—In reply to the inquiry of Mr. James Garretson of Hamilton, Ill., about the Legislative Voters' league published in your column today, permit me to say that the league was organized in 1902 to secure better representation for the public in the legislature. Leaders in the movement were George E. Cole, who was then president of the Citizens' Association of Chicago; Walter L. Fisher, John H. Hamline, Walter Clyde Jones, and Judge Murray F. Tuley. Among the downstate men who urged the need of such an organization to combat evil conditions at Springfield were Lawrence Y. Sherman and Judge Samuel Alschuler.

Mr. Cole served as president of the league during the first five years of its existence. He was succeeded by Clifford W. Barnes, who served for sixteen years. Mr. Barnes is now at the head of the Chicago Sunday Evening club. The third president of the league was Francis E. Manierre, well known real estate man, who served for four years and whom I succeeded.

Among the 23 members of the board of directors of the league are former presidents of the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Chicago Bar association. At present only two of the directors of the league are downstate men. They are Roy C. Ingersoll of Galesburg, a manufacturer, and A. Philip Smith, lawyer, of Rockford. A large number of well known citizens in the various districts of the state give the league extremely valuable help in its investigation of legislative candidates.

The work of the Legislative Voters' league is financed this year by contributions from about 700 public spirited citizens who regard its activities as worth while. The aims of the league are defined in its articles of incorporation as follows:

"The object of the league shall be to promote good government through the agency of the state legislature:

"1. By assisting the public to form a correct judgment concerning the work and character of the members of the legislature.

"2. By aiding in the nomination and election of desirable legislators, and in retaining their services as long as possible.

"3. By furnishing the public and members of the legislature with exact information concerning the scope and purpose of proposed legislation.

POLITICAL SIGNS

Chicago, April 4.—As I understand it, a city ordinance forbids the placing of signs or banners on poles in our streets. Yesterday I was visiting in the 19th and 30th wards and had to ask passersby the names of the streets, as the street names were covered so completely by politicians' names on signs that I could not see them, and there these signs, unsightly as they are to the general public, remain flopping in the wind for months.

Why could not these obstructions be placed on other poles at least? Or do the politicians think we will notice their names better if we have to look behind their signs to find out which street we are on? A VOTER.

PUBLIC HOARDINGS.

Chicago, April 2.—Why should not the city erect, as other cities do, public hoardings of an artistic character for political posters and other public announcements that require billboard treatment? Candidates with small means cannot afford to buy regular billboard or large newspaper space.

EDWARD L. BURCHARD.

THE SALE OF FIREARMS.

Chicago, April 4.—I was a voluntary witness at the coroner's inquest Wednesday, April 1. Testimony was brought out that firearms found at the scene of a murder were purchased indirectly through Taman Bros. These firearms were sold in full accordance with the laws. It is unfortunate that these firearms found a channel for which they were not intended. The fact that decent citizens carry firearms does not class them as gangsters any more than a cash register makes a thief honest. They are both used for protection. It is not so long ago when firearms were sold everywhere and were displayed, and even offered at bargain prices in the city of Chicago and there was less crime; maybe it's the prohibition of firearms that causes this. Who knows?

BENJAMIN TAMAR.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ECONOMY.

Chicago, April 4.—I notice the chief of the fire department is doing a lot of crying for more money. Why does he not use to better advantage what he does have; i. e., why is he building such elaborate fire stations? He would build three for what he is now spending on two. Why is he putting up those new red electric signs outside of the fire stations? They surely have nothing to advertise. R. H. K.

HAWKS GLIDES 2,869 MILES TO NEW YORK CITY

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—Capt. Frank M. Hawks, holder of two transcontinental airplane speed records, crossed the finish line exactly on time in his 2,869 mile glider flight from San Diego, Cal., to New York today, when he soared 4,500 feet over the old Van Cortlandt mansion at 4 p. m., and cut loose from the towing aircraft.

In a series of spirals and S turns, he glided to a perfect landing in Van Cortlandt park sixteen minutes later before more than 15,000 persons who had awaited his arrival through an alternating drizzle and heavy rain.

The veteran flyer appeared on the northern horizon shortly before 4 o'clock. Airplanes from the army and from surrounding airports were idling over the park.

Waggles Glider Wings.

The strange aerial train slowly grew larger in the view of the crowd, and a large Ford tri-motored monoplane maneuvered into position near it. Hawks was seen to waggle the wings of his glider and bank into a turn away from the swift east wind as his towing airplane bounded ahead like a bird released and headed for the Newark airport.

Hawks continued to glide out over the Hudson river. He even appeared to be gaining in altitude as he soared over Riverdale and South Yonkers. After three minutes he turned east again into the wind and started his slow descent in a wide series of steep and flat banks.

With a final twirl and wabble Hawks skimmed over the heads of the crowd and touched his glider's wheel within fifteen feet of the white hat and slid along the ground at about thirty-five miles an hour. Rolling almost to the limit of the runway, he finally came to a stop directly before the waiting reception committee.

Stimulate Public Interest.

Hawks said the only reason he had made the flight was to stimulate public interest in the new art of gliding. His glider was specially designed for the flight and a pilot, J. D. (Duke) Jernigan, did the towing in one of the fleet of planes owned by the Texas Oil corporation. The only passenger on the trip was one of the two brothers who designed and built the glider, Warren Franklin of Michigan.

The flight was made in stages varying from 290 to 710 miles each day. It was started last Sunday from San Diego and stops at night were made at Tucson, Ariz.; Sweetwater, Tex.; Tulsa, Okla.; East St. Louis, Ill.; Columbus, O.; Buffalo, and New York. Noon stops were made each day.

AIR MAIL SERVICE TO SOUTH AMERICA WILL BE SPEEDED UP

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—The inauguration on April 26 of a seven day air mail service between New York City and Buenos Aires and Montevideo was announced today by Assistant Postmaster General Glover, in charge of air mail.

It now takes 11 days for an air mail letter mailed in New York to reach either of these South American cities. The four day cut in time is due to the establishment of night flying from New York to Miami and the saving of an entire day in service through the Panama canal.

The fast service is to be put into effect, Glover said, by the Pan-American Airways system, which has the contract for carrying the mails to Mexico and Central and South American cities, especially those on the western coast.

The new service, he said, is expected to result in increased postal business.

TITLED CHICAGO DIVORCEE TO WED BRITON SHE SHOT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 6.—Raymond Vincent de Trafford, brother of Capt. Sir Humphrey de Trafford, and Countess de Janze, the former Alice Silverthorne of Chicago, are to be married soon, according to reports here.

Mr. De Trafford, member of an aristocratic English family, was shot and seriously wounded by the countess as he was bidding her farewell at the railway station in Paris, March 26, 1927. She then shot herself, and for some time both were near death. Upon her recovery Countess de Janze was found guilty of the shooting by the Paris correctional court. She was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and fined $4, with what is known in French law as "sursis"—the sentence not to be put into effect so long as the behavior of the guilty party remains satisfactory. Through the clemency of President Doumergue both the fine and sentence were erased from the French criminal records last year.

Previous to the shooting the countess had left her husband and two children, in an effort to secure a divorce from the count, so that she might marry De Trafford. In July, 1928, the Count de Janze announced that his marriage had been annulled by a Vatican decree. He obtained a civil divorce on Paris March 23, 1929.

THREE KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH AT HAYS, KANSAS

Flames Prevent Attempt at Rescue.

Hays, Kas., April 6.—(AP)—Three persons were killed late today in an airplane crash at the airport one mile west of here. The victims were Leslie Marshall, 34, of Hays, the pilot; Orville Herbert, 20, and Melvin Ridgeway, 20, both of Ellis, Kas., passengers.

The plane crashed in a tailspin from an altitude of approximately 500 feet. When the biplane struck the ground flames burst from the fuselage and the bodies were burned greatly.

Airport attendants said the pilot, on returning to the airport, had gone into a "wing-over" and the ship failed to come out of the turn. They said Marshall apparently misjudged his ship's speed in the downward wind current. The pilot had taken the two students for a flight over Hays.

The pilot is survived by his widow and six children.

Two Dead; Third Dying.

Tilden, Neb., April 6.—(AP)—Two youthful aviators were killed near here this afternoon and a third so seriously injured that he is not expected to live, when a plane in which they were riding crashed from a height of 500 feet. Within view of Gov. Weaver, who was officiating at the dedication of a state game preserve several rods distant.

Several thousand persons attending the ceremony also witnessed the crash, which occurred when the plane went into a tailspin, bursting into flames as it struck the ground.

Kenneth Kirk, 26, pilot and co-owner of the plane with Alexander, was critically injured, suffering severe burns and a pair of broken legs in the crash. All three were residents of Plainview, Neb.

Arthur M. Mooney, young aviator, who on Saturday negotiated a non-stop flight from Los Angeles, Cal., to Fort Wayne, Ind., in a light monoplane of his own design, expects to hop off from Municipal airport here this morning for Wichita, Kas. Mooney repaired a defective gas pump after being forced down at Fort Wayne and yesterday afternoon made the short flight to Chicago for the night's rest. Mooney flew the 2,000 miles from Los Angeles to Fort Wayne in 22 hours and 23 minutes.

NEIGHBORHOOD SHOPPING CENTERS

RAISE REALTY VALUES

New shopping centers spring up throughout Chicago. Luxurious theatres, department stores, specialty shops and all kinds of retail establishments are convenient now to almost every neighborhood. In your own district there is probably a corner or several streets bristling with names of well-known firms and alive with prosperous people buying.

This transformation has been recent. Only a few years ago neighborhoods knew only a few business sections with a few stores. Men of foresight, buying property then, today reap the profit.

Such locations can still be found in Chicago. Look at those offered in Tribune Want Ads. You will find there many high-class investment opportunities.

BRITAIN'S BREAD GOES UP DESPITE GLUT OF WHEAT

Millers Fear Dumping of U. S. Made Flour.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 6.—The British public is facing with dismay the news that the price of bread will increase tomorrow one-half penny, or one cent, for each two pound loaf. The increase is hard for the average man to understand coming as it does at a time when vast stores of wheat are overflowing the world's granaries.

British millers are viewing with dismay also the report of the proposal of the American farm board to mill 100,000,000 bushels of America's wheat surplus and then export it to Europe in the form of flour.

Fear Wholesale Dumping.

Since Great Britain is the only European country with the exception of Holland and Denmark where flour is imported free, the millers fear this country will become a dumping ground for the bulk of flour with disastrous consequences to the British milling industry.

Likewise they claim that such action will greatly increase unemployment here and make the British farmers' wheat unsalable and seriously affect Canadian and Australian wheat imports.

Perils "Eat Bread" Campaign.

If America carries out the plan to mill the wheat and export it as flour it is feared that nearly 4,000,000,000 pounds of American flour will be dumped here—two-thirds of Great Britain's total requirements. The millers bemoan the fact that such a possibility arises at a time when the country is pushing its "eat more bread" campaign.

Two factors are likely to further complicate the situation. This year's crops give indications of being good, while recent figures show the consumption of bread in Europe has fallen off 15 per cent since the war.

MEXICAN BANDITS MAKE YANKFACE MOCK EXECUTION

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—(AP)—A dispatch from Tepic to Excelsior today said that the bandits who for three weeks have been holding J. B. Bristow, Texas oil man, as a prisoner, had frightened him into asking that federal troops sent to rescue him be withdrawn.

The outlaws stood Bristow against a wall and conducted a mock execution. So well was the drama acted that Bristow believed he was about to be shot and agreed to ask withdrawal of the troops. Immediately afterwards he wrote a letter to Tepic requesting that attempts to rescue him be stopped and the ransom asked for him be paid.

Ransom Money on Way.

Nogales, Ariz., April 6.—(AP)—Ransom money to be paid to Mexican bandits for the release of J. B. Bristow, 60, Texas oil man being held a prisoner in Mexico, was received by telegraph by a Nogales bank today and immediately forwarded by telegraph to Mazatlan, Sinaloa, bank representatives. The ransom, approximating $9,000, was sent here by Texas and Oklahoma banks. Information was that the money must reach the bandits tonight to bring about Bristow's safe release.

COLD WAVE THAT DAMAGED FRUIT ALSO GOT PESTS

Illinois Insect Mortality Ran High.

Urbana, Ill., April 6.—[Special.]—A silver lining to at least one of their clouds was revealed to Illinois fruit growers here today. In a statement to the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, S. C. Chandler, assistant entomologist of the Illinois state natural history survey, reported that the winter's cold snaps which played havoc with the 1930 fruit crop also thinned out the insect enemies of the state's orchards.

Among the many destructive pests of the state's fruit growing industry which were hard hit by the extreme cold was the oriental fruit moth, a newcomer in Illinois peach and apple orchards and a target for federal control measures.

Winter mortality of insects in Illinois increases from south to north about in the same proportion as the minimum temperatures in cold snaps which killed the buds, according to Chandler. At the southern tip of the Ozark hills section 40 per cent of the San Jose scale survived the winter, while at Carbondale, on the north of the section, only 16 per cent was found alive. Sprays should be applied as usual in this district, he recommended. From Carbondale north only 2 to 3 per cent of the scales have been found alive in recent examinations. This is about the percentage that would escape the best sprays.

The recently introduced peach and apple pest, the oriental fruit moth, got quite a setback, according to Chandler. The plum curculio likewise will probably suffer from lack of food in the peach districts.

The codling moth fared somewhat better than its first cousin, the oriental fruit moth, but even this old apple pest suffered a mortality ranging from 58 per cent at Carbondale to 90 per cent here at Urbana, Chandler said.

Women Get All Offices of Arkansas Village

Yellville, Ark., April 6.—(AP)—The city government of Yellville, small mountain town of north Arkansas, will pass into feminine hands the coming year. KODAKS FREE IF YOU HAVE 12TH BIRTHDAY IN '30

Rochester, N. Y., April 6.—(AP)—A plan to give away more than half a million cameras to children whose twelfth birthday falls in 1930 was announced today by the Eastman Kodak company through its founder, George Eastman.

The gifts are to mark the 50th anniversary of the first photographic patent granted to Mr. Eastman. Five hundred thousand of the cameras are to go to children in the United States and "a further number" to Canadian children.

The children, the announcement said, have only to go with a parent or guardian to their local photographic dealer between May 1 and June 1 to receive the gifts. Each camera will be supplied with one roll of film.

George Eastman, who started life as a poor boy, is noted for his philanthrophies, chief of which are donations reaching millions of dollars to various educational institutions.

OFFICER CHASING ALIEN LECTURER KILLS LISTENER

Radical Escapes as Crowd Attacks Detective.

New York, April 6.—(AP)—While police attempted to arrest an Italian alien for deportation today, as he spoke against Fascism to an audience of 1,500 in Cooper union, an unidentified member of the audience was shot dead, another man wounded, and five others arrested.

As the officers entered, Amanda Borghi, the alleged alien, jumped from the speaker's platform and fled through the crowd, shouting "Stop the police!" He escaped through a door.

Fired in Self-Defense.

Detective Thomas Lillienthal dashed after Borghi, but was held and attacked by the crowd. He fired one shot in self-protection, he said afterwards. The bullet apparently glanced across the chest of Salvator Velucci, 31, of Brooklyn, and buried itself in the abdomen of an unidentified man who died later in a hospital.

In the disturbance that followed, police reserves arrested five men, three in the auditorium and two others who said they were helping the critically wounded man to the hospital. The dead man was about 27 years old.

Injuries Not Serious.

Immigration authorities said Borghi has been sought since 1926, after he came to this country from Canada and overstayed his leave. They said he was marked for his radical and anarchistic activities.

SWISS INCREASE LIQUOR TAX; DRYS CLAIM VICTORY

(Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.)

GENEVA, April 6.—Switzerland is now "one-quarter dry" is the opinion of prohibitionists following acceptance by the electorate today of new liquor laws. These slightly increase taxes on alcohol and cede existing private stills to federal authorities. Eighty per cent of the electorate went to the polls.

What is regarded as a "brilliant victory for the government in its fight against alcoholism" was won by 487,340 votes against 314,316. Only five out of twenty-two cantons rejected the new measure.

Visitors will find drinks considerably dearer as a result of the vote.

NEW YORK OVER IDLENESS PEAK, REPORT SHOWS

Chief Industries on the Upgrade.

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—The peak of unemployment has been passed and the unemployed of this city are gradually returning to work, according to a report made public today by the Merchants' association, based on a study of the city's four largest industries, conducted for the association by a committee of five eminent business and industrial leaders.

Reports received by the committee from the four local industries which employ the largest number of workers, namely, the clothing, building, metal and printing trades, indicate a slight upward trend in employment.

Unemployment Relief Code.

Simultaneously with the publication of the committee's report, the Merchants' association made public also an "unemployment relief code" for the guidance of employers with a view to speeding up the return to normal employment conditions and to promoting the future stabilization of employment.

The statement was signed by Louis K. Comstock, Henry Bruere, Ernest G. Draper, J. Byron Deacon, and Sam A. Lewisohn. Mr. Bruere and Draper are members of the state wide committee for stabilization of employment appointed a week ago by Gov. Roosevelt.

Other Evidence of Improvement.

That conditions are on the upgrade was confirmed by another report released today by the board of trade, which has been conducting a wide survey among nearly 5,000 employers representing all branches of business and industry. With replies from nearly 1,500 employers already received, it was indicated by the board of trade that the average number of employés is now slightly in excess of 90 per cent. Many prominent employers, replying to the board of trade's questionnaire, were of the opinion that conditions will again be normal in the fall.

Hotel Bandit Suspect Returned to Chicago

Earl Bangert, 28 years old, formerly of 1849 South Wabash avenue, whom Chicago police had been seeking since Dec. 4, 1928, for the $5,000 robbery of the Pearson hotel, was returned here yesterday from Aurora, where he was arrested on Saturday night for brawling in a speakeasy. Detective Simon Kennedy, who shot to death one of the hotel bandits, Thomas Stevens, was promoted to a sergeantcy, and similar action is expected in the case of Detective John Malone, who trailed Bangert to Cuba and then to his brother's home in Aurora.

KILL 2 CONVICTS TO AVERT BREAK AT BALL GAME

Folsom Prison, Cal., April 6.—(AP)—Two convicts were killed in an attempted prison break here today, and another prisoner was wounded seriously.

The convicts who died before the rifles of the guards were Harry Stewart, 36, sentenced from San Francisco, and Edward Baker, 47, from Orange county. Baker was serving five terms of from 5 years to life, each running concurrently, for robbery. Stewart was committed Dec. 27, 1928, for second degree robbery. His term was from one year to life.

The third man was W. H. Tinkelpaugh, 33, Orange county. He was shot several times through the body and physicians hold little hope for his recovery. He was convicted of robbery in the first degree.

Finds Why Food Sours the Stomach

Mrs. Joan Hannum of 2655 N. Melvina Ave., in Chicago, is one of the happiest women in the country now. It is not hard to understand why, either. She is able to eat again without suffering afterward from indigestion which was caused by a stomach which could not digest rich and starchy food she liked so well. "For the last ten years, rich or heavy food and my stomach didn't get along at all," she says. "I guess I would be that way yet if my sister hadn't told me about Acidine. It relieves me quicker than anything I ever heard of. I can take a dose of it now, and in a few minutes my stomach is settled, the gassy belching is gone, and so is that burning sensation in my throat."

Stories like this have caused the fame of Acidine to spread until more than two million people are already using Acidine when there's too much acid in the stomach, and appetite is gone—you'll like the taste of Acidine, and it costs so little. Get it at any drug store.

MUSSOLINI PUTS BLACKSHIRTS IN FIGHTING TRIM

Plans 10 Year Service in Fascist Militia.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, April 6.—The Fascists are bolstering up the technical fighting effectiveness of the Black Shirt militia, which Premier Mussolini once designated as the cornerstone and armed guard of his revolution. Under grand concil instructions, Lieut. Gen. Teruzzi, chief of staff of the Black Shirt militia, is drafting a legal statute providing for what is described as a system of "permanent volunteers" in the Black Shirt first assault cohorts, or those which serve in the regular army dvisions.

Under this statute the militiamen will be asked to sign up for ten years in assault batteries, in the return for which certain pay and privileges will be allowed.

Technically Trained Corps.

The innovation, as explained, aims to convert the militia from an uncoordinate Garibaldian mass into a systematic, technically trained corps, and provide a good sized force under arms without actually being in barracks.

The Black Shirt militia now totals 300,000 and Lieut. Gen. Teruzzi announces that this year all will be armed with rifles. The new organization advances a step further. It is a transformation of the militia from its original function as an arm of the Fascist régime into a supplementary part of the armed forces of the state with an oath to the king. During its first years of formation the Black Shirt militia would have been absorbed into the regular army if war had broken out.

This has now been changed and militiamen between 20 and 40 years pass into the regular army in war time only, leaving the militia, even during war, as an integral body of those under 20 and those over 40 years serving in the anti-aircraft, artillery, police order patrol, and transport service.

2,500 in a Legion.

Not all, even of those between 20 and 40 years, are absorbed into the regular army. The 300,000 Black Shirts are organized into 120 legions of 2,500 men each. Each legion has from three to six battalions. Continuing the Roman system the battalions are divided into centuries and centuries into maniples. Out of these 600 or more cohorts, which make up 120 legions, eighty are being chosen to be trained along army lines to fight beside the regular army divisions.

Two cohorts, called the first cohort battalions or assault battalions, are under the recent order brought within reach of the supervision of the Italian army. It is to these first cohort battalions that Lieut. Gen. Teruzzi's ten year enlistment statute will apply. By thus keeping the militia in active annual training during ten years it is expected that the problem of adjusting the reservists to active service, after a long period of civilian life, will be solved, and that, at the same time, the regular army will not suffer from under-strength.

In addition to ordaining a ten year enlistment period, the grand council also decided that the "first cohort battalions must perfect their training in a spirit of harmony with the army, and that the number of the first cohort battalions must be increased and that the officers must attend a special training course to increase their efficiency."

This apparently means that a body of militiamen comprising about 30,000 actually coöperating with the regular army is to be augmented.

THOMAS JEFFERSON'S BIRTHDAY WILL BE CELEBRATED WIDELY

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—Tributes to the memory of Thomas Jefferson, founder of the Democratic party, will be paid in every section of the United States next week at celebrations of the 187th anniversary of his birth.

The Democratic national committee announced tonight that his birthday would be celebrated more widely this year than ever. Reports received by the committee indicated between 1,100 and 1,200 meetings would be held to commemorate the anniversary.

Since the birthday falls on Sunday this year most of the celebrations will be held the following Monday.

A number of addresses will be delivered over the radio, including that of Dr. Edward A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia, who will speak at 10:30 p. m., April 14, over a nation-wide hookup arranged by the National Broadcasting system.

MEXICO DENIES ENTRY TO PARTY SEEKING APACHES

Douglas, Ariz., April 6.—(AP)—The Mexican government has forbidden the proposed Fimbres Apache hunting expedition to enter Mexico, Mayor A. C. Karger of Douglas made known tonight in announcing abandonment of organization plans pending representations to the state department.

The expedition, headed by Mayor Karger in association with Francisco Fimbres, rancher of Nacori Chico, Sonora, was being organized for the announced purpose of rescuing Fimbres' son, Heraldo, from a band of Apaches believed to be holding him prisoner in the Cañon of the Caves, Sonora.

Heraldo Fimbres, then three years old, was abducted in October of 1926 by Apaches who, Fimbres says, killed the boy's mother on the Fimbres ranch near here.

Mayor Karger said the leaders of the expedition were advised today by Mexican Consul Emiliano Tamez that the federal government of Mexico does not look upon the project with approval. It has instructed Col. Hermenegildo Carrillo, military commander of Agua Prieta, across the border from here, to take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent the party entering Sonora from Arizona.

Two Street Cars Crash; One Passenger Injured

Ballage Sylbrest, 43 years old, 3036 Arthington street, was cut by flying glass and several other passengers were shaken yesterday when a northbound California avenue street car left the tracks and brushed into a southbound street car at Chicago avenue. Sylbrest was given first aid at the Norwegian-American hospital and taken to his home.

NO SOLUTION TO QUEER LYNCHING OF TRAIN PORTER

Locust Grove, Ga., April 6.—(AP)—With few additional clews uncovered, county and railroad police today continued their investigation into the mysterious death of J. H. Wilkins, Negro Pullman porter of the Southern railway's Kansas City special, whose body was found near here yesterday morning, his neck tied to a tree and his knees touching the ground.

The Negro's skull was fractured and his white coat had been used to tie his neck to a small sapling.

Officers expressed belief the killing was prearranged and some one was waiting beside the track to take the Negro—or his body—to the woods. They advanced the theory that the porter might have been hit on the head and thrown from the train or struck after he was taken from the train.

Wilkins was alive when the train left Macon early yesterday morning. Although the Kansas City special is a nonstop train between Macon and Atlanta, railroad officials said the train yesterday morning was forced by freight trains to stop at Juliette and Sandy, but went through Locust Grove without stopping.

Whining Dog Leads Way to Slain Man and Woman

Havre, Mont., April 6.—(AP)—A whining dog led to the discovery of the bodies of a man and a woman in a barn on the Charles Anderson ranch near here today. Both had been shot through the head and the woman also had a body wound. The woman was identified as Mrs. Cora Brown, 34, wife of a Minot, N. D., railroad engineer. The man was Thomas E. Callagahn, 46, a Havre farmer.

LINKS GANGSTER IN ARKANSAS' INSURANCE PLOT

Attorney for Accused Dentist Sees Acquittal.

Bentonville, Ark., April 6.—(AP)—A St. Louis gangster angle was brought into the foreground of the William Robert Pearman murder mystery today by John R. Duty of Rogers, Ark., chief counsel for Dr. A. J. Bass, Columbia, Mo., retired dentist, held in connection with Pearman's slaying, which authorities allege grew out of a $200,000 insurance swindle plot.

Adding to a statement given out last night by Boyle Clark of Columbia, another attorney for Dr. Bass, Duty told news men today that Bass was inveigled into the insurance fraud scheme under threat of death.

Fear of Reprisals.

Dr. Bass' silence since his imprisonment on charges of murder was attributed in part by Duty to fear of reprisal against others by persons involved in the murder. Duty also said that Bass was not the "master mind" in the insurance plot and that in time he "would tell everything."

Duty said that in his opinion, based on information now in his possession, St. Louis gangsters were the principals in both the insurance plot scheme and the murder. Meanwhile Benton county officials said that evidence against Bass was growing.

Sheriff Edgar Field and deputies today resumed search for the pistol with which Pearman, 47 year olds automobile mechanic of Columbia, Mo., was slain near here ten days ago.

Hunt Revolver as Clew.

Yesterday Dr. Bass told the sheriff he had a pistol in a handbag which the officer had found in Bass' hotel at the time of his arrest. The sheriff did not find the weapon and could get no more information from the accused dentist.

Indications today were that Dr. Bass would be unable to furnish the $20,000 bond fixed by the court. Trial of the dentist is expected at the term of court beginning May 26. Duty said today the defense had no fear of the murder charge.

S. K. Johnson, Kansas City real estate dealer whose arrest in connection with the case has been ordered, has not been apprehended, Sheriff Fields said.

PARIS GETS TAME THRILL; 'NUDISTS' PUT ON CLOTHES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 6.—The latest in "altogether" fashions was exhibited today to a large audience of supposedly blase Parisians who rowed in throngs to the island of Medan in the Seine to see the opening of the season of the nude colony."

It seems that last year a dangerous schism developed in the colony over how much to take off. Conservatives who favored moderate exposure charged that the radical wing of the colony brought disrepute to the whole nudist movement by disporting themselves on the beach clad only in a coat of tan.

Either the moderates won their point or the slightly chilly breezes dampened the divesting ardor of the extremists. As a result the whole colony—several hundred—turned out in snappy unmentionables of various gay hues.

Speeding Kansas City Ambulance Injures 22

Kansas City, Mo., April 6.—(AP)—A speeding ambulance plunged through a crowded safety zone late today at 31st street and Troost avenue, injuring twenty-two persons.

COUPLE HELD AS ROBBERS.

Omaha, Neb., April 6.—(AP)—A man and woman giving the name of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holland have been arrested and are being held for Kansas City, Mo., authorities in connection with the robbery of the home of F. R. Washburn, Kansas City broker, which netted the robbers loot valued at $8,000.

CHICAGO R. O. T. C. SUMMER CAMP TO OPEN JUNE 20

With 100 names already entered on the roster of Camp Roosevelt, Mercer, Wis., official summer training camp for the R. O. T. C. of the Chicago public schools, a total registration of more than 600 boys for this summer is expected, Maj. F. L. Beals, the camp's director, said yesterday. The camp will open on June 30 and continue for seven weeks, closing on Aug. 16.

A ground course in aviation and a number of other new courses will be added to the curriculum this year, Maj. Beals said. The air aviation course will instruct pupils in the basic principles of heavier than air machines and in the mechanical problems of flying.

The camp consists of 1,200 acres of woodland and is situated between two lakes, Spider and Ox Bow. The boys live in tents. A military routine is observed, the pupils, in addition to their studies and drill, finding time for horseback riding, swimming, hiking, archery, target practice, and model plane building, according to Maj. Beals.

KHABAROVSK, U. S. S. R., April 6.—(AP)—Carrying three superb specimens of the long haired Siberian tiger, the members of the Morden-Graves north Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History arrived here today en route for the Altai mountains where they will remain for three months.

THRONGS VIEW NEW FLOWERS AT GARDEN SHOW

Sunday strollers yesterday thronged the garden bordered paths at the Chicago Stadium to view the exhibits of the Central States Garden and Flower show, including a variety of new and novel blooms that were on public view for the first time. Twenty full sized gardens arranged by a hundred Illinois garden clubs competed for attention with artistic combinations of flowers.

Ten thousand varieties of tulips have been concentrated by John T. Scheepers in a single garden of Italian design. Among the varieties included, never before shown in Chicago, were the Sundew, lacinated scarlet Darwin; La Fiancée, a soft pale rose Darwin; the King George, a cerise shade, and the Mei Lan Fang, named after the Chinese actor now in Chicago.

Little Chats About Your Health

"Growing Pains"

In an issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, a physician stated that in his practice he has observed that "growing pains" may be the signal of heart disease, although the warning may appear months, or even years before heart disease develops.

He stated that "children who complain repeatedly of tired legs, or muscle pains and stiffness, pains in the extremities day or night, should be under the care of a physician. Two other conditions which are frequently followed by heart disease are rheumatic fever and St. Vitus' dance."

If your child is subject to "growing pains" call the matter to your physician's attention.

FEDERAL COURT DRY LAW CASES INCREASE 16%

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Prohibition cases added increasingly to the congestion in the federal courts of Illinois during the last half of 1929, a report of dry law operations for that period, issued today by the department of justice, indicated.

During the last six months of 1929 706 new dry law violation cases were instituted in the Illinois northern District court in Chicago, an increase of more than 16 per cent over the 605 cases instituted during the corresponding period of 1928. Convictions and pleas of guilty mounted from 430 to 479, although the total fines assessed dropped from $105,190 to $68,386.

Figures on Other Districts.

In the eastern Illinois judicial district the number of prohibition cases instituted from July to December, 1929, was 306, as compared with 290 the previous year, and in the southern district 231, as compared to 229.

Although there was an increase in the number of persons brought to the bar in Illinois for disobedience of the Volstead and Jones acts, the increase did not materialize in other sections of the country. The total number of new cases in all courts for the last half of 1929 was 26,811 and for the last half of 1928, 27,575.

The most notable falling off in new cases took place in the northern and southern districts of New York, despite the fact that New York has repealed its state prohibition law. The number of cases started in the southern New York district for the 1929 period was 1,650, a decrease of 2,555. And falling off from 1,328 to 462 cases was shown for the northern New York district, altogether there was a slight gain in the eastern district and a two-fold gain in the western district.

No Explanation Offered.

The department of justice made no attempt in its report to explain these fluctuations.

The aggregate of fines assessed under the prohibition law in the six months' period ending December, 1929, was $3,379,448, and in the six months' period ending December, 1928, $3,322,146.

In the total numbers of prohibition cases commenced in the federal courts during the six months' period, the southern district of New York ranked first, with 4,205; the eastern district of Kentucky second, with 1,502; the northern district of New York third, with 1,328; the eastern district of New York fourth, with 1,053, and the southern district of West Virginia fifth, with 911.

4 GUNMEN HOLD UP MERRYMAKERS IN INN AND GET $1,000

Four gunmen invaded the White Star inn, a roadhouse on Milwaukee avenue, near Touhy avenue, in Niles Center, early yesterday, and, after threatening the proprietor, Charles Horton, and 15 couples who were in the place, escaped with nearly $1,000.

The robbers rounded up a half dozen couples who were dancing and herded them into a barroom where the rest of the patrons were sitting. There they lined the men and women up against a wall two of the bandits standing guard with their guns, while the other two searched the men, taking only money.

After robbing the men, the bandits forced Horton to open the cash register and took the day's receipts. They backed out of the main entrance to the road house and escaped in an automobile in which a fifth member was waiting.

CAP WILD GUSHER FOR THIRD TIME AND HOPE IT STAYS TIED DOWN

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 6.—(AP)—The Mary Sudik gusher was shut in at 7:15 o'clock tonight. It was the third time a crew of experts had succeeded in muzzling the gusher, which for eleven days has ripped and snorted in defiance to all the ordinary methods of control.

Twice before, since the well came in on March 26, control gates had been attached only to be quickly broken by the great pressure of oil and gas, abetted by a tremendous sand blast in the geyser's steam. Engineers of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company, which owns the well, said tonight they believed the new cap would hold.

First a master gate was installed soon after the well blew wild, a 200,000,000 cubic foot gasser. This soon was eaten out. A heavy oil content of approximately 2,000 barrels hourly then appeared and the gusher was pronounced the largest of its kind in the world.

Hospital Finds 16 Pct. of Cases Are Alcoholic

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—More than sixteen per cent of the 1,249 patients treated by Flower hospital ambulance surgeons during the first three months of this year were alcoholic cases, according to an analysis of the records made public today. On the basis of this tabulation, hospital officials estimate that at least 17,000 of the more than 100,000 calls for emergency aid which will be answered this year will be due to alcoholism.

3 GUNMEN ROB CABARET PARTY OF $1,400 GEMS

Three gunmen took jewelry valued at more than $1,400 from three couples whom they had followed from a south side cabaret early yesterday. The victims were Mr. and Mrs. John A. Cordell, 1333 Ridge avenue, Evanston; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Huntley of the Seville apartment hotel, 4144 Sheridan road, in front of which the robbery occurred, and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Moore, Winthrop Towers hotel, 6151 Winthrop avenue.

Huntley is a manufacturer of automobile accessories at 4550 West Madison street, Cordell is a retired grocer, and Moore is a bank employé. As they drew up in front of the Seville hotel the three robbers held them up. One of the bandits snatched three diamond bracelets from Mrs. Cordell, but she saved two valuable rings by dropping them on the floor of the car. Mr. Moore gave up $20, and the trio fled as an automobile approached.

RABBI DENOUNCES PROHIBITION AS A HYPOCRITEMAKER

South Bend, Ind., April 6.—[Special.]—Rabbi William M. Stern of Temple Beth-El, president of the South Bend Community chest, attacked prohibition in his sermon this morning.

Declaring that the 18th amendment made hyprocrites, that crime had increased and that public officials were not only disobeying but also ignoring the law, Rabbi Stern suggested a national referendum on the dry question.

"I resent the attitude of some who say that individuals, organizations, and newspapers of our land are being subsidized on the prohibition question," he said.

CUBS ROUT HOLLYWOOD, 20-5; SOX WIN, 10-9

25 HITS PARTING SALVO TO COAST LEAGUE TEAMS

K. C. Next Stop for Champions.

Hornsby Here Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., April 6. — As a parting salute to California, the Cubs touched off a reverberating salvo of base hits this afternoon. They began jarring the Wrigley field walls in the opening round and kept it up almost to the finish to accumulate a 20 to 5 triumph over the Hollywood Stars, who whipped the major leaguers the day previous.

The Cubs rolled up a total of 25 hits. Among these was a quantity of homers, all uncorked against Fred Shellenback and Augie Johns, who were the first two of three home hurlers to perform. Two of the circuit drives popped off the bat of Woody English, who also had a triple and single. Other authors of round trip smashes were Cuyler, Wilson, Tolson, and Carlson. These long blows enabled the Chicagoans to accumulate a 16 run lead in the first four innings.

Carlson Works Four Innings.

Carlson's workout today was limited to four rounds. There was no real necessity for removing him, except that Guy Bush desired to do a little work. Carlson permitted only five hits, and was in danger of being scored upon only once.

The first of the five runs gathered by the Cubs in the opening inning was English's first homer. Blair singled to center and went to third when Cuyler did the same. A pass to Wilson loaded the sacks. Stephenson fanned, but Tolson exploded a long fly, and Blair scored. The bags became jammed again on a pass to Hartnett. Bell then singled Cuyler and Wilson across the plate and put Hartnett on third. Gabby scored on a hit by Carlson. English, up for the second time in the inning, grounded to second for the third out.

Cuyler Starts 6 Run Salvo.

Six runs for the Cubs in the second began to form after one was out. Cuyler singled to signalize the start of the big parade. Wilson walked, but was forced by Stephenson. Then Tolson nudged the ball in the bleacher for three runs. Hartnett followed with a single and Bell with a double. They romped home on Carlson's home run. At this point Shellenback was excused. Johns, an ex-Detroit Tiger, stepped to the hill and English shook him up with a triple, but the next batter was nailed to end the round.

The Cubs probably were weary after all the above exercise, so confined themselves to two runs in the third. One of these materialized from a clout lined into the bleachers by Cuyler. Wilson was in the mood to make things louder and funnier, so he arched the ball over the fence. The next happening was a pass to Stephenson, but the three following batters let Stevie remain on first base.

English Hits Second Homer.

Johns received another slapping of consequence in the fourth. Carlson led off with a double that lacked only about a foot of clearing the brick wall in left. He strolled home on English's second homer. Blair then walked, went to second on a wild pitch and to third on an infield hit by Cuyler. Wilson did everybody, including himself, a favor by grounding into a double play, Blair scoring. Then Stevie walked, but a great play on a drive by Tolson robbed him of a hit and concluded the inning. This cluster of three runs made the score board read 16 to 0.

When Bush started to work in the fifth he was welcomed by a single off the bat of Lee, once a high priced product with the Red Sox. After Gabella had flied out, Bush endeavored to catch Lee off first base, but the throw was wide, and the runner went to second. He scored on a blow to the left field wall by Rumler.

Having had a couple of innings to recover their wind, the champions of the National league scored four more

John J. McGraw Celebrates 57th Birthday Today

Memphis, Tenn., April 6.—[Special.]—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York National league baseball club, will be 57 years old tomorrow. McGraw was born in Truxton, N. Y.

The Giants' leader, though gaining in weight, has taken more workouts with his men this year than in the last four or five springs. As Irish Meusel puts it, "the boss is in better shape than his ball club." He will start his twenty-eighth year as manager of the New York team next week.

Athens to Play De La Salle? One Says Yes; Other Says No

Athens (Tex.) High school, winner of the University of Chicago national interscholastic basketball tournament, will play De La Salle High school, winner of the national Catholic tournament, at Loyola university tomorrow night for the championship of the United States.

That is, if you take the word of J. R. Kitts, coach of the Athens team.

If you believe Jimmy Groark, coach of the De La Salle five, no arrangements have been made for the game. At least his team knows nothing about them.

The Texas leader last night said that a Bob Moran, representing De La Salle, came to the Windermere hotel, where the Athens boys are quartered, and asked the Dixie team to play. After putting the suggestion up to his boys Kitts accepted the game.

Groark said that it was Athens that challenged. His team broke training after winning the Catholic tournament at Loyola two weeks ago and was not in condition for a title battle, he stated. De La Salle would have welcomed the game had it received reasonable time to prepare, according to Groark.

The Athens team must return to Texas Wednesday, Coach Kitts pointed out, to be home in time to share in a state-wide celebration to be accorded the squad.

RAPS SPORT FOR GIRLS

Columbus, O., April 6.—(AP)—County basketball tournaments for high school girls were condemned and interscholastic competition by girls was considered of questionable value in a bulletin issued today by the state department of education.

Interscholastic games "do not come first" and should be most economically financed, said the report, which finally termed them "nuisances" because of the "traditional hysterias after victory and melancholia over defeat."

Championship tournaments and meets were said to be "useful only for senior high school and college girls, and then only in the absence of any other opportunity for competition," as the lack of intramural competition in schools with small enrollments.

The bulletin condemned football, basketball under boys' rules, long runs, jumping in competition, hurdling, weight throwing and pole vaulting and classed soccer and baseball with a hard ball as doubtful. The following events were approved for girls: Volleyball, tennis, horseshoes, fifty yard dashes, obstacle races, and short relay races.

STAGG WAITS HUTCHINS' O.K

Bartlett gymnasium, after having been packed to the rafters last week by 40,000 basketball fans, was desolate yesterday. The twelfth annual University of Chicago interscholastic basketball tournament was over. Whether there will be another is not certain. The National High School Athletic federation opposed the tournament this year, threatening invited teams with banishment from the organization.

Nevertheless 26 teams, representing 26 states, competed. A. A. Stagg, sponsor of the event, was besieged on all sides with demands for its continuance.

Stagg believes the tournament is worth while. But, as he said in an address at the conclusion of the tournament, "Good things often have their enemies, and this tournament is no exception. I don't know whether the tournament will be held again. But if it is left up to me we will certainly continue holding them."

"Of course, the decision is not up to me," Norgren said. "Mr. Stagg is anxious to continue it, but the decision lies with President Hutchins and the board of trustees. With the track meet coming up the last of May (the 30th annual University of Chicago track interscholastic), a ruling will have to be made soon.

"We don't know exactly what the attitude of the North Central association amounts to. We are still in the dark as to whether its move to abolish all such tournaments, except where a state association asks an institution to run a tournament, is a definite rule or merely a recommendation."

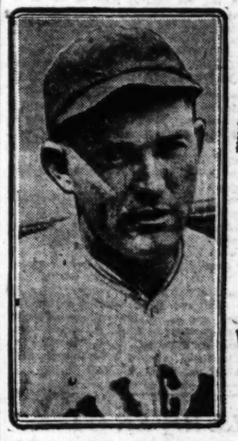
WILL THEY BE READY?



1930 APRIL 15 TUESDAY

Whether the Cubs will display their full strength on opening day depends upon the condition of Capt. Charley Grimm (right) and Rogers Hornsby a week from tomorrow. An X-ray revealed a growth on the Rajah's heel which has kept him out of the game for a week. A cracked rib, discovered Saturday, may prove the obstacle to Charley's appearance in the first game.

Robin Regulars Top .300 Mark in Spring Drill

Macon, Ga., April 6.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins didn't play any baseball today, but they kept a few pencils busy and got some encouraging results. They figured out the batting averages for the spring training games and found only Glenn Wright below the .300 mark among the regulars and from this they drew the conclusion that they will show the National league something about slugging.

Wally Gilbert, who has hit safely in the last 11 games, was shown to be the most consistent performer with a mark of .426, but Al Lopez, young Spanish catcher from Tampa, went him one better with a .444 average.

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE SEASON OPENS TOMORROW

San Francisco's Seals and Los Angeles' Angels, pre-season favorites, will face Seattle and Portland respectively. Hollywood's Stars, last season's pennant winners, will meet Oakland in the opening series, with the San Francisco Missions, 1929 runners up, at Sacramento.

Babe Ruth Rated Best Right Fielder in Baseball History

[This is the first of a series of ten articles in which Irwin M. Howe discusses the ten players whom he considers best of those who have come under his observation in 42 years of baseball writing.]

BY IRWIN M. HOWE.

This is a story of the ten best ball players that I have seen in forty-two years of close and continuous observation. Two pitchers and one man for each of the other eight positions are included.

It's my notion that a champion ball player must have baseball sense, aggressiveness, and stamina and be quick of eye, hand, and foot. That he should be unusually proficient in the mechanics of the game goes without saying.

For many years at least five thousand men have been playing ball for hire. Hundreds come in and hundreds go out every season. As long as forty-two years ago there must have been a thousand young men who preferred playing ball four or five months in the summer to driving a truck, laying brick, or working on a farm the whole year. So, although I measure my champions with my own rule, it is possible that there may be one or two faint squawks of disapproval as their identity is disclosed.

Cobb, Speaker, and Ruth Picked for Outfield.

Three outfielders will be the subjects in the first three installments of these memoirs. Reading from left to right they are Cobb, Speaker, and Ruth, and herewith are the reasons why I place the big Babe in right field in preference to Tom McCarthy, Kling Kelley, Orator Jim O'Rourke, Hugh Duffy, Willie Keeler, Sam Crawford, Sam Thompson, Melvin Ott, or even our own Kiki Cuyler, who as an everyday journeyman right fielder is not to be despised.

In the old days the unfortunate who was the least able physically to resent the insult played right field. A wag once said that all right fielders should be compelled to pay their way in, and during the first three decades of organized ball, managers and proprietors seemed to believe it. Until the year of the Brotherhood war, 1890, it was not uncommon, even in the National league, for a team to have no regular right fielder.

Mike Kelly, the renowned "king" of Anson's champion White Stockings, was a catcher and an infielder. He played right field because his hitting and speed were needed, and Frank Flint was a better receiver. While they were resting, Fouts and Carruthers, Comiskey's two prize hurlers, alternated in right field for the old St. Louis Browns, four times champions of the old association. Many other stars have played right field, but we will get back to Ruth.

Ruth began as a pitcher and in six seasons won 110 games while losing 53. In 1915, because of his slugging ability, Ed Barrow, then manager of the Red Sox, played the big fellow 20 games in right field in addition to many assignments as pinch hitter. He was in 95 games and at bat 317 times that season and hit for exactly .300. Forty-eight of his 95 safe hits were for extra bases and eleven of them were homers. In all the seasons since then Ruth has never batted as low as .300 but once, in 1925, when he was injured, and was in but 98 games with an average of .290. After the season of 1919 when he won nine games and lost five he abandoned pitching to set a record as a slugger that has never been closely approached in the history of the game.

Babe Averages 126.5 Runs Per Season.

Ruth has scored 1,513 runs in twelve years. Cobb, the next best scorer in 20 years in the American league, scored more than 100 runs in eleven out of his twenty-four years of service. The aggregate number of runs for the eleven selected years is 1,928, an average of 113, while Ruth, in twelve seasons, during three of which he was able to serve only two-thirds of a season, has averaged 126.5 runs per season.

In 1,624 games the big boy has amassed hits to the amount of 4,077 total bases, a trifle more than 2.50 bases per game and has been given 1,394 bases on balls, most of them to prevent any chance for another home run. No other player is in sight of this record. In each one of nine, of the last twelve years, Ruth has hit about one-third as many home runs as were made by the entire league in the period between 1901 and 1911.

Since 1918 Rogers Hornsby has been recognized as the leading slugger of the National league. Beginning with 1918, Hornsby has scored 1,306 runs, Ruth 1,518; Hornsby has been awarded 841 bases on balls and Ruth 1,394; Hornsby has hit 264 home runs, Ruth 508,

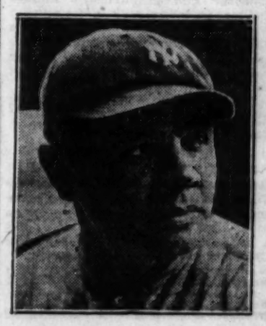
A BIG HIT



BABE RUTH.

SMITH, RECRUIT, RAPS HOME RUN AND 2 SINGLES

Blankenship Yields Little Rock 9 Blows.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Little Rock, Ark., April 6.—The Sunday entertainment afforded by the White Sox and Little Rock had in quantity what it lacked in quality. Almost all the variety possible in a spring exposition of the national pastime was afforded the 6,000 fans who paid money to witness the spectacle.

As a matter of record, the score was White Sox, 10; Little, 9, and not an athlete slain. Some were exhausted from running about.

Manager Donie Bush made another change in his lineup in anticipation of a series with the Giants which starts tomorrow. He benched Bill Hunnefield, whose fielding has been indifferent this spring and whose batting has been nothing about which to shout. Ernie Smith, a Southern association recruit, was intrusted with the shortstop duties.

Ernie Helps a Lot.

Smith went to the plate five times. He drove out a home run, two singles, walked once and scored four runs. Without this outburst of energy the major leaguers might have gone home on the little end of the score.

Many things happened to cheer the White Sox at the inception of the contest. Smith drove a liner between left and center field and by the time pursuers overtook it he had crossed the plate without the formality of a slide. Cissell doubled and Jolley singled. Cissell came home on Clancy's out.

The second was even more prosperous for the Sox. George Redfern, who has labored in the Comiskey vineyard at odd times, donated three more runs. Two were out when Blankenship singled. Smith helped himself to another hit. Cissell tapped direct to Redfern, but he juggled the ball and all hands were safe.

Redfern Throws Wild.

Reynolds singled, sending Blankenship and Smith home. Redfern sought to trap Reynolds off first and threw the ball to the stands, Cissell cashing. The first baseman got it on the rebound and passed it back to Redfern in time to extinguish Reynolds skidding into second base. A slight wild streak cost Blankenship two runs in the third. Eckert got a hit on a grounder that hopped high to Smith. McNamara walked and Redfern was hit by a pitched ball. Taitt walked and Eckert strolled home. Rose hoisted a sacrifice fly that let McNamara register.

The enemy made two more in the fourth. McDaniel doubled and went to third on an out. Kandler walked. Barnabe's sacrifice fly let McDaniel go home. McNamara tripled to drive Kandler over the plate.

More good fortune attended the Sox in their share of the fourth. They received two runs which they did not earn. Smith's third hit was a single. Two had gone to the bench when Jolly smote a single to right. The ball bounced off Taitt's knee and Jolley ran up hill all the way around the bases, paced from third by Manager Donie Bush. The efforts of the big man to beat the various throws required to get the ball back to the scene of action amused the spectators. Both sides collected two more in the sixth. Blankenship walked and so did Smith. Pitcher Mulcahey was taken out and Hughes worked for Little Rock. Cissell doubled Blankenship home and Smith came in on Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Travelers Score Easily.

The home team's runs were made with as little effort. When two were out, Hughes singled, McNamara walked and Redfern tripled to right. The contest rumbled along loosely, it being that kind of an affair. Rose doubled to begin the seventh, advanced on an out and scored on another.

Pat Caraway pitched the last two innings without any marked degree of success. He was nicked for four hits and two runs and when the contest eventually concluded the home nine had the tying run on third base. Hughes walked in the eighth and was forced by McNamara, but hits by Redfern and Taitt shoved over one run. The ninth was perilous. Two singles and a two base fumble by Harris allowed the Southern leaguers one run and a man on third with two out. The final batsman hit to Shires, who touched the bag and it was all over.

The White Sox dashed hurriedly for an early train. They are due in Evansville in the morning.

runs in the seventh. Wilson singled and stole second. Stephenson bounced to the pitcher, who tried to catch Hack at third. The throw was wide. Tolson singled to center, Hack going home. Hartnett singled to fill the bases. Bell bounced into a double play, Stephenson scoring. Bush then doubled past first base, sending Tolson home. Bush scored the last Cub run on a single by English.

Bush was dented for three runs in the Stars' half of the seventh, but it didn't mean anything. Gazella walked with one out and Rumler's single planted him on third. Both scored when Heath pounded the ball into the bleacher. The Stars picked up another in the ninth on singles by Gazella and Rumler.

The Cubs boarded a special section of the Golden State Limited immediately after the game and have nothing to do except travel until Tuesday night, when they arrive at Kansas City for their last four games of the spring tour.

EASTERN MAT MEN TAKE FIVE A. A. U. TITLES

New York, April 6.—(AP)—The dispute between the east and west as to supremacy in college wrestling, which the national collegiate A. A. championships last week left in doubt, came no nearer to a settlement in the national A. A. U. title event. The west, supreme in the college championships in which the eastern leaders did not compete, had to take second place in last night's A. A. U. finals to the New York Athletic club stars, drawn principally from eastern colleges.

Of the eight classes, the New York A. C. captured five titles and the Oklahoma Aggies, N. C. A. A. champions, three. Four of the five eastern winners were either past or present college contenders.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 6.—[Special.]—The Boston Braves got a lot of bad baseball out of their systems today in offering the worst exhibition of their spring tour when they lost to the Washington Senators, 10 to 3, in the first of a five game series. It was the fifth straight defeat of the tribe.

It's Time to Choose River for Scout Cruise

DEAR DON: A scouting trip to check on a river in Chicagoland which will be the scene of the annual CHICAGO TRIBUNE Boy Scout canoe cruise, a "training trip" to get ready for the trout fishing season in May, carpenter work on a flock of bird houses—well, these are just a few of the things on the calendar during the next couple of weeks. Look 'em over and you'll understand why I want to get away for a week or two. How about it?

If this program doesn't register, then I'll have to ring in one of those nervous breakdowns which always seem to precede one of the Wake's vacations.

As for the canoe cruise and a beautiful, clean river over which the Scouts can travel as they did on the Muskegon last year under the guidance of THE TRIBUNE, I'll have some news on this a little later. The plan right now is to look over a certain stream with a thrilling historical background of Indians, battlegrounds, etc.

I almost forgot to tell you about another thing I have to do during the next week or two—put in the final effort on a new bird book. See you later. Regards. BOB BECKER.

He has batted for an average of .300 or more in five world series and is the only player to make this record.

Knocks Three Homers in a Single Game.

Ruth is the only player except Lou Gehrig to make four home runs in a single world series. He did this in 1926 against the Cardinals, and the writer saw him make three of them in one game. In 1928 against the Pirates he duplicated this feat, and did it in successive innings.

The Bambino has hit 13 times for the circuit in world series, an exclusive record.

In the 1928 series besides making his three homers Ruth hit three doubles, making a total of six extra base hits in one series.

Some of the home runs made during the last ten years may be charged to the lively ball, but Ruth would have been the home run king with any kind of a ball. The walls are no nearer the home plate in these modern parks than they were during the eighties and nineties.

It is almost unanimously conceded that Ruth hits a ball harder than any other player the game has seen. Anson, Brouthers and Connor were [illegible] old time giants who could hit [illegible] as well as often, but there is no record that any of them ever drove the pill as far as Bill Lange did on the morning of the July 4 game on the west side in 1894. Bill met one of Tom Parrott's offerings squarely and it landed on the roof of the apartments at Wood and Taylor streets and bounded off into the street. I saw the blow and it was the prize long distance drive of all time until Ruth began hitting them high and far away.

Pounds Out Longest Hit Off Dick Kerr.

During the three years that he was in the American league little Dick Kerr made Ruth as much trouble as any other pitcher but Babe had one bit of satisfaction during a trip of the Yankees to Chicago in 1921 when Kerr's best year. Ruth connected with one of Dick's alleged fast balls [which at the best were pever very fast] and it landed in the vacant lot to the east of Comiskey park and about four hundred feet north of 35th street. Comiskey park, including the structures, is 600 feet square and the vacant lot to the east is the same size. Without attempting to give the exact distance this blow was considerable longer than Lange's and stands as the prize long distance clout of all time.

A. A. U. Champs Provide Final Test Today.

Northwestern university's swimming team, which recently annexed the national collegiate championship, will wind up its season this afternoon in an exhibition meet with the Hollywood Athletic club, which won the National A. A. U. championship meet held in Chicago last week. The meet will be held at Patten gym and will start at 4:30 o'clock.

AL SCHWARTZ.

Since several of the Hollywood swimmers already have departed for home the coaches of the two teams decided to make the meet an exhibition affair in which the points would not count.

Hollywood's two outstanding stars, however, will compete. They are Blankenburg, breast stroke, and Walton, back stroke. These two, in addition to Kimball, free style, set a new world record for the 300 yard medley relay in the national meet last week.

Northwestern will bid farewell to four stars in today's meet. They are Capt. Al Schwartz, free style; Dick Hinch, back stroke, and Don Petersen and Bob Howlett, breast stroke. Schwartz will place his swimming talent at the disposal of the Illinois Athletic club at once. Tonight he will compete for the club in the National A. A. U. water polo championships.

Hinch and Petersen plan to compete for the Chicago Athletic club, and since both were members of the championship Northwestern water polo team they will probably clash with their former captain and teammate in the coming A. A. U. tournament.

FOUR TEAMS TO PLAY FOR WATER POLO HONORS

Homestead, Pa., is the dark horse in the annual water polo championship tournament of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, to be held tonight and tomorrow at the Illinois Athletic club. The New York Athletic club defends the title against the Carnegie Library team of Homestead, the Chicago Athletic association, and the Illinois A. C.

This tourney marks the first time the C. A. A. and the I. A. C. have contemplated meeting since they broke off athletic relations two years ago over the disputed championship game at the Lake Shore. The Cherry Circle denies that it is resuming relations with the Tri-Color, stating it is compelled to enter this tourney and swim in the I. A. C. pool to get a chance at the title.

Here's Another Gibbons Boy in the Ring

Jimmy Gibbons, cousin of St. Paul's famous fighting brothers, Tom and Mike Gibbons, brings the family name back to the ring Wednesday night. He will meet Bud Doran, Chicago heavyweight, in one of the preliminary fights at the fronton.

Al Fay, about whom much has been written of late, and Fred Rees of Pittsburg, Kas., top the night's card. Fay is managed by Jack Kearns, who is optimistic as usual, believing he has a successor to Jack Dempsey, the greatest fighter Kearns ever managed. As far as the Kansas coal miner is concerned, Fay should prove Kearns' optimism.

Baxter Calmes, Wichita heavyweight, goes against Walter Madey in the semi-windup fight of ten rounds. Madey lost a close decision to Doran last week and sees an opportunity in the Calmes bout to get back on the victory road. Calmes has fought once before in Chicago, at White City, against Russell Beulick. He defeated Beulick in two rounds.

Nisse Ramm, Swedish boxer, meets a compatriot, Joe Gorman, in eight rounds. Both, of course, are "terrific" punchers according to their managers. However, they are well matched and that should be sufficient for the customers.

Fidel la Barba, who defeated Tommy Paul in Buffalo last week, has no other engagements before his fight at the Coliseum April 21 against Bud Taylor. The former flyweight champion will begin preparation this week at the Arcada gymnasium.

Taylor has one more fight, that with Paul Wangley in Minneapolis Friday night, after which he will have ten days of drill for La Barba. He will work at Barry's gymnasium. The supporting card probably will be announced tomorrow by Leonard Sacks.

New Orleans, La., April 6.—(AP)—John H. Doeg of Santa Monica, Cal., No. 3 national ranking tennis player, today won the singles championship over John Van Ryn, Orange, N. J., No. 5 in rank, in the invitation tournament of the New Orleans Country club in a contest that was forced to five sets.

Doeg started off as if he would make quick work of his rival by taking the first two sets, 6-4, 6-3. Then Van Ryn found his range and drove the Californian into defeat in the next two, 6-4, 6-1. Here both players settled down to a careful game. Doeg finally took the set, 6-4.

Mixed Bout to Set Precedent in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, Wis., April 6.—[Special.]—When Bruce Flowers, New Rochelle, N. Y., Negro steps into the ring against King Tut on the Auditorium card Friday night, it will mark the first mixed prize fight for Milwaukee in twenty years of legalized boxing. Flowers will replace Joe Glick in the main event, injuries in the Jack Berg bout Friday having forced the Williamsport, N. Y., pants presser into inactivity.

Tom Andrews, who has been promoting matches in Milwaukee and neighborhood for thirty years or more, recalled today that Joe Choynski and Klondike, a Chicago Negro, were the last participants in a mixed bout here. Colored fighters have appeared since, but only in exhibitions. Andrews also said that Sam Langford, the Boston Tar Baby, and Jeff Clarke, the Memphis Menace, fought here in what he remembered as the last all-Negro bout. That was more than twenty years ago.

Flowers will arrive Tuesday morning and work out that afternoon. Tut drilled this afternoon at the Ace gymnasium.

Spug Myers, who meets Mickey O'Neill, Milwaukee star, in a ten round semi-windup on the Tut-Flowers card, will reach town Wednesday. Myers, once of Pocatello, Idaho, now is engaged in training at Chicago.

WHEAT MARKET TURNS BULLISH; SHORTS COVER

Commitments on Buying Side Increase.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A crop scare in the southwest, where it has been too dry for several weeks, with a deficit in the supply of moisture for a month or more, has created bullish sentiment in wheat, increased speculative commitments on the buying side.

Shorts have been forced to cover, greatly assisting the upward movement of prices, which closed at the top of the present upturn, with net gains of 5@8¾c for the week.

The change from bearish to bullish sentiment has been most pronounced, and wheat futures are up 13@16¾c from the low level of March 12, new crop months leading, with a further advance predicted unless rain comes soon.

At the close of the week there were no prospects of a breaking of the drought. Those familiar with Kansas conditions say that there is still time for beneficial rains and a large crop. A Kansas City cash handler says that largest crops of better quality wheat are raised in Kansas on short straws rather than on heavy growth.

Crop Report Due April 9.

Nat Murray estimates the winter wheat crop at 569,000,000 bu, against 578,000,000 bu harvested last year, and the five year average is 551,000,000 bu. East of the Mississippi river prospects April 1 were for 156,000,000 bu, compared with 174,000,000 bu last year. Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, and Texas are estimated at 291,000,000 bu, against 274,000,000 bu last year.

The government report will be given out Wednesday at 2 o'clock Chicago time. It is estimated to show a condition of around 80 to 81. Average of the private reports issued last week indicated an average of 81.4, against 82.7 last year, and a ten year average of 80.9. The government will give no estimate on abandoned acreage. Mr. Murray, however, estimates it at 8.6 per cent, compared with 6.2 per cent last year, and 12.5 per cent as the ten year average. The official report on acreage for harvest is expected in May.

Progress is being made by William G. Milner, executive vice president of the Grain Stabilization corporation, in arranging with millers to increase their output of flour and export it, for the use of millers' storage facilities for wheat that will be marketed within the next three months. With a crop scare on, millers are buying cash wheat more freely, getting a considerable quantity from the Grain Stabilization corporation at satisfactory prices. At Minneapolis sales were made at $1.16 for No. 1 northern on track.

Hear U. S. Is Selling.

The wheat trade had it for several days that the government was selling May wheat, which put it to a discount under July. This has created an impression, which is understood to come from well informed sources, that the government will deliver its cash wheat next month.

Export buying of Manitobas and American hard winters has improved slightly, and it is said that Europe wants good American hard winters to mix with low grade Argentines, as the good wheat in that country has been used up. There is no estimate, however, as to quantities that will be needed from America, but the trade had the impression at the close that, should there be no rain in the southwest within the next few weeks, European exporters are likely to change their attitude and buy American wheats in large volume.

December, $1.24¼@1.24⅝.

"LESS CARBON DEPOSIT"

ACTUAL amounts of carbon deposited by 4 different oils in 50 hour tests in the same motor. Carbon from New Iso-Vis Motor Oil at extreme right.

NOTICE the comparison in the amount of carbon formed by four leading motor oils. The three oils with which New Iso-Vis is compared are three other premium-priced oils—generally considered among the finest oils you can buy.

In the high-compression motor, this difference in carbon is particularly important. It not only means a difference in repair bills, but a noticeable difference in the way your car performs.

In addition, this new oil resists dilution and will not thin out in the crankcase. Its "body" is as heavy the day you drain it off as the day you put it in. This means greater protection for your motor every mile you drive.

New Iso-Vis also has what engineers call a "wider viscosity range". It stands up under intense heat yet gives effective lubrication at low temperatures.

Introduced only a few weeks ago, hundreds of thousands of motorists are now using this new oil. You can get New Iso-Vis from any Standard Oil dealer or service station. Begin today to give your car this new and more effective lubrication.

NEW ISO-VIS Motor Oil, with its greater degree of protection, helps to maintain the qualities originally built into the car—one of the satisfactions of fine car ownership. The better the car, the more you will value this kind of lubrication.

New ISO-VIS 30¢ a quart Motor Oil

The New Polarine is also affected by our new refining processes—giving it a degree of lubricating efficiency which we believe is exceeded only by the New Iso-Vis. The price is 25c a quart.

BUSINESS NEWS OF WEEK BEST SO FAR IN 1930

Reversal in Steel Trend Tops List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—Reports on the state of business and industry which appeared during the last seven days were, on the whole, the most encouraging that have been seen since the beginning of the year.

Stimulation of wholesale and jobbing lines by the approach of spring weather and of the Easter holidays was noted in most sections of the country and retail sales were better in many districts. Most encouraging of all was a reversal of the recent downward trend in the steel industry, shown in the stepping up of operations of the United States Steel corporation from 80 per cent to 83 per cent and in the rate of output for the industry as a whole from 75 per cent to 78 per cent.

Auto Output Rises.

Automobile output for March was reported at 18 per cent higher than in February and announcement was made that the Ford factories are boosting operations to around 8,500 cars daily, which is close to the highest rate ever attained. From all sections came word of increased building and construction activities.

Against these distinctly encouraging items must be set a further decline in car loadings, both with respect to the previous week and the corresponding week of last year, and reports from leading chain store organizations of a falling off in sales. The figures for car loadings, while the lowest since 1922 for this season of the year, were not without their brighter side, however. The important item of miscellaneous freight, which is the best index of the movement of general merchandise, while below a year ago, was up for the week.

Encouraging Reports.

Reports by telegraph from the various reserve districts are generally encouraging. The southern districts offer the most concrete evidences of improvement, as has been the case for several weeks.

The improvement in the steel and automobile industries is particularly stimulating at this time. The steel mills, showing a remarkable recovery in the early weeks of the year, reported declining output for the four successive weeks from the latter part of February to the last week of March. A week ago the decline was halted, but this week's figures give the first evidence of an upturn.

Expanding demand for oil and gas pipe and large inquiries for structural steel have produced a brighter outlook for the industry, the weekly steel reviews point out.

In the automobile field the light car is still the dominant factor. Figures showing the proportion of the entire output of the automobile industry which is now taken up by Ford and Chevrolet indicate clearly the predominance of demand for the cheaper car.

Auto Strop Co. 1st Quarter Earnings Gain 44 Per Cent

An increase of 44 per cent in earnings for the first quarter of 1930 as compared to the corresponding period of 1929 is reported today by the Auto Strop Safety Razor company. For the first three months of this year net income was $280,000, compared with net income of the first quarter of 1929, which was $200,026.

Fox Sells His Film Stock to Clarke Group

New York, April 6.—[Special.]—William Fox has sold his controlling interest in the Fox Film corporation and Fox Theaters corporation to a syndicate headed by Harley L. Clarke of Chicago, president of the General Theaters Equipment, Inc. This was announced tonight by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for the Fox companies and Mr. Fox, head of the motion picture producing and theater enterprises.

Dismissal by general consent of the suits, counter suits, injunctions, and all the rest of the litigation in which the $500,000,000 Fox Film and Fox Theater corporations have become involved were predicted by Mr. Untermyer.

Relief to Stockholders.

"It will, I am sure, be a relief to the creditors and stockholders to learn that the financial troubles of the Fox companies have been satisfactorily adjusted," said Mr. Untermyer. "Mr. Fox has sold his 151,000 of "B" shares that represent the control of the Fox Films and Fox Theaters companies to the syndicate under conditions that Mr. Fox is satisfied will safeguard the future prosperity and expansion of the companies. Mr. Fox has agreed to continue with the companies for five years as chairman of their advisory board.

"The theaters company recently had been offered $110 per share net over and above all commissions for the Loew shares, which would cover their full initial cost, as against the stock market price of $34 during the panic, when their forced sale would have bankrupted the theater company if Mr. Fox had not come to the rescue and sacrificed his own securities to save this stock.

"There has been no time since the financial troubles of the company began when Mr. Fox could not have sold his "B" shares. This he has consistently refused to do until it could be accomplished so as to fully safeguard the rights of every shareholder and the future of the companies.

$50,000,000 Debenture Issue.

"A comprehensive plan of refinancing has been negotiated and is about to be issued jointly by Bancamerica, Blair-Lehman Brothers, Dillon, Read & Co., and Halsey, Stuart & Co. which will provide for an issue of $50,000,000 of 6½ per cent debentures with warrants for common stock of Fox Film attached and 1,200,000 shares of common stock of Fox Film to be underwritten at $28 per share.

"Under the plan about to be issued, all the debts of the companies will be promptly paid in full with interest, and ample working capital will be supplied.

"The present intrinsic value of the Loew shares, which is largely in excess of their cost, and the fact that the west coast properties, which stand on the books at about $10,000,000, now can be readily sold at $40,000,000 to $50,000,000, illustrate the far sighted vision of Mr. Fox's management.

Produce Under Fox's Name.

"The companies will continue under the name of William Fox, and all productions will be presented to the public, as heretofore, under his name. The pending litigation doubtless will be dismissed by general consent and the "B" stock will be turned over by the Bankers' Trust company to the Harley Clarke syndicate upon the order of Mr. Fox."

"The new controlling ownership and the banking association of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and others are welcome and highly satisfactory to the executives and production staff. I have the highest admiration of Harley L. Clarke and for his achievements in many lines of business. He will contribute much to the entire motion picture industry."

C. & O. INVESTMENT IN ROAD AND EQUIPMENT NEARLY 397 MILLIONS

New York, April 6.—The annual report of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway shows that investment in road and equipment was increased from $376,878,000 on Dec. 31, 1928, to $396,934,000 last Dec. 31. The largest and most costly project completed in 1929 was the third-tracking of the line between Barboursville, W. Va., and Pike crossing, Catlettsburg, Ky.

The application of creosote to ties reduced the use of ties by 169,029, to 841,627 in 1929. There were 45,439 tons of new rail, equal to 257 miles of track, used in renewals. This was a decrease of 57 miles from 1928.

The balance sheet shows total assets of $603,125,000 on Dec. 31, against $569,453,000 a year previously. Current assets were $30,419,000, against $31,045,000, and current liabilities, $18,033,000, against $21,525,000. Appropriated surplus was $27,121,000, against $26,884,000, and profit and loss surplus was $115,110,000, against $97,603,000.

Call Meeting to Talk Slum Elimination

BY THOMAS WREN.

Working nationally to stimulate construction and relieve unemployment among building trades workers the members of the American construction council will meet in New York City on April 25 and discuss plans to eliminate the slum districts in all American cities.

Announcement of the New York meeting is made by E. M. Craig, the head of the American construction council, who stated the tentative plans have been approved by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. The New York executive was formerly head of the council, which is composed of various units of builders—engineers, contractors, architects, and material interests.

Proposed plans call for the wrecking of old tenement houses and the erection in their place of modern priced apartments, similar to the ones constructed by Oscar W. Rosenthal, the Chicago builder, who has devoted considerable research along this line of building.

Mr. Craig said the elimination of the slum neighborhoods furnished one of the greatest reservoirs of future building activity, because the field comprises a great area of potential building and engineering construction that has as yet hardly been touched.

Cheap Transportation Aids Industrial Development

BY SCRUTATOR.

From the often dry proceedings before the interstate commerce commission comes an instance that has, besides evidence supporting the proposition above, a little light on the fate of a noble animal.

The case in question concerned the wild horses of Montana and Wyoming. Some years ago these animals became, for the stockmen and sheepmen of those states, a pest. At the end of 1924 it was estimated that 400,000 of them were ranging about in Montana alone, and that each one ate as much feed as two cows or five sheep.

State authorities, wishing to help the cattlemen, got the railroads to establish rates lower than usual to Rockford, Ill., to make it more profitable for westerners to corral these horses and ship them across the Mississippi river for slaughtering. This rate was still about the same as that on cattle.

Decide Rates Will Stand.

The next step was the establishment of rates for shipments of wild horses for slaughter, wholly within the state of Montana, that were only half the rates on cattle. The new rate making began in 1926 and so far the number of the wild pests in Montana has been reduced to 200,000.

The next action was an attempt to esualize the rates, relative to cattle, so that the same proportionate differences would exist in the interstate and intrastate shipments. The cattlemen then protested against the grant of rates to Rockford as low as those in Montana, because they believed the horse killing firm in Rockford, instead of causing the extermination of the horse pests, would actually foster the raising of them with such rates.

By decision of the commission the rates will stand as they are, those to Rockford being just the same as the cattle rate and those in Montana exclusively considerably lower.

Infers Lesson.

From the standpoint of the western states, doubtless the intention to keep ranges for cattle raising is entirely right. So is the rate that is high enough to encourage the destruction of the wild and generally useless horses and yet not low enough to encourage raising them for commercial purposes.

But there is a lesson about rate making here. If a pest and a comparatively low rate could build up an undesirable industry, it is more than likely that natural resources now existing in many out of the way places and comparably low rates would build up industries that are desirable. A just complaint against the rate structures on the mileage scale as now laid out by the interestate commerce commission is that they attempt to give the railroads revenues by raising the rates rather than by encouraging volume.

Mellon Calls for Bids on $50,000,000 Gov't Issue

Washington, D. C., April 6.—(AP)—The third issue of treasury bills to finance the government was announced today by Secretary Mellon, who called for bids for $50,000,000 or thereabouts to be opened on April 11. The issue is to raise funds for the usual spring financing of the treasury heretofore done through the medium of treasury certificates.

Auto Sales in Illinois Show Quarterly Drop

Illinois automobile sales for the first quarter of 1930 are 13,477 cars less than for the first quarter of 1929 according to a report from the research department of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, giving March new car sales in the state at 16,084. The total for the first three months of 1930 is 42,217 cars as compared with 55,694 for the same period in 1929.

LOGIC OF WALL STREET'S MOOD IS QUESTIONED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, April 6.—In one respect, the attitude of responsible observers toward the present financial situation and the present financial markets is somewhat unusual.

Ordinarily, at a time of business reaction and uncertainty, a rise on the stock exchange is hailed with unmixed gratification, as evidence that the worst will soon be over. This past week the stock market's action elicited in some not at all irresponsible circles widespread [although not always public] expression of misgiving. The new stirring up of speculation occasioned a good deal of quiet comment to the effect that things were not taking the turn that one might wish.

What is the ground for this? In so far as it was dislike of even the suggestion of repeating 1929 or 1928, the point seemed to be a feeling that the worst aspect of that period's mad stock speculation was not the prodigious losses incurred when the reckoning came, but the false views instilled when the speculation was at its height, regarding finance, industry and social economy.

Cites Wrong Viewpoints.

It was not merely, in these years, the entirely erroneous view constantly taken of the business situation by those who were "plunging" on the stock exchange, but the perverted logic, the distortion of inference drawn from any economic phenomenon of the day, the angry denial of axiomatic

General Electric.

M. G.: General Electric company in 1929 experienced the most prosperous year in its history.

Although much of the company's improved profits have resulted from an increased volume of business, earnings have also benefited from the gradual upward trend of the company's operating ratio, resulting from consistent improvement in manufacturing methods. Income from investments in associated companies has also been showing an upward trend.

Earnings last year were equal to $8.97 per share on 7,211,481 no par common shares outstanding, against $7.15 per share on a like number of shares in 1928, not including equity in undistributed income of associated companies equivalent to an additional $1.74 per share in 1929 and $1.62 per share in 1928.

As of Dec. 31, 1929, current assets were $255,876,007, and current liabilities were $50,216,372, leaving a net working capital of $205,659,635, which compares with $239,182,923 a year before.

After the stock split-up the common was put on $1.60 annual dividend basis. This stock is high grade.

Abbott Laboratories.

Miss M. S.: Abbott Laboratories, manufacturing pharmaceutical chemists incorporated in Illinois in 1900, reported a gross profit of $2,448,903 and a net profit, after federal taxes, of $591,014 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929. After paying dividends totaling $289,856, there was a balance of $301,158 carried to surplus. Earnings were equal to $4.93 per share on 120,000 shares of no par capital stock.

Dividends are $2 per year at present. An extra 50 cent dividend was paid Nov. 25, 1929. The stock deserves a fairly good rating.

Royal Dutch.

R. T.: Royal Dutch company $40,000,000 4 per cent debentures, series A, dated April 1, 1920, and due April 1, 1945, offered with stock purchase warrants, are sound.

Stromberg-Carlson Net Amounts to $1,070,056

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New YORK, April 6.—Net profits of the Stromberg-Carlson Telephone Manufacturing company in 1929, after federal taxes, reserves and charges, amounted to $1,070,056, or nearly $4 a share, on the common stock after preferred dividends, comparing with $971,263 in 1928, the best previous year for the company.

April 5, 1930

TO THE VOTERS OF COOK COUNTY:

The Campaign Committee of the National Republican Party of Cook County has asked me to make a statement in connection with the candidates indicated on the marked sample ballot reproduced on this page. The men and women in this group of the Republican Party have honored me with their support for many years, and I have cooperated with them through the years in an earnest endeavor to nominate and elect candidates competent to discharge the duties of public office.

The candidates whom this group has supported in the past have been among the ablest and most efficient public officials which the City of Chicago and Cook County have had for thirty years.

The present candidates indicated on this sample ballot possess the ability, experience and integrity which will enable them faithfully to discharge the duties of the offices for which they are recommended. The records which they have made in public and private life are their best recommendations. It is no exaggeration to say that this ticket, as a whole, is one of the best ever presented to the voters of Chicago and Cook County.

I am a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket as United States Senator. My political record as State's Attorney, as Governor, and as Senator from Illinois is known to the people of Cook County. If you approve my record it would please me to have your active support and co-operation at the Primary on April 8th.

Yours very truly,
Charles S. Deneen.
Senior U. S. Senator from Illinois

PRIMARIES

Tomorrow, April 8th

These outstanding candidates represent all parts of the Sanitary District and are pledged to continue the business administration of the Sanitary District which, in 1929, saved the taxpayers of the District over $12,000,000. Their names will appear first on the Republican Ballot at the Primaries tomorrow, April 8th.

Consider These Important Facts

The men whose names appear on the ballot to the left are prominent and successful business men who have never before sought public office. They are pledged to work for the health of the people of the Sanitary District, to eliminate waste in public expenditures, to lighten the burden of the taxpayers of the district, and to fulfill the district's obligations for treatment works that may arise out of the decision of the Supreme Court in the case now pending there, without imposing any heavy additional tax burdens on the taxpayers of the District.

These men are endorsed by business men and civic bodies throughout the entire Sanitary District. They all have clean records of proved ability. If elected they are pledged to give the affairs of the district the same careful management that they have given to their own businesses.

Statements made by the so-called Association of Commerce group of Republican Candidates for the Sanitary District, sponsored by the Deneen organization, charge that "the Sanitary District is now in the midst of a program which necessitates the expenditure of $384,000,000 during the next six years in order to meet the requirements of the Federal Government."

These figures mean that the taxpayers will be compelled to furnish, during the next six years, money at the rate of over $1,000,000 per week—or, to put it in another way, it will load an additional burden of an average of about $80 on each family in the district, whether home owner or renter. As but a part of the people in the district own their homes, it means that this would be an average of $400 per year for each home owner, or $2,400 for six years, in addition to other taxes. Can YOU stand this increased burden?

If the present management of the Sanitary District is continued by the selection of the candidates whose names appear on the ballot on this page we will comply with the requirements of the Federal Government for an amount of approximately $176,000,000, or about $208,000,000 less than the amount named in the advertising and literature of the so-called Association of Commerce group sponsored by the Deneen organization. In our arguments before the United States Supreme Court we showed that to load the Sanitary District with the responsibility of spending even $176,000,000 in six years was too great a burden for the property owners and home owners of the Sanitary District. The Hughes recommendation to the Supreme Court gives us about nine years to complete the work and we hope to be able to obtain an extension to twelve or fifteen years.

In addition to such a lightening of the burden on the taxpayers we have saved, during 1929, over $12,000,000 for the taxpayers. If we can continue this saving we can complete the work required by the Federal Government with little or no increase of taxes for the work.

Therefore, from every point of view, a continuation of the present administration seems desirable and we ask your vote for the men whose names appear on this page, who are pledged to continue this business administration of the Sanitary District.

SYNOPSIS.

Catherine West of Boston on her way to Paris meets Geoffrey Macadam in the Havre to Paris train. Macadam is an Englishman who lives in Paris. Catherine tells Macadam that she is going to visit her cousin's widow, Mme. Belmont Bender. She is a little apprehensive about the coming visit because she had received just before sailing a letter from Hermione Cushing, who tells her that Mme. Bender is far from well. Macadam is a lawyer, and he tells Catherine that his firm handles Mme. Bender's affairs, but he doesn't know the widow very well. He had heard that she was ill. Arrived in Paris Catherine is a little disappointed when her cousin's chauffeur is not at the station to meet her. Geoffrey sees her into a taxi, giving her his address and telephone number. He tells her that he will be anxious to know how things are at the Bender apartment, and she promises to call him. Arrived at Mme. Bender's apartment, the concierge tells her that madame is very ill. Catherine waits at the door for some time before her ring is answered. Finally Eduardo, the butler, responds to the ring and she is ushered into the drawing room, which has a neglected look. While waiting for Jeanne, Mme. Bender's maid, to appear she has a feeling of uneasiness.

INSTALLMENT VII.

A CRYPTIC UTTERANCE.

Through the iron tracery of the gates a strange face appeared, sallow and lined, a woman's face, out of which with a fixed and hostile expression two opaque eyes stared straight into Catherine's. She gave a little gasp. Who was this person? For a second she gazed back, unpleasantly fascinated. Those black bars between gave her a curious sensation.

It wasn't—it couldn't be——

"Jeanne!" she exclaimed, "I didn't recognize you! O, thank goodness you're here at last!"

"It is you, mademoiselle. Pardon me for keeping you so long."

Her tone was lifeless, leaden, as though her pleasant, ready speech had deserted her. Looking at her Catherine saw that she was indeed altered, her strong features haggard and drawn with fatigue, discolored semicircles like bruises under her eyes, the brow deeply furrowed. A year ago she had thought the maid almost good looking with her good white teeth always showing in a cheerful smile, but now, sapped and strangely preoccupied, she appeared actually ugly.

"Jeanne, I am frightened! What has happened to madame?"

"How did you know anything had happened to madame?" the woman parried in accents resentful, almost suspicious.

"Why, I heard it from the concierge. She told me the doctor had been here since last night."

"Madame is very ill," she said shortly.

"No! No! Certainly not!"

This time she spoke with quick impatience, as though for some reason she were vexed by the suggestion.

"Well, then, tell me what is wrong. I insist on being told."

The idea came to her that there was some mystery in all this. Why couldn't the woman come straight out and tell her?

"Very well, mademoiselle, since you must know, but I warn you it will give you a shock." She came a step closer, glanced over her shoulder and lowered her voice, "The fact is, last evening madame attempted to commit suicide. There, now, you have the truth!"

Catherine was aghast. Her eyes dilated with horror, while an inner voice whispered that rumor had not lied. Poor Mme. Bender was certainly deranged.

"It was last evening. Madame tried to drink a glass of strong disinfectant. I only managed to summon the doctor in time to save her life."

"What a terrible thing!" she exclaimed at last. "I had no idea it was as bad as this. But——" with a faint glimmer of hope, "are you quite sure she meant to do it? Couldn't it have been accidental?"

"That is what she wishes us to believe," she replied with a shrug of her shoulders and a leaden manner, as though fatigue had dulled her faculties. "By good luck she had only drunk a little of the liquid when I discovered what she was doing. I seized her arm and dragged it away. Today, of course, she is ashamed, and pretends she took it in mistake for her sleeping draught, which I need hardly tell you is extremely unlikely."

"Ashamed, Jeanne? What do you mean?"

"O, Jeanne, is it true, then, about madame's mental condition?"

A shade of reproach almost scornful passed over the other's face as she drew herself up with an aloof air.

"In my opinion madame has never been normal since the death of monsieur. Surely you must have realized that last year in Boston when, ill as she was, she suggested your coming to visit her."

"No, Jeanne, she seemed to me perfectly sane at the time. Indeed, I should never have dreamed anything was wrong if I had not heard——" Here she checked herself, not sure that it was wise to divulge her informant's confidences.

A look of shrewd intelligence came into the heavy eyes.

"O, I see! It was Mlle. Cushing who told you," remarked Jeanne rather coldly. "I am not surprised that you have heard from her."

Catherine felt curiously ill at ease, as though she were being accused of some wrongdoing.

"As a matter of fact, Miss Cushing did write to me," she admitted. "But I may as well tell you she doesn't think Mme. Bender is insane—only very nervous and depressed."

A long silence greeted her statement. Then the woman spread her hands outward with an expressive gesture.

"O, well," she commented with singular emphasis, as though she had expected this, "there is another who believes what it suits her to believe."

Catherine did not grasp the meaning of this cryptic utterance, but she felt vaguely disturbed at the undercurrent of hostility in the maid's voice, directed, it seemed, at her as much as at Miss Cushing. What had either of them done to incur her displeasure? Still one must not judge a person who so clearly had just passed through a painful ordeal and had not yet recovered her poise. The wearied attitude spoke for itself.

"Never mind that now, Jeanne," she ventured soothingly. "The point is, how is madame now? Is she quite out of danger?"

"O, quite! She is sleeping. The doctor ordered her a sedative, and she is not to be disturbed."

"That is good. What a mercy she has you to look after her!"

"Ah, mademoiselle, you may well say that!" she whispered, her voice shaking. "Little do you know what I have been through these past weeks. It has been one crisis after another. I live in terror! I dare not leave poor madame day or night, for fear she will do harm to herself."

The girl was forcibly impressed by the devotion. Not knowing what to say she laid her hand upon the arm nearest her with a gesture of sympathy. At her touch a change came over the other. Pulling herself together, she spoke in a businesslike tone, almost cheerful.

"And now, mademoiselle, we must think what is to be done about you. Naturally you could not know the situation here, or else——"

"Don't think of me, Jeanne, I shall be all right. Just show me my room and I'll give you no trouble whatever. You must go to bed and get some sleep."

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

She brought a musical genius into the world. Uncomprehendingly, but surely, because instinctively, she ushered joy in and sorrow out. Strange, lonely, earthbound clod, with speechless lips, but eyes that saw the stars and read their meaning.

"Lummox" from the story by Fannie Hurst is drab and sordid drama, but it has a compelling underbeat due to the truly remarkable portrayal of Bertha by Winifred Westover.

The former Mrs. William S. Hart, who has been out of pictures for eight years, was set on playing the title rôle in "Lummox" from the moment she heard the film was to be made. She went after what she wanted, tooth and toenail and was so persistent that at last the casting director said dubiously to the rather small, thin woman—"Well, if you can put on enough weight I guess we can dress you so you'll look tall enough."

Winifred Westover at once began to eat heartily. Also to drink milk. She "put on," I understand, forty pounds. Clothes do the rest. In the picture you see a stolid Amazon, bearing no resemblance to the little blonde of other days.

You first meet Miss Hurst's heroine in a sailor's boarding house. Thereafter you follow her from situation to situation until the time when, across her record in the books of the employment agencies is written "Undesirable. Too old." What happens then? The picture will show you.

Mr. Brenon has done a good job of directing. Photographing is excellent. Dialogue is good and so is the staging. The supporting cast is an adequate one.

But it's Winifred Westover who carries the picture—on those broad, broad shoulders that were once so slim.

THE CAST:

"Montana Moon" is an outdoor production that was filmed mostly on location, and it is gorgeous from the standpoint of scenery and photography. It makes you fairly ACHE for vacation time. The scenes were made amid the mountains of lower California, near the Mexican border, and here the players lived, moved and had their being (in makeup from dawn to dusk) for almost a month.

Besides having real scenery, this film has had some honest-to-goodness cowboys—culled from nearby ranches. They sing and sing, and, while the songs AREN'T strictly cowboy compositions, being the work of Mr. Herb Brown who is responsible for "Singing in the Rain"—that is responsible for "Singing In the Bath Tub"—they're effective, especially the theme song, "Montana Moon."

Joan Crawford stars. She is seen as the spoiled daughter of an eastern power of finance, who, tiring of the Swift Life, weds a cowboy. (Yes, you saw a story like it in the newspapers.)

Jazz invades the Big Timber, and would do considerable hewing, but there's resistance in them there woods as the city folks learn to their discomfiture. They go back to Broadway wiser—and weaker by reason of the loss of one of their main arteries, same being—go on, you guess.

The picture is full of action. Joan Crawford and Dorothy Sebastian are attractive in the rôles of sisters. John Mack Brown who always has such a heart-breaking time with his women runs true to form, being quite likable the while. (I'm getting fond of his real southern accent, we having had so many bad imitations lately of the fascinatin' slurr.) Benny Rubin and Cliff Edwards furnish riotious comedy—some of it musical.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

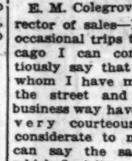
The Answers.

E. M. Colegrove, Conisteo, N. Y., director of sales—In my occasional trips to Chicago I can conscientiously say that those whom I have met on the street and in a business way have been very courteous and considerate to me. I can say the same for other cities which I visit.



Mrs. Agnes Grube, 127 North Homan avenue, student—I don't believe Chicagoans are a bit courteous or considerate. One finds courtesy in the south. In Chicago, as in every large city, every one is for himself, and I think particularly so in Chicago.

John C. Renner, 5633 North Karlov avenue, window display man—I do not. People don't seem to care about each other's welfare in any way, they simply don't. Everybody is so busy there isn't a second to be spared for anything except pressing forward to the goal.

Mrs. May Gibson, 217 East 20th street, company manager — I have always found Chicagoans considerate, and I have been dealing with the Chicago public ever since the dedication of the World's Fair of 1893. I was the official portrait photographer at that great and beautiful exposition.

Stephen Szabo, 2222 Byron street, civil engineer—My experience all over the world proves that Chicagoans could be compared only to the people of Vienna. I have been in Chicago for five years and never have found any people as considerate toward each other and toward strangers as the people of Chicago.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A mechanical mistake was responsible for the omission in THE TRIBUNE of Sunday of part of the Municipal Voters' league finding concerning William G. Knox, a candidate for the aldermanic vacancy in the Forty-ninth ward. The part omitted was this: "He is ambitious and has the reputation of being honest and trustworthy."

Harvard vs. Chicago to Discuss Method to Get Temperance

A solution of the prohibition problem to replace "prohibition in theory" with "temperance in fact" will be discussed by the debating teams of the University of Chicago and Harvard university this evening at Mandel hall at the University of Chicago. The debate will be unique in that both teams are agreed on the question of the necessity for sweeping revision of the existing laws, differing only on the details of revision.

"Neither Harvard nor Chicago is interested in victory in this debate, but only in stimulating the type of discussion which may influence legislation," said Leonard Greatwood, president of the Midway Debating union and a member of the Chicago team.

The chief issue in the debate will be the practicability of the plan proposed by the Harvard team, which calls for the repeal of all enforcement legislation, the enactment of laws making the operation of saloons and alehouses illegal, federal aid for states which enact legislation to enforce the 18th amendment, federal education to foster temperance, and a federal tax on some beverages to provide funds for the education and enforcement programs. The Chicago team is composed of Greatwood, Everett Wahlgren and Francis Mayer-Oakes. Gerald Harrington, Paul Rearden and Robert Eckles will represent Harvard.

Women to Auction First Cancer Fight Seals on Wednesday

A feminine invasion of the Chicago Board of Trade's busy wheat pit is scheduled for Wednesday. Mrs. Jacob Baur will enter the brokers' precincts at 1:15 o'clock to auction the first book of cancer seals issued by the cancer research committee of the Chicago Woman's club in its campaign for funds to educate the public against the disease. The bidding will officially open the sales drive, which will continue through April.

"Fight Cancer with Knowledge" is the slogan of the workers, who expect to make the Easter seal sale a yearly event. The seals are similar to those sold to finance work against tuberculosis and heart disease, and may be used the year around. The Chicago Woman's club itself already has pledged more than $11,300 worth of support to the campaign, which is under the chairmanship of Mrs. Frederick A. Lorenz. Lyman M. Simpson of Niles Center is the designer of the seal, which is done in Chinese red, black, and yellow, and bears the motto of the drive.

Chicago's Advantages in Trade, Culture Basis of New Show

The Women's Chicago Beautiful association yesterday announced its first annual "Pictorial Chicago and Chicagoland Salon" to be held at Marshall Field's from April 21 to May 7 and invited more than a thousand camera artists to participate.

The salon is planned as a means of giving a pictorial representation of Chicago's beauties, and civic, industrial, and cultural development to counteract adverse publicity which the city has received.

Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, director of the salon, explained that all photographs entered in the exhibit must depict directly or in a symbolic manner climate in Chicago business and employment advantages, public conveniences and utilities, health and recreational facilities, cultural advantages, safety measures, points and events of interest. Gov. Emmerson and Mrs. Emmerson will head the list of patrons for the affair.

Longer Dresses Make Dancing More Formal; Music, Too, He Says

When the modern woman put aside short dresses for the new long styles she sounded the knell of the jazz era. This was the view expressed yesterday by Thomas Sheehy, president of the Dancing Masters of America, at their annual district meeting at the Hotel Sherman. The new styles in feminine clothing and the new ballroom dances in keeping with the new dress have brought about a new style in popular music which indicated that the end of jazz is near, Mr. Sheehy said.

THE STAGE

MEI LAN-FANG.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

We took our plunge into the Chinese drama, under the tutelage of Mei Lan-fang, the Foremost of the Pear Orchard at the Princess theater last night, and came up smiling. The exploit was not arduous with scholarship and esthetic cism; it was almost as easy as seeing an intimate revue. There is apparently no need to wax soulful with artistic wonderment over the ancient stagecraft of the young Chinese republic; like ours, it seems to be intended primarily for entertainment.

Miss Soo Yong, a winsome lady of Cathay, who is probably a Phi Beta Kappa from some American seat of learning, interpreted the riddle for us delightfully before each of the four scenes on the program, using the English language more pleasantly than many a native born actress and employing the higher vocabulary of dramatic criticism without tripping over a syllable. Miss Yong, as shy and modest as a mandarin's daughter, was a hit as soon as she stepped before the curtain. The American section of the audience (which was one-third Chinese) felt that hereafter when plays of any kind need prologues Miss Yong should speak them. She was a perfect mistress of ceremonies, as reposeful and lucid as a crystal ball.

Mei Lan-fang himself gave convincing proof that the many millions of playgoing Chinese are right in regarding him as their favorite heroine. He defeats the prejudices of the western mind against female impersonation. As Miss Yong says, he does not "impersonate" a woman; rather, he symbolizes, with delicacy of touch, the oriental ideal of the eternal feminine. He does it coyly, slyly, and charmingly. For physical endowment he has the rounded, baby-pretty face that is characteristic of the typical American motion picture girl, and amazingly eloquent hands. But the rest of him is artist.

Mr. Mei appeared in three well contrasted rôles. He gave us tragi-comedy in "The Suspected Slipper," playing a provincial wife whose husband has returned from the wars after seventeen years; a sample of dance-pantomime from "The Heroic Maid"; and high tragedy in "Vengeance on the Bandit General." He permitted a fellow "tan" [the Chinese word for an actor of women] to show his paces in an amusing divertissement called "The Exorcising of the Fox Spirit." And when the curtain fell for the interval Mr. Mei received his floral tributes with all the smiling pleasure of a prima donna.

The stage is richly decorated, for the Chinese drama believes in pleasing the eye even if it regards the literal scenery of the occident as unnecessary. The costumes are handsome enough to gratify the exacting taste of Flo Ziegfeld. In short, Mei Lan-fang offers us a show which is not far out of line with our ideas of theatrical amusement. His plays may be hallowed with tradition and incrusted with symbolism, but they are intelligible and diverting theatrical stuff. So there is no need to fear that Mr. Mei's single week at the Princess is an oppressive course of educational bamboo sprouts.

There is singing and stylized dancing in these plays as well as the give-and-take of dialogue. In each of them, Mei Lan-fang comes on, crooning something that no doubt relates to the theme. His first impression is vocal—and you will probably get the idea that he is indulging in a solo on the kazoo, or maybe that he is imitating the harmonics of the cross-cut saw. But do not get discouraged; he doesn't sing much.

20 U. of Wisconsin Girls Here, Studying Restaurants

Twenty University of Wisconsin coeds, all students majoring in home economics, arrived in Chicago last night for a three days' inspection tour of Chicago hospitals, hotels, restaurants, and markets and manufacturing plants. The party is under the direction of Miss Bernice Dodge, associate professor of home economics. All of the girls are preparing for postions as dietitians in hospitals or large commercial enterprises, and as managers of tearooms and cafeterias.

Chicago Magic Conjures City for Australia

New Capital Ringed by Mountain Peaks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CANBERRA, Australia, April 6.—A magic city is rising slowly but surely in the southwestern part of New South Wales, which, while far from completion, is already occupied by the government of the commonwealth. A Chicago man, Walter Burney Griffin, is the architect, and although he has had and still is having his troubles with the politicians and others who tinker with his plans, a splendid capital is developing. Already the general development has gone far enough, with temporary buildings good for half a century, to give one an idea of what the capital will be when it is completed.

There had been a feud between the two Australian metropoli, Sydney and Melbourne, as to which should be the capital city. This brought about construction of a new city on a site far from each city and yet fairly close to the present center of population of Australia.

The site was chosen in a great valley formerly devoted to sheep ranching and about 1,850 to 2,000 feet above the sea level. The surrounding mountains rise to 2,780 feet within Canberra itself and from 4,000 to 6,264 within the federal territory.

Geographically Canberra is 204 miles by rail from Sydney and 429 miles from Melbourne. The sea is nearest at Bateman's bay, 95 miles away. The mean temperature is 55 degrees Fahrenheit, with a mean of 63 in the summer and 42 in the winter. It is often below freezing in winter [July, August, and September], but most of the winter days are warm and still. The average rainfall is about 22 inches. The air is bracing and the cloud effects magnificent.

The site already had been chosen when the capital plans were advertised for and an international competition held. The first prize was awarded to Mr. Griffin and the second to a Finn, M. Eliel Saarinen. There had been a strong fight against any but British designers, and even since the award Mr. Griffin has had his troubles. In 1920 work was resumed and Mr. Griffin, who was associated with the earlier work that was suspended by the world war, again took charge.

The water supply was developed through the Cotter dam, residential areas were laid out, roads, sewage, and drainage provided, and trees and flowering bushes were planted. Practically all the buildings now constructed for the housing of the government are temporary and in the next 25 to 50 years will be replaced with permanent ones.

The parliament building was dedicated in 1926 and the duke of York came out from England for this purpose. There are half a dozen hotels, allowned by and under the supervision of the government; also there are hostels for the single women employés.

More than 4,000 workmen are now employed in construction, the roads are virtually finished and numerous large public buildings are in various stages of construction.

In addition to the power plant, certain factories and workshops have been constructed. These include a brick works, a cement products factory, a carpenter shop, and a machine shop. Quarries also have been opened. Thus most of the material used for construction is manufactured in the federal area.

A beautiful city is arising. In another 50 years a monumental capitol building will rise on Camp hill. In another 25 years the capital of Australia will begin to show the real heart and spirit of the architect who foresaw it all just as Maj. L'Enfant did in Washington, although numerous changes in Mr. Griffin's plans have ben made.

Trees Link War Forest with Belleau Wood Here

That part of the Cook county forest preserves known as Belleau Wood was linked yesterday to that bit of forest which gave up that name to become "The Woods of the American Marines," because of its capture from the Germans by that portion of the Second division A. E. F. The ceremony connecting the two was performed on a bit of timbered land near Des Plaines.

Two young trees from the French battle field were planted in the presence of members of the Second Division Association of Illinois.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The spring exhibition of painting, sculpture, and graphic arts by the Chicago Society of Artists opens today in the lounge of the Midland club, 172 West Adams street. Remembering the fiasco of the same society in its winter exhibit at the Stevens hotel, one ventured into the spring exhibit with misgiving. Happily it was unfounded. The present show is very fine.

It is a mixture, as all interesting contemporary exhibits have to be, and it is a good mixture. Each artist seems to have his best foot forward. There is Emil Arnim with a capital still life of roses against a background of towers, a really exquisite canvas, and another painting of his done at Santa Fé is clever, whimsical, and gay. Felix Russmann, shows a brilliantly handled still life, low in key, beautifully modulated in color, skillfully developed with the tenacity of purpose found only in the real craftsman.

Increase Robinson offers another study from her studio window and in it she has arranged a decorative and spirited color pattern of the land east of Michigan avenue, which is a gem. Macena Barton gives us a serious portrait of a woman. Davenport Griffen offers a picturesque "Iowa Landscape" and Beatrice Levy supplies us with romance on a large scale in her brilliant landscape, "In Corsica."

Frances Foy has one of the most delicate and exquisitely presented conceptions in the exhibit. It is a simple little still life, "The Red Pitcher," but beautifully done in every detail. V. M. S. Hannell has two intriguing whimsies, a combination of cubism and modernism and delightful fancy and delicious color, "Paul Bunyan and His Blue Ox" and "Paul Bunyan Erecting His Sawmill." Jean Crawford Adams submits a clear cut, cold, austere, and vibrant landscape, "Corsica."

Among the other artists represented are Frederick Remahl, Eleanor B. Hatch, Frances Strain, Eva Watson Schutze, Gregory Prusheck, Gustave Dalstrom, Olga and Edouard Chassaing, Tunis Ponsen, Ethel Spears, Lyn Coy, Rudy Renzius, Emile J. Grumleaux, Tud Kemp, and Carl Hallsthammar.

The exhibition will continue through April 19.

It will familiarize you with the Counties of the Central States. $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes will be paid to the winners. Note the picture shown here. Do you know the name of this famous County? It's easy. Just study the picture and clue.

A new picture will appear in the Daily Tribune every day for 48 days. NOTE: Only counties in the States of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin will be pictured in this contest. Under each picture a clue will be printed to help you in naming the county. Note also that a list of counties is printed to help you.

Just Follow These Simple Rules:

1. Every week-day for 48 consecutive days, (not including Sundays) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a "Game of Counties" picture. Each picture will represent a County in one of these five States: Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan and Wisconsin. You are invited to name the Counties.
2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to the persons who send in the nearest correctly named and neatest complete sets of pictures in accordance with these rules. See prize list above.

NOTE:—You do not necessarily have to name each of the 48 pictures correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls, except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.
4. Pictures are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do not send in each picture separately. Hold all pictures until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Counties," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Ill. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Picture No. 48 has been printed.
5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Contestants may submit as many sets of pictures as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize. Accuracy will count. Neatness will count.
6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the pictures and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.
7. Judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

NEAR SHOWDOWN ON BAR AGAINST MEXICAN LABOR

Immigration Bill Soon to Get Hearing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 6.—[Special.]—Legislation intended to curb the flow of cheap Mexican labor into the United States is expected within the near future to reach a showdown stage in both houses in congress.

The senate last Friday agreed to make its unfinished business the Mexican immigration bill of Senator William J. Harris [Dem., Ga.], which means that it will automatically come up for consideration when other special business is finished, probably within a day or two. In the house the western hemisphere immigration bill of Representative Albert Johnson [Rep., Wash.] is on the calendar awaiting action.

Natives of Americas Admitted.

Both the Harris and the Johnson bills were favorably reported out of committees and indications are that both stand a fair chance of passage in the respective houses. Legislation finally enacted, if any, probably will be some sort of a compromise between the two.

At present there are no restrictions upon immigration from any of the new world countries, although the national origins act rigidly limits that from European countries. During the last three or four sessions of congress agitation for extension of the restrictions to western hemisphere countries, especially Mexico, has increased. This sentiment is stronger now, due to the unemployment problem in this country.

Under the Harris bill section four of the immigration act of 1924, which enumerates nonquota immigrant countries, would be amended to subject Mexico and all South American countries to restrictions while leaving Canadian immigration unmolested.

Johnson Bill Includes Canada.

The Johnson bill, on the other hand, would put restrictions on all North and South American countries, including Canada. It would apply a new quota system to each, permitting an influx into the United States equal to three times the annual emigration of American citizens to those countries. It would also authorize a plan of immigration selection by the secretary of labor "to develop a homeogenous population in the United States."

During the last five years the average annual immigration of Mexicans has been slightly more than 56,000, a large percentage of the newcomers being laborers. Exact numbers that would be admitted under the Harris and Johnson bills are not available, but both would make heavy cuts in the 56,000 figure.

Border States Oppose Plans.

Opposition to the Johnson bill is certain to revolve around the matter of applying a quota to Canada, a move which a strong group of congressmen representing border states oppose on the ground that it would affect friendly international relations.

Another group of congressmen from Mexican border states oppose the proposed Mexican restriction, and will have the support of agriculture, railroad and other industrial interests of that section. The state department also fears embarrassing situations arising from such a law.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: The Key

Radio Brings Circus Wonders to Listeners

Symphony Orchestra Is Heard Over W-G-N.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

The circus at the Coliseum opened its doors to W-G-N's microphone from 3:30 to 4:30 p. m. yesterday, and we almost saw everything there, so realistic were the descriptions given us by Quin Ryan. Separate microphones enabled us to hear the bands, the calliope, the circus noises, and the applause. Three children gave us their comment on the doings. It seemed the children liked best the clowns, the elephants, and the horses.

The all American program by the Chicago Symphony orchestra with Frederick Stock conducting, broadcast through W-G-N from 2 to 3 p. m., was another afternoon affair of uncommon interest. Sowerby's suite, "From the Northland," proved to be tremendously effective, particularly the first movement, "Forest Voices," Skilton's "Primeval" suite was only slightly less engrossing. Hadley's overture, "In Bohemia," and the finale of Herbert's "Irish Rhapsody" completed the program.

John Charles Thomas, operatic and concert baritone, was the soloist on the New York orchestral concert broadcast through W-G-N from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock. His program was excellent and full of variety. It was announced that Mr. Thomas has been engaged by the Chicago Civic Opera company for next season.

Marcia Schupac, soprano and composer, was the soloist on the W-G-N Melange orchestral concert, from 4:45 to 5:30 o'clock. Her songs included "Sometime" and "Here Are Roses for a Rose."

Herbert Johnson, pianist, played the first two movements of MacDowell's "Eroica" sonata and Rachmaninoff's "Polka" on the 7:45 to 8 p. m. program.

Patrick Boland, Veteran Undertaker, Succumbs

Patrick Boland, undertaker, died yesterday at his home at 4419 Washington boulevard, after a long illness. He had been in business on the west side for more than 30 years. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Boland, and one son, Frank. Mr. Boland was a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Foresters, the Royal Arcanum, and the Maccabees. Funeral services will be held Wednesday morning at St. Mel's church, with burial at Mount Carmel cemetery.

FLORIDA OFFICERS HUNT 2 SLAYERS OF CHICAGO MAN

Daytona Beach, Fla., April 6.—(AP)—Search for two men believed to have been connected with the killing near Titusville a week ago of J. Pavlakos of Chicago, occupied authorities along the east coast of Florida today. Pavlakos' body was identified by a woman who said she was his sister, after it had been believed to be that of J. Bartoni of New York.

Officials here also sought trace of $40,000 in cash and securities which they believed was responsible for the killing of Pavlakos.

According to Constable T. O. Milton, a Mrs. Foster visited the hotel room of Pavlakos in connection with a scheme to bet on races. While she and Pavlakos were in the room, two men entered, posing as Daytona Beach and New York detectives. They took the woman and Pavlakos to the entrance of the local police station, she related, but promised to release them for $40,000.

She returned to Palm Beach, the constable said, where she got the sum and gave it to Pavlakos, reporting to police there that it had been stolen.

Pavlakos is believed to have withheld the sum from the other two men.

STOCKHOLM, April 6. — Another soviet diplomat has incurred Moscow's displeasure. Following a report published in the soviet press Friday that Sergei V. Dimitrievsky, soviet counselor to the legation here, had been recalled, it was revealed tonight that he had been barred by three armed men from entering his office.

"I have nothing in common with the communists, although I have faithfully served Russia," M. Dimitrievsky said. "Several times I offered to resign but my offers were not accepted and the first I heard of my recall was in the newspapers."

He said he did not intend to return to Russia. The newspaper Dagens Nyheter says a possible reason for his break with Moscow may be traced to a historical document now lying on his desk and entitled "Lenin and the Russian Revolution." The newspaper Aftonbladet tonight asserts that M. Dimitrievsky has been shadowed for months by soviet agents.

RUSSIAN GODLESS DROP PLANS FOR DRIVE ON EASTER

MOSCOW, April 6.—Leaders of the Society of Militant Atheists today decided that their anti-religious activities during the approaching Easter holidays would be centered largely on helping to fulfill the government's five year industrialization plan, collective farms scheme, and fight against alcohol, instead of ridiculing priests and the church as heretofore.

The decisions are in line with resolutions adopted at the all-union atheistic congress recently, which decried the use of any methods other than peaceful persuasion for converting religious believers to atheism.

Two hundred new "anti-religious cells" will be established in Moscow, and special anti-religious schools for the peasants will be opened on Easter day. Similar institutions will be started in other sections of the country.

CHINESE DECLARE WAR ON YANKEE MISSION SCHOOLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PEIPING, April 6.—Agitation is growing against American missionaries in Honan province, who persist in establishing primary schools in rural districts in spite of provincial regulations forbidding such practice. The regulations were imposed two years ago, when the Nationalists occupied Honan.

The missionaries ignored the regulations. They claimed the government has done very little to establish primary schools, being preoccupied with civil wars and bandits, and that if the missionaries did not do it children would be deprived of a chance to learn to read or write.

Several hundred primary schools were established by various missions, American and British. For some time they were permitted to operate without molestation. But members of the Kuomingtang are leading the agitation against these schools. The protests are based on the ground that foreign missionaries do not understand Chinese culture and ideals, and speak contemptuously of Chinese religions and learning. The Nationalists contend it is better for Chinese children not to be educated at all than to be taught "imperialist nonsense." The more determined missionaries are continuing their primary schools, while others have obeyed official demands to close the schools.

URGE MEXICO TO BAN CORN RUM TO AID FOOD SUPPLY

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—(AP)—Prohibition of manufacture of alcohol from corn will be recommended to the government by the national anti-alcohol committee, a semi-official organization presided over by the secretary of the interior.

The committee will suggest that by this means the necessity of importing corn for use as food can be avoided and it will point out that sufficient alcohol to satisfy the country's needs can be made from materials now going to waste in the sugar raising industry.

Decision to make this recommendation was taken by the committee as one of the first steps in its 1930 campaign to rid Mexico gradually of the drink habit.

MEXICO ROUNDS UP RED LEADERS TO BALK REVOLT

MEXICO CITY, April 6.—(AP)—Dispatches to La Prensa from Orizaba and Vera Cruz report that alleged plans for a communist revolt in Orizaba, Cordoba, Jalapa, and Vera Cruz, where the party is strong, were checked by wholesale arrests of labor leaders.

Troops have been placed on guard around public buildings in Vera Cruz to prevent any attempt at disorder.

The dispatches said the alleged plot was discovered yesterday and troops were quickly concentrated to block it.

MONACO RULER SCORNS CLAIMS TO HIS THRONE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, April 6.—The various claims to the throne of Monaco were dismissed as absurd today by Prince Louis in the first interview he has granted since the recent disturbances over the succession.

"It is perennial," said Prince Louis. "Some one is always claiming the throne of Monaco.

Chicagoans at Luncheon in Pasadena

BY THALIA

Mrs. George M. Reynolds contributed to the gayety of the season at Pasadena, Cal., with a large and lovely luncheon and bridge party one day last week. The party occupied the entire ballroom of the Huntington hotel, and there were nearly a hundred guests, including many of Mrs. Reynolds' southern California friends and a good representation of Chicago women. A flower covered arbor separated the ballroom into two sections, one a reception room where Mrs. Reynolds welcomed her guests, and the other for the flower decked luncheon tables, afterwards removed to accommodate 17 tables of bridge.

The Chicagoans included Mrs. E. A. Cudahy, Mrs. John F. L. Curtis, who, with Mr. Curtis, is now in Pasadena after a trip to Honolulu; Mrs. Henry Pratt, Mrs. Leroy A. Goddard, Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt, Mrs. Frank Hixon, Mrs. William S. Jenks, Mrs. H. H. Lodell, Mrs. Robert H. McElwee, Mrs. Darius Miller, Mrs. George E. Marcy, Mrs. Harrison B. Riley, Mrs. Arthur Reynolds, and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds Jr.

Mrs. Bernard A. Eckhart, who with Mr. Eckhart is one of the California "regulars," missed the party, as they returned shortly before it was given, to be in town until June 1, when they will go out to Lake Forest. The Reynoldses plan to be in the west until the middle of May. Mrs. Leroy Goddard is expected to return the early part of next week.

Mei Lan-Fang, Chinese actor, has social engagements for almost every minute of his stay in Chicago this week. The Playwrights theater will give a tea for him at the Casino this afternoon, and there was a fashionable audience for his opening at the Princess theater last night. Mrs. Silas H. Strawn had a small reception and tea for him on Saturday afternoon, and Mrs. Charles Hubbard gave a luncheon at her Winnetka residence for him yesterday. Mr. Lan-Fang is to be present at the meeting of the American Friends of China tomorrow afternoon at the Tavern, and there are numerous other groups of individual affairs for him.

The fourth and last of the series of programs arranged by the arts and interests committee of the Junior league will be given this afternoon at 230 o'clock at the Blackstone hotel. Ellery Walter is to speak on "The World on One Leg."

Another afternoon program today is the lecture-recital to be given at the Arts club by Aaron Copeland on "The Younger Generation of American Composers," with a tea following. The Arts club has issued invitations for an evening program to open the annual exhibition of the professional members of the club next Sunday at 7 o'clock. Miss Mina Hager is to give a program of songs after the supper.

The New Orient society, "instituted for the promotion of a better understanding and more cordial relations between the United States of America and the nations of the east," already organized in New York and California, is sending out invitations for a dinner to start its Chicago branch and to elect and install its officers at the Palmer house on Saturday evening, April 19. Dr. William R. Shepherd, head of the department of history of Columbia university, is to be the toastmaster, and Dr. Glenn Frank is to speak. Mrs. Hollister Sturgis, George W. Dixon, and Arthur P. Scott compose the executive committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm S. Barton of Evanston are being congratulated upon the birth of a daughter last Tuesday at the Evanston hospital, to be named Patricia DeForest Barton. Her mother is the former Andreina Materassi, pianist, who came here as a bride a few years ago after her marriage in Florence, Italy, to Mr. Barton. The baby's paternal grandmother is Mrs. Rose Barton of Hubbard Woods.

Mrs. Charles W. Hubbard of Winnetka has returned from a fortnight trip to Aiken, S. C. On the way back she stopped at Annapolis to visit her son, Horace, and in New York to see her other son, Charles. Horace is to be graduated in June from the Naval academy and Mrs. Hubbard has engaged a house at Annapolis for June week so she can be on hand for all the commencement festivities. Following his graduation, Mr. Hubbard will be with his mother for a month before he goes to the post to which he will be appointed.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frost of Lake Forest and their daughter, Miss Virginia Frost, have returned from a sojourn of several weeks in California.

Mrs. T. Albert Potter of Lake Forest left on Saturday to spend several weeks at Hot Springs, Ark.

Mr. and Mrs. Condé Nast of New York City are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Leslie. Mrs. Nast was Miss Leslie Foster before her marriage and is the daughter of the Volney Fosters.

Mexico Copies Health Plan in Use Here to Fight Lung Diseases

The first of a series of health lectures in Spanish, for Mexicans, took place last night at the University of Chicago settlement. Rafael Aveleyra, Mexican consul, commenting on the lectures, praised Chicago's solution of the Mexican problem as unique in this country, and with reverberations in Mexico itself.

"Chicago alone," he stated, "has sought to help the Mexicans help themselves through the extensive public health program now so firmly established here under the direction of Dr. Benjamin Goldberg, director of the Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

"Chicago's plan of sanitarium and dispensary care for its Mexican citizens afflicted with tuberculosis has been watched with the keenest interest by our government and is widely known in Mexico. The government under President Rubio is inaugurating a nation-wide public health program, and already the capital, Mexico City, boasts one large tuberculosis sanitarium and thirty-six dispensaries functioning on the same plan as Chicago's."

De La Salle Institute's Band Wins First Place

De La Salle Institute band was awarded first place in the competition of Catholic school bands at the Auditorium theater on Saturday night, it was announced yesterday by the judges, Clay Smith, Max Bendix, and C. J. Barnum. As a result the De La Salle musicians will have the right to enter the national competition at Flint, Mich., in June to compete there against the Senn High school band, national champions of last year.

Forty-six bands from parochial schools participated in the contest Saturday night. A separate competition was necessitated from that held by public school groups, because the parochial schools put in more hours at rehearsal than do the public schools.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Full duty of the church involves training young people in the science of government, according to the Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, Chicago temple, last night. In a sermon which emphasized the "sacredness of the ballot" he declared the study of politics, as the science of government, ranks almost with the study of theology.

Dr. Thompson pointed out the Hebrew prophets as examples of a ministry that stood before kings and other rulers with messages bearing on the moral implications of political movements.

"Ministers of the state have long been regarded as ministers of God," said Dr. Thompson. "The church should have a voice in politics as it bears on moral spheres, but the political voice of the church should not be partisan and must not become involved in party affairs."

Dr. Thompson deplored the fact that the primary election on Tuesday falls in the Lenten period. He stated that the sordid side of political matters breaks in on the devotions conducted by churches of various creeds.

New Potatoes.

It is difficult to tell when new potatoes are most timely. They come in January, and in a food calendar which is in the making the date of April 7 has a quotation about them beginning: "Florida 'reds,' clean and sound, United States No. 1 graded."

The experience of one person, at least, makes the tiny new red potatoes seem to average cleaner and sounder than those not colored like the rose—we used to have a famous early Rose potato years ago. At that time no one would have thought of digging potatoes so small and unripe as those we get in the market today. Being unripe these are likely to have limited keeping qualities, and therefor it is undesirable to buy them in any quantity.

A reader has just complained about these potatoes being so hard when cooked—all the better for potato salad, not preferably—and from an article written within a year from the home of the potato, South America, one may get a new idea of what a hard boiled potato is. It literally means that the potato is boiled in such a way that when served it is hard, and probably because it is unripe. The man who wrote this was one of the many masculine individuals who complain of the potato as presented to them. This one got two little lukewarm "hard-boiled" potatoes with a small piece of fish at a leading hotel, then he got two more of the same sort with some roast beef and ate them up. Then he got a "third set of twin potatoes with a soggy mixture of vegetables."

Little new potatoes for a small family may be cooked in their jackets, but when cooked in larger quantities they should be pared or have the skin rubbed off before they are cooked, for more than one reason. To pare large quantities of such potatoes at the last minute, before serving dinner, takes too much time, and they will get cold unless given a special treatment.

One of the ways to keep little potatoes hot a long time is to pot roast them in the Dutch oven in a little bit of tried out suet or dripping, to which there may be added a little vegetable seasoning as well as salt. Drop peeled potatoes into boiling water for five minutes, rinse in cold water, put into the hot fat, stir them in the seasoned fat, cover carefully, and cook gently till browned on all sides.

On One Leg He Braves World; Will Tell Story Today

Ellery Walter, 23 years old, author of "The World on One Leg," arrived in Chicago yesterday. He will give a lecture, sponsored by the Junior League, in the crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon in which he will recount the humorous incidents on his journey around the world.

Mr. Walter has crammed in his 23 years such diversified experiences as peddling milk on the west side of Chicago when he was 14 years old, being captured by Francisco Villa and held captive three months in Mexico when he was 16 years old, being night watchman in fish canneries in Alaska, and the rather monotonous experience of being "broke" in Honolulu, Melbourne, Cairo, Hoboken, and other cities.

CAUSE FOR REJOICING!

EXCUSE our enthusiasm, but we see good cause for rejoicing as the Music Defense League nears the 2,000,000 membership mark after a few weeks of effort.

And, if that doesn't prove that the American public wants Living Orchestras and Organists in the Theatre, what would?

There is nothing EXclusive about this swiftly-growing society. It's INclusive—inclusive of the intelligent citizenry of the New World. And that covers a lot of people, cynics to the contrary notwithstanding. It should, by the way, include YOU.

To become a member in good standing of the Music Defense League one needs only the discriminating taste to know that the art of music is worthy of preservation, and the good sense to want one's money's worth. There are no dues, no obligations.

Throughout the world friends of music are alive to the cultural menace of Canned Music in the Theatres. Even the governments of England, France, Spain and Italy are considering measures to prevent this artistic debasement.

What if theatrical interests are momentarily deaf to all considerations save profits gained through false economy? They will heed the voice of the public when that voice attains a sufficiently compelling volume. For the public must be served.

If you value the cultural influence of music . . . if you feel that the price you pay for theatrical entertainment entitles you to real music rendered by living musicians in the theatre, sign the coupon below and mail it.

18th Century's Music Played for Chicagoans

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson took their twin harpsichords down to the Playhouse yesterday, engaged the Newberry quintet of four strings and a flute to assist them, and presented a program of eighteenth century music written for these instruments in their various possibilities of combination.

It was an agreeable variant in a season's routine of concerts. One finds that most harpsichord music was written with the thin, metallic tang of the instrument plainly in the composer's mind, and consequently it sounds much better when played upon a harpsichord than upon a modern piano. The Manuel-Williamson harpsichords are probably quite authentic, having been built in Paris after the pattern of the Bach instruments.

There was music of the Bachs, father Johann Sebastian and son, Carl Philip Emmanuel, of Haydn and Mozart, of Rameau, Locatelli, Gluck, Hasse, and others. Some of it was for two harpsichords, with and without the other instruments, some of it was for one alone or in combination, and so on. Altogether it was an interesting exhibition of a charming if limited means of expression.

The Chicago String quartet played the semi-final of the six concerts in the series of the Chicago Chamber Music society at Orchestra hall. Eugene Goossens' quartet, opus 14, which opened the program, was an ingratiating specimen of how music can follow the old models and yet express itself in modern terms, with a modern though obvious melodic line, modern acridities of harmonization, and modern development which at the same time refrains from torturing the instruments out of their normal voices. It was played with fine spirit.

A little earlier in the afternoon Vitaly Schnee began his piano recital at the Civic theater, commencing with two so-called concertos which showed Bach in his capacity of transcriber from the works of Marcello and Vivaldi. Of no overwhelming importance as music, they were at least pleasant, and were played with marked ability. Later works on the program were a sonata by Glazounow and a sonatina by John Ireland, as well as a group of pieces of less length.

The Chicago Musical College Symphony orchestra gave a concert yesterday at the Central theater under the direction of Leon Sanetini. A visit there found them in the midst of Beethoven's second symphony, which they dealt with earnestly, correctly, and quite after the manner of eager and well trained young musicians. The soloists were Arthur Lindblad, tenor; Everett Roudebush, pianist, and Guila Bustabo, violinist.

Rosa Raisa awards scholarships to young and deserving musicians, then she and her husband, Giacomo Rimini, give a concert to pay for them, and as the opportunities for hearing these gifted artists in concert are few the plan works out well. Three scholarships were awarded during the winter; the concert was given last night at the Civic Opera house.

An orchestra from the ranks of the Civic Opera organization was on the stage with Frank St. Leger as conductor, and the first number, Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" overture, proved the wisdom of having this orchestra and this conductor. Mr. Rimini appeared, singing "Largo al Factotum," from "The Barber of Seville," with all the skill and address that he puts into it in the opera, and followed it by the "Tarantella" by the same composer, Rossini.

Miss Raisa sang an aria from "Il Trovatore," with extra numbers to follow, and the two appeared in the duo from "Don Pasquale" and the similar number from "Don Giovanni." The audience seemed to think that an intermission was due and began to leave the hall, but Miss Raisa appeared for a group of songs with piano and did some of the finest singing of her Chicago career. John Alden Carpenter's "Serenade," Richard Hagemen's "Me Company Along," and, most of all, the Rachmaninoff song whose translated title is "O, Cease Thy Singing, Maiden Fair," were exquisite, unforced examples of a wonderfully fine voice. Such singing was worth the cost of the scholarships and more.

Mother-in-Law Discourages the Adoption of a Child

The following booklets by Mrs. Bevans will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope: "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," "Sex Education Booklet," and "Play Booklet." A book on the care of babies by Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom can be had at The Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 65 cents.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

There is no address attached to this letter. So I must answer it in the column.

"My Dear Mrs. Bevans: Several months ago I read with much interest the discussion by you and through your column, of adoption—and now I am writing to present to you a different angle of that subject which is of immediate interest to me.

"My husband and I have been married eight years and have no children of our own. We want to adopt a baby, but my husband's mother is much opposed to it—says it's an outrage to consider giving his name to one not of his blood.

"What would be your advice—to go on living childless lives—having regard for the mother-in-law—or adopt a child and experience the real joys of parenthood?"

That answer would consist of publishing, one after another, the letters that it has been my privilege to receive from people who have adopted children; and who are intensely happy as a result of doing so.

The question of the mother-in-law's name being given to an adopted child seems to be here one of the chief objections. It might interest this woman to know that adoptions are going on thick and fast among the most cultured, the most highly educated, the most aristocratic [if we may use that word to get over an idea], and the wealthiest families in this country. Men prominent in business and professional circles, with old and honored names, feel no reluctance to change a little child's name from the one under which he was born to their own.

The letters of these people who have adopted children, and of others with few material advantages, that I would like to use, are written from a depth of happiness and gratitude they can scarcely find words to express. One young woman, whom I was able to help a little in accomplishing the adoption, has now had her adopted baby one year and her letter is full of, "Why didn't we do it before?" It is quite evident that she could not love it more if she had borne it.

My advice is—adopt your baby. And—whisper it low—it's foster-grandfather and grandmother will probably spoil it thoroughly before the year is out!

Cape Is the Sleeve on New Paris Frocks

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—If Paris has overlooked any possible ways of placing capes on our spring clothes it will take the world's greatest authority to uncover them. Every chic clothes closet will unquestionably contain at least one version of this favorite child of fashion, and a good many of the smartest wardrobes in Paris since they insist on having capes, will let the sleeves wear them.

Frocks like the Heim dress illustrated are already so dear to the Parisienne that they take place among the famous fashions of the season. Here the cape is not placed over the sleeve, but is the sleeve, and therein lies its particular cachet. Short cape sleeves, worn like this with ten button slip-on gloves, and leaving a length of bare arm in plain view are often the most attractive feature of such frocks.

This dress is made of flat crêpe printed with a small daisy design on a blue ground, and the quaintness of the print is well set off by the fichu collar of self material and the sleeves I have already dwelt upon. A narrow gros-grain ribbon belt hugs the normal waistline and the skirt is flared below the hipline by the introduction of circular godets between straight bands, so they are guaranteed against sagging. The length of this skirt is the perfect length for afternoon, being just twelve inches from the floor.

To complete this frock a poke bonnet of lacy straw, in the blue of the print, is added.

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

This charming dress introduces a slenderizing idea through the bolero effect of the surplice bodice. The V neckline is a universally becoming one, and the short sleeves, high waistline and front plaits of the skirt all are smart details. The scalloped edge of the front buttons over a belt of a contrasting color, and this color is repeated in the binding and cuffs. Any of the lovely crêpes or sheer woolens are suitable and smart.

The pattern, 3426, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2⅞ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

No Money for Dresses.

"For almost three years I've worked for my room and board while going to high school. I am an orphan and my salary is not large enough to enable me to buy any clothes. Do you think any of your readers would have dresses, size 16 or 18, to give me? I would appreciate anything in the way of clothes, such as dresses, shoes, a jacket, etc. D. S."

With the approach of spring and the planning of new wardrobes, I am sure there will be many things headed for the discard which this ambitious student could make use of. Won't you send her the dresses you no longer want? She lives in Wisconsin.

Social Doors Are Shut Tight Against the Deadly Bore

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Being a bore is the one unforgivable social sin, it would seem from current reports on what constitutes popularity and the invitations that go with it.

You can be frivolous, selfish, ruthless, aggressive, and get by, in a manner of speaking, but if you are a bore the doors are guarded against you.

What, then, distinguishes a bore? Nothing distinguishes him or her. That's the trouble. Bores are dull, heavy persons leaning their full weight on others for their good times, persons who bring dull personalities to a dinner table, donating nothing, not even proving to be good sponges, for they fail to soak up any of the intelligent interests offered! Persons whose conversational bounds are limited to a narrow little shop atmosphere. Persons who give out nothing, amusing, gay, constructive, or interesting. These constitute a large share of the bores against whom society's doors are closed.

Smug people with tight lipped prejudices against any modern innovations; persons who "reminisce" over a past that cannot by any stretch of the imagination be half so interesting as this current moment of living—these, too, may be added to the list of bores.

But the prize bore is the "I" fiend whose experience is too limited to make him or her conversationally agreeable. Worldwide travelers, persons with unusual powers of observation and a glib tongue for story telling might be pleasant "I" addicts. But these earn their position as speakers on occasions. If they're interesting, they may be "I" spendthrifts and no one minds.

And then, among young people, the social bores are persons without any self-appreciation; people who have to be bolstered up all the time with praise; young people who do not know how to do anything clever, amusing, or entertaining; young folk who will not even learn to dance well and so become a terrible drag on their partners.

"It is no trouble for me to understand why Konjola is known as the medicine with more than a million friends. If all the world knew about Konjola what I do, from actual experience, Konjola would have a billion friends. For seven years I suffered with neuritis. "Is tap dancing too strenuous for a young 28 years old? I'd like to take some lessons, but fear I am too old.
"GWEN."

Fearing one is too old at 28 for any kind of lessons is the signal to be up and at them. That sounds more like great-grandma speaking than a modern wife, mother or single girl under 30.

Tap dancing is a fine way to limber up the agedy feeling; also, the toes which shouldn't be let to jell outside the dancing circle. The steps are a bit hard to pick up from watching them done if one is a nonprofessional or hasn't been a recent dance enthusiast. Take a few lessons just to get the trick of them and work away at them in private with the radio turned on, after you've got junior off to school and the baby parked out on the porch.

It's a much pursued diversion in the big cities. And it is good fun, too, to be nimble footed enough to do the steps and to feel that you are still in the race for the new in diversions. I understand there is not much technique to learn. It is marvellous exercise for legs and ankles and, in fact, for the entire body. It's more like a game than the Greek or ballet or even polite ballroom style of footwork. And you don't have to get into any flowing yard of chiffon to work at it.

Incidentally, one of the famous tap dance instructors in New York tells me that the tap is of Negro origin and that the buck and wing is an Irish interpretation of what to do with feet when you can't keep them still. I am not familiar enough with the fine points of either dance to know the step differences, but I do hear a lot about the fun of tap dancing and about its exercise advantages. In fact, in one school patronized by debs and social matrons it belongs in the reducing curriculum.

If 28 thinks she is too old for the floor tapping she ought to see the mother of three, oldest 19, doing her turn. She took her lessons from her youngsters and they throw back the rugs any evening and stage a contest. Maw not being far behind the winner, usually. She's a grand young mother and the kids adore her. She looks about 30. She's one of the girls who is never to old to learn the new.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

M. N. H.: CURLING EYELASHES are an asset desired by all women. Several times during the day close your eye brush and gently close your eyes over it so that the lashes are curled.

G. K.: EYE SHADOW MAY BE purchased to match the color of your eyes. It is applied to the upped lid with the finger tip and then rubbed gently until it simply shadows the eyes.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published on "The Most Embarrassing Moment of My Life." Address Embarrassing Moments, Chicago Tribune. Write on one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

Drink Interrupted.

The most embarrassing moment of my life occurred several years ago when I was a beginner in the business world. My employer had a secretary, also a stenographer, and I did all the extra typing. It was my duty to stay in the office during the lunch hour while the others were out to lunch. One day I became quite thirsty, and as I did not expect my employer back for some time, I decided to take a drink of the special water which he purchased and kept on his desk.

I was enjoying my drink when he returned from lunch. I am still working for the same firm and have since been promoted to the secretarial position, but I don't think I will ever forget that terrible experience. M. K.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

Junior Mortgage.

SECOND MORTGAGE LOANS

There are a lot of things we have done and are doing in the interest of the home owner, but the most important one has been the reduction of cost on second mortgage loans. Five years ago we introduced unheard of low rates on second mortgages; we have reduced these rates three times. For five years the rates which we have charged on second mortgage loans have been the lowest rates in Chicago—and they still are.

But there a lot of things we don't do. We don't loan on speculative or commercial properties; we restrict ourselves to single dwelling houses and to 3-apartment buildings. We don't over appraise property. We don't make excessive loans. We don't urge the customer to be slow in making his payments. We don't pay brokerage. We don't have to pay exorbitant prices for our supply of funds.

These "don'ts" are among the major reasons why we are only charging 7½% for a 1 year loan, 6½% for a 2 year loan, and 9% for a 3 year loan, in addition to the 7% service interest.

We have not been in the second mortgage business "high, wide, and handsome." We only loan to the best kind of people—and in the best kind of people we have a deep and thoughtful interest. To all of them we extend a most hearty and cordial invitation to come to us for their second mortgage financing.
